Mellon Knows How Suggestion, Offered Humbly Foolish Dream, Wise Man When We're in the Court

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

ON Monday, in this prosperous country, there was a "turn over" of $1,800,000,000 in tax payments and Treasury financing alone. Not a ripple on the surface of the financial waters.

Interest rates didn't go up. "call money," the kind used for Wall Street speculation, remained at 4½ per cent, with unorganized leaders "on the outside" offering to lend at 4 per cent.

Secretary Mellon knows how to handle big finance smoothly. To him a billion dollars is ONLY a billion dollars. Perhaps that's because he has a billion or so of his own.

A mother with a baby handles other babies easily.

Job was wise enough not to answer the Lord, speaking "out of the whirlwind," and a newspaper man should be wise enough not to offer suggestions to rulers of high finance.

Nevertheless, this suggestion is offered to President Hoover and to Secretary Mellon:

Secretary Mellon has done marvels in reducing the national debt by billions during our period of excessive prosperity.

Would it not be worth while to hold down on bond retirements by income tax now, letting payments from foreign countries, IF and when they pay us, retire some of the bonds? They have the money.

Gigantically heavy income taxes such as the nation now pays is bad for business and general prosperity. No gathering of 100,000,000 men will change the fact that excessive taxes discourage initiative and inflate congressional spending.

After all this generation didn't start the war, and didn't lend the thousands of millions to Europe. Why make the living pay the whole load in a hurry?

Why not reduce the payments on the principal of our national indebtedness to say $500,000,000 a year? If we can be so patient about Europe's payments to us, why not be patient about the American citizens' payments of that war debt, so asininely contracted?

At Linares, Spain, a woman dreamed that a lottery ticket with the numbers 85,363 would win the grand $2,100,000 prize in the forthcoming lottery.

In Spain the people are encouraged to buy lottery tickets, as they once were in this country. People don't like to pay taxes, but are willing to contribute to the state by gambling.

After the lady dreamed the crowd broke in and wrecked the store of the man that owned ticket 85,363.

A foolish man would have waited to win the grand prize. Not so with the owner of the ticket.

He organized a lottery of his own, sold 4000 shares in his dream ticket and made a big profit.

In the Aegean sea Turkey and Italy claim 15 islands. Turkey asks the World Court, which in reality is the judicial arm of the League of Nations, to settle the question.

What questions concerning us will be submitted to the League Court when we get in?

And what chance will "Uncle Shylock" have in that court, prejudiced and packed at least 10 to 1 against him? Will the court, first of all, re-interpret the Monroe Doctrine?

Those, including European friends, that criticize our sending of marines to Haiti are reminded that they are there in virtue of a treaty made in 1906, under which the United States agreed "should necessity arise to lend efficient aid for the preservation of Haitian independence, the maintenance of government for protection of life and individual liberty."

At present 100 different Haitian patriots are candidates for the presidency, all at once. That alone calls for marines. Our brethren in Haiti run for president strenuously.

Managers of business on a smaller scale will be interested to learn that Sears, Roebuck with 40,000 employes adopts the calendar year of 13 months for business purposes in place of the old year.

The 13-month year, 28 days in every month, one day over each year, every day of every week falling on the same date of the month year after year, facilitates and simplifies business, and makes it easier to make comparisons.

The 13-month arrangement ought to be adopted all over the world.

But it is hard to change old customs.

FIVE SURVIVE MINE BLAST, 57 KILLED

Bodies of Victims Recovered After an All-Day Search in Oklahoma Coal Workings

McAlester, Okla., Dec. 18—Two hundred rescue workers today had brought the bodies of 57 miners, victims of an explosion in the Old Town coal mine, to the surface.

The explosion entombed 62 miners.

Five were brought up alive.

Near zero temperatures brought Red Cross workers to administer to the women and children who refused to relinquish their vigil at the mine pit.

Miller Haydn, chief mine inspector for Oklahoma, began an investigation which may determine the exact cause of the blast which tentatively has been laid to cumulative gases.

Fifty of the entombed men were negroes and Mexicans, and 43 had families depending on them.

MAY NOT REOPEN MINE

Hugh C. Rice, general manager of the mine, said the company carried no compensation insurance for the workers. He intimated the company would be unable to give much financial aid to the destitute relatives of the dead miners and said he did not know whether the mine ever would be reopened.

It would take a huge sum of money, he said, to put it in operation again. The company also would be faced with the superstition of miners, who shun shafts in which great disasters have occurred.

The mine, one of the deepest in Oklahoma, has been operated for 30 years, producing approximately 250 tons of coal daily in recent months.

Treacherous gas, which drifted thickly through the lower levels of the mine, hampered the rescue squads today and much of their effort was directed at "curtaining off" sections of the danger area, and attempts to ventilate the mine.

BODIES MUTILATED.

Many of the bodies were found with arms or legs broken, while others were terribly bruised or burned. Identification in many cases was difficult; one man's identity was established only through the fact that he was known to have a broken toe.

The men taken alive from the mine, all told stories of a terrific concussion that left them dazed and deafened. Working much nearer the entrance than the others in the mine, they groped their way further into the entry and away from the main shaft, fearing the dread mine damp. Then all lapsed into unconsciousness, until they were rescued and taken to an emergency hospital near the scene of the disaster.

LISTEN TO THIS, GOODFELLOWS!

Did you ever hear a more pitiful story than this?

A young, beautiful girl giving up her right to love, happiness and home of her own to care for her mother. Lonely bleak years of supporting not only her mother but her crippled brother and his wife.

Burying her brother and his wife funeral expenses that took years to pay. Bringing up their two children, clothing and feeding them. Her mother had a shock and was bedridden. The niece is ill and unable to work.

Her nephew, married, but having just recovered from illness is unable to work at anything heavy or stand on his feet all day, as his wife is working but work is so slack that they have to depend on her mother (with whom they are living) for Christmas dinner.

Now the final scene in the life of this woman. A lonely cold room. On one side of the bed lies the mother, on the other side the daughter. Both unable to walk—crippled for the rest of their lives. No fuel for a fire. One meal a day, probably a can of soup diluted with enough

SUGAR LEADER CITES AID OF HOOVER

Lakin Says President Ordered "Contact" With Tariff Committee and Firm

Washington, Dec. 18 (AP)—A letter saying President Hoover had instructed Walter Newton, one of his secretaries, to "establish a contract" between members of the House Ways and Means Committee and Cuban sugar people, was read today before the Senate Lobby Committee.

The letter, written by H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Company, to Mason B. Starrin of New York, said several members of the committee had appealed to the President, who had directed Newton to establish a contact between the committee "and ourselves."

Lakin, who was the fifth witness stand said that nothing had been done about it.

"You say the President instructed his secretary to do something and it was not done?" Senator Walsh (D), Montana, asked.

"I am not sure what was asked," Lakin answered. "I don't believe anything was done.

Lakin added that he did nothing as a result of the information and did not remember whether Edwin P. Shattuck, employed by Lakin to

EXPLOSION OF LAMP FATAL TO THREE

Woman, Child and Man Are Victims of Flames at Claremont, N. H.

Claremont, N. H., Dec. 18 (AP)—Two persons were suffocated and another fatally burned today in a fire which followed the explosion of an oil lamp in a rooming house conducted by Mrs. Elouise LaRock.

Five others were injured, and four of them taken to Claremont General Hospital.

The dead:

Mrs. LaRock.

Hyacinthe Rainville, 35, a roomer.

Rainville, who occupied a room on the first floor of the house adjacent to that of Mrs. LaRock, and the child, died of suffocation. Mrs. LaRock died several hours later at the hospital. She had been severely burned in the explosion and subsequent efforts to save Beulah and another daughter, May, who had been sleeping in the room with her.

The fire was confined to the vicinity of Mrs. LaRock's room, but threw off a heavy smoke which rapidly filled the house and prevented the escape by state of occupants of the upper floor. Capt. Henry Fraser of the fire department was slightly injured in taking them to safety.

BABY VICTIM OF CUT OUT COLISION OF CARS

Dorchester and Brockton Folk in Smashup on Blue Hill Ave.

Six persons, one of them an infant, were injured today in a collision between two automobiles on Blue Hill ave., Milton, near Dollar Lane.

The victims are:

Miss Eleanor Beary, 20, 210 West Selden st., Dorchester; fractured left leg, lacerated chin. At City Hospital.

Dante Porrino, 20, 28 Hawthorn st., Brockton; lacerated leg, lip and cut over left eye. At Forest Hills Hospital with the three following victims:

Mrs. Etta Packard, 50, 90 Walnut st., Brockton, abrasions and strained back.

Mrs. Mary Bush, mother of the children, abrasions.

Mrs. Russell McBride, of 501 Main st., Brockton, abrasions and bruises. At Milton Hospital.

According to police, John St. James, 22, of Millett st., Dorchester, was driving a roadster containing Miss Seary, northbound on Blue Hill ave.

Police say he cut out of line to pass another car and crashed headon into a machine proceeding in the opposite direction, driven by Porrino and containing all the other injured.

Motorists picked up the victims and carried them to different hospitals.

Icy Highways and Fog Imperil Autoists

Automobile traffic in the vicinity of Lowell was brought to a standstill today after many cars skidded on the highways because of the icy surfaces. Sixteen autos left the highway between Shelmsford Center and Pitchburg. This was due to a drop in temperature. Rain froze as it fell, thus glazing the road surfaces in a dangerous manner.

Fifteen school children had a narrow escape from injury when a bus in which they were returning from school skidded off the highway and then back again before the driver regained control.

All attempts to travel over the main road south of Lowell ceased after three machines skidded into a fence.

Fog enveloped the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to New Jersey today and caused many delays in traffic on both land and sea. It was densest between Boston and New Haven. Shipping scheduled along the entire coast was disrupted and motorists moved with unusual caution to avoid collisions.

According to the local weather forecaster the fog will remain over this area through today and tonight but will fade out tomorrow with the approach of colder

Defense Rests in Textile Slayings

Burnsville, N. C., Dec. 18 (AP)—The defense rested today in the trial of eight deputies charged with killing six men in a cotton mill strike disorder at Marion October 2.

Testimony for the defense ended after Taylor Green, one of the defendants, told the story of the shooting. J. Will Pless, Jr., solicitor for the district, said the State was ready to introduce several rebuttal witnesses.

Army Flier Claims Record for Altitude

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 18 (AP)—Lieut. Hal Bundy today claimed an all-army altitude record for pursuit planes, having reached a height of 30,200 feet in a flight here, one of a series to test new high altitude-oxygen equipment and other things intended to increase the "absolute ceiling" of that particular type of plane with a full military load, including machine guns.

Ambassador Edge Meets Doumergue

Paris, Dec. 18 (AP)—Walter E. Edge, newly-appointed American ambassador to France, presented his letters of credence to President Doumergue at a simple ceremony in the Elysee palace this afternoon.

EDDIE CANTOR Rises to Say:

TODAY you will have to excuse my punning.

It is not far from the diamond to the ring, and Art Shires, first baseman and "talkie" star of the White Sox, made it.

Today he wishes he hadn't. In five innings, Trafton, famous Notre Dame ex-football star, pitched while Shires caught—everything.

However, it took more than three strikes to put him out and the great Shires made a run for home and is now taking his shower—of criticism.

Despite Artie's defeat, I advise every American Legion umpire to give him "the breaks"—unless they happen to be ex-football players.

'Slain Man' Is Witness in Death Trial

Mountain View, Ark., Dec. 18 (AP)—A man who claims he is Connie Franklin went on the witness stand today and testified that he is the same person four men now on trial, are charged with luring and burning to death.

He said his real name was Marion Franklin Rogers, but in recent years he had gone under the name of Connie Franklin.

He said he was an inmate of the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases for a few months and escaped in 1927.

He described his arrival in the St. James community last January, staying the first night at the home of S. H. Greenway, father of Herman Greenway, one of the defendants.

His first job as a farm hand, he said, was with Joe White, another defendant. Next he worked for Herman Greenway, he claimed. The beginning of a courtship with Tillar Ruminer, the star witness for the state, was described.

"We just sparked a little," the witness said when asked of they had a love affair.

Then he began relating the story of his movements on the day Franklin was reputed to have been slain.

He and Herbert Greenway, Hubert Hosier and Alex Fulks, all defendants, started to Mountain View to get a marriage license for him, he said. They all got drunk, he added, and he fell off a mule.

He said he regained consciousness two or three hours later and went first to the Ruminer home and then to Herman Greenway's home. That night he and Tillar started for the home of Finish Ford, a justice of the peace, to be married. They stopped at S. H. Greenway's he said, and learned there that Ford was away from home.

Then they returned to Herman Greenway's, where he went to bed while the girl sat up all night, he added.

In concluding the direct questioning, defense counsel asked:

"You weren't beaten to death and burned last March, were you?"

"Well, I don't look like it and don't feel like it," witness replied amid laughter.

HUNT FOR SLAYER BURKE IS GREATEST SINCE CHAPMAN SEARCH

FUGITIVE IS REPORTED IN CHICAGO

Police Quest Reaches Over Nation for Super-Bandit of $1,000,000 Robberies

Chicago, Dec. 18.—In the greatest manhunt since Gerald Chapman was an object of police search, Frederick R. Burke was hunted throughout the country today.

Price of $100,000, made up of various rewards, is on his head and he is charged with murder in Chicago and in St. Joseph, Mich., as well as many other crimes.

In Detroit, Burke was described as the man who taught the gunman to become the machine gunner; the man who gave lessons in kidnaping—who made a million from ransoms and robberies.

In addition, Inspector Harvey J. Garvin, of the Detroit crime and bomb squad, called Burke the head of the "most desperate band of outlaws in the country—and not one of them, I believe, will ever be taken alive."

From St. Louis, the inspector added, came gunmen from the remnants of Egan's "Rats, once a notorious gang."

SOON IN CHICAGO

Others came from elsewhere—the roster containing the names of the following leaders, Garvin said:

Ray (Crane Neck) Nugent, of Hamilton, Ohio and Gus Winkler, Bob Newberry and Raymond McGinnis, alias Shocker, all from St. Louis.

Meanwhile, recognition of Burke in a downtown Chicago hotel by a man who used to play cards with him in St. Joseph, Mich., where Burke posed as a gentleman of means, only bore out previous beliefs of Chicago police that Burke would seek hiding in this city, where police said he was once the expert machine gunner for the Capone gang and as such was in command at the Moran massacre.

The identification was made by William Hutchinson of New Buffalo, Mich.

"I could not have been mistaken," the Michigan man said. "I know him well. He was lighted on me and I knew in a flash that he recognized me. I got the impression as he held a newspaper I was prepared to shoot me if I tried to have him arrested."

MILLION IN LOOT.

Chicago part of the crimes charged to Burke and his gang, Detroit police listed the following—the total loot in which they place at a million dollars:

Kidnaping ransoms in Detroit, over a period of eight years, $200,000; Kay jewelry robbery in Detroit, 1924, $6000; United Railways holdup in St. Louis, $38,000; truck holdups in Toledo, O., $200,000; bank robbery in Cadillac, Mich., $60,000; bank robbery in Peru, Ind., $93,000; bank robbery in Jefferson, Wis., $352,000.

Seven deaths in the Moran massacre; two killings in Detroit; one in the Toledo holdup—these are some of the murders charged to Burke.

Author Beats Suit; Held on Indictment

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—Charges of grand larceny brought against Irving Kaye Davis, 29-year-old playwright, by two persons who backed his play "Veils" and lost money, were dismissed today when Davis was arraigned before Magistrate Maurice H. Gotlieb.

He was immediately rearrested under a grand jury indictment accusing him of making false statements to sell stock in a play.

New Springfield P. O. Site Costs $650,000

Springfield, Dec. 18 (AP)—A check for $650,000, paid today by Special U. S. Atty. Oscar U. Dionne of New Bedford to representatives of the Hartford Realty Company, closed long negotiations by the government for a site in the center of the business district for a new postoffice and federal building.

The site is close to the Union railroad station, with which it will be connected by a tunnel for transfer of mail.

weather. It was caused by colder air, from the ocean mixing with warm air from the low pressure area to the southwest.

FLYING SUSPENDED.

Because of the fog there was no flying at the Boston airport due to lack of visibility. "No ceiling" was reported early in the day.

The fog was so dense in New York City that the municipal ferryboat, William T. Collins, with 35 passengers and many automobiles aboard, was missing for two hours after leaving her pier at East 92d st. for Astoria, L. I. After failing to reach her destination at the end of an hour two police boats went in search of her and found her in Ward's Island, where she had stopped for fear of collision.

LINERS HELD UP

Five ocean liners were held at anchor in New York. A thousand passengers returning from Europe, following stormy voyages were compelled to spend another night on the water when the liners were unable to reach their piers.

Six hundred additional persons, bound for a Christmas holiday in the West Indies were delayed when the vessels on which they embarked were forced to anchor in the bay after starting.

In parts of New England the fog was accompanied by a drizzle. Boston's rainfall during the present storm, up to 8 a. m. today was .52 of an inch. The heaviest rainfall in New England was one inch at Burlington, Vt. Boston's minimum temperature today was 33, Greenville, Me., reported the lowest in New England, 12 above.

The George Washington of the Eastern Steamship Co., due in Boston today from New York, cancelled her trip because of the density of the fog.

Ferries in Boston harbor moved at reduced speed on account of the pea-soup atmosphere. The fog was much denser along the waterfront than at Deer Island, where observation was reported to be less than half a mile.

During the early part of the day steamers Yarmouth from Yarmouth, N. S., Wilton from Portland, Me. and Cretian from Philadelphia nosed their way in at low speed.

Several liners from foreign ports, due in Boston today, had not reached quarantine up to 10 a. m. The official forecast for Greater Boston is: Cloudy and colder tonight and Thursday with rain probably turning to snow, light shifting winds becoming fresh easterly. The minimum temperature tonight will be near 28.

Rain or snow is expected in southern New England tonight and tomorrow and in northern New England a sharp drop in temperature with heavy snow is expected.

Many N. Y. Cities and Towns Cut Off by Ice on Wires

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 18 (AP)—A score of cities and towns throughout northern and eastern New York were cut off today from communication with the outside world by either telephone or telegraph, while miles of wires lay along the highways, broken by the weight of ice that formed after several hours of rain fell last night.

Operators at the Albany telephone exchange were instructed to report there would be indefinite delay in completing any toll calls to Glens Falls and points north of there, as far as the Canadian border. Similar conditions prevailed as regards telegraphic communication.

All Long Island Sound Liners Are Held Up

Providence, R. I., Dec. 18 (AP) Shipping in the port of Providence and Narragansett Bay came to a standstill when thick fog closed down last night and persisted today. Steamers of the Colonial, New England and Bay State lines all were fog-bound, those leaving this port being forced to anchor before reaching New York, while not one vessel scheduled to leave the metropolis for this port last night got on its way.

Snow and Sleet Storm Hamper Maine Travel

Portland, Me., Dec. 18 (AP)—Travel was made hazardous in many parts of Maine today, street transportation was delayed and wire communication lines endangered by a snow and sleet storm that swept over the State. Several trolley cars were derailed and minor automobile accidents were reported.

Telephone and telegraph company officials feared that their wires, already heavy with ice, would break in a wind of any strength.

Wires Knocked Out by Sleet Storm

Toronto, Ont., Dec. 18 (AP)—Disrupting telegraphic communication to Canadian and United States points and slowing up traffic in all directions, the worst sleet storm of the winter today cast an icy hand over wires.

Most of them were completely out of commission today.

Princess Marie Gives Cash to Poor

Brussels, Belgium, Dec. 18 (AP)—Princess Marie Jose, who will be married to Crown Prince Humbert of Italy in January, has made a gift of 125,000 francs to the poor of the city of Turin, Italy.

Turin is the official residence of the crown prince, who is known as the Prince of Piedmont, and the couple will reside there after the marriage.

Miss Nancy Astor Thown, Severely Hurt

Miss Astor was carried on a mattress to Guildsborough Hall, where it was said she had been very severely shaken and bruised.

Grocery and Tailor Shop Go Up in Smoke

Rumford, Me., Dec. 18—Fire destroyed a chain grocery and a tailor shop in the heart of the downtown district today and for a time threatened to spread to the Rumford Hotel.

Outside aid was called and the flames were extinguished after causing a loss of $10,000.

$637,900 FOR SEIZED HOTEL

Valuation of $637,900 for the land and house taken by the city of Boston at the site of the Old Revere House for the Cambridge st. widening, today was given in the Superior Court [illegible] for assessed damage.

This estimate was made by Sidney F. Hooper, real estate expert, who testified as to his estimate of the property seized for the street work.

Two petitions are being heard by Judge Dillon and a jury, who are asked to set a fair valuation. The petitions are by the Revere Building Corporation and the National Shawmut Bank, which has a mortgage of $280,000 on the property.

MRS. DREYFUS REPROACHED M'BRIAN

"Did Not Even Give Me a Chance," Deathbed Affidavit Quotes Her

Washington, Dec. 18 (AP)—Details of new affidavits described as contradicting testimony that Mrs. Aurelia Fischer Dreyfus was alone at the time she fell from a balcony at the Potomac Boat Club to her death two months ago became known today as Dist. Atty. Leo A. Rover pressed his inquiry into the case.

A sworn statement by Anna Leonard, one of the witnesses who heard Mrs. Dreyfus fall, said that the thud sounded while the dance orchestra at the club was playing "Home Sweet Home."

Miss Freda Fischer, a sister of Mrs. Dreyfus, swore that Edmund J. McBrien, a New York broker and her sister's escort on the night of the tragedy, came from the balcony at a fast pace as the orchestra swung into the bars of the next piece of music that followed "Home Sweet Home."

Miss Fischer also was quoted as saying that McBrien did not help to lift her sister and sullied it by against giving his name and mentioning New York. At the hospital, her affidavit added, Mrs. Dreyfus moved restlessly and said:

"Mac, you you you didn't even give me a chance."

Miss Fischer said that there were bruises on her sister's neck and her mother had indicated now a hand might have made them.

Guimares Again Denies Dot King Complicity

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—The New York American today quoted Albert E. Guimares, Porto Rican broker, as again denying that he was criminally concerned in the slaying of Dorothy King, New York model, in connection with whose death in 1923 he was arrested and later freed.

Copies of affidavits made by relatives of the late Mrs. Aurelia Fisher Dreyfus of Washington, D. C., in which they said the woman was afraid of being slain because of her knowledge of the King murder, have been sent to the New York authorities by District Attorney Rover of Washington.

The American quoted Guimares as expressing doubt that Mrs. Dreyfus made any pre-mortem statement in repudiation of her original one to the police and added, "If she did make such a statement it is an absolute falsehood."

Find Body of Man "Taken for Ride"

Lockport, N. Y., Dec. 18 — Believed to have been "taken for a ride" by bootleggers, the body of a man identified as William C. Bennett of Buffalo was found in a ditch by the road at Beach Ridge, eight miles from this city, with two bullet wounds in the head.

Plan to Finish Flight in Borrowed Plane; Escaped Peril of Wildcats

Rio Janeiro, Dec. 18 (AP)—Maj. Tadeo Larre-Borges and Lieut. Leon Challe probably will complete in another airplane their flight to Montevideo, Uruguay, started from Seville, Spain, which their own Breguet plane Monday found too difficult.

It was expected that as soon as both men arrive at Natal, far northeastern Brazil, from the isolated spot where they crashed after flying 3600 miles across the Atlantic, they will be offered another machine in which they will fly first to Rio Janeiro and then to Montevideo.

Lieut. Challe, slightly injured over one eye and painfully bruised, was brought by airplane last night from the scene of their mishap, near Santo Antonio, to Natal. Maj. Larre-Borges was too fatigued to make the trip and preferred to sleep. Lieut. Challe, though not badly injured, was removed to a hospital.

The plane was expected to return for Maj. Larre-Borges and bring him to Natal today. The plane and pilot, oddly enough, were the same which brought the Italian aviators, Ferrarin and De Pretis, to Natal after a not dissimilar experience at the end of their transatlantic flight in 1928. The plane of Maj. Larre-Borges and Lieut. Challe was wrecked in their forced landing.

The spot in which the plane landed is the home of the Brazilian wildcats and surprise was expressed that the airmen escaped harm at the hands of these dangerous beasts.

British Fliers Unheard From in 24 Hours

London, Dec. 18 (AP)—More than 24 hours had elapsed today since news had been received in any quarter from the Royal Air Force monoplane that left Cranwell airdrome yesterday in an attempt to set a new world's record for long-distance straight-line flights.

Squadron Leader A. G. Jones-Williams and Flight Lieut. A. H. Jenkins, who were heading for Cape Town, South Africa, 6000 miles distant, were last reported off the island of Sardinia at the Mediterranean entrance.

If the British officers are still flying at 100 miles an hour, a rate which would have given the big plane should have covered more than half its journey and would be far on its way over the dark continent.

The air ministry thinks it is possible that no news may be heard from Jones-Williams and Jenkins until they approach Cape Town.

Sets $100,000 as Mayflower Price

Washington, Dec. 18 (AP)—In response to inquiries as to what he considered a fair price for the former presidential yacht Mayflower, Secretary Adams said today that the Navy board of inspection and appraisal valued the vessel at $100,000. The board itself yet received in two attempts of the Navy to sell the Mayflower was offered by the Florida Railway & Navigation Corporation. Secretary Adams rejected this.

Bay State Students Win Scholarships

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—The award of Columbia University club scholarships of $300 each for 1929-30 to 12 Columbia College freshmen was announced today by Nicholas McD. McKnight, chairman of the club scholarship committee. Among those who received the scholarships were Walter F. Salvo, Northampton, Mass.; Concannon, Boston; Stephen Grenda, Lawrence, Mass.; Edward Haughey, Pittsfield, Mass.

Child, 3, Kills Kin With Accidental Shot

Pittsburgh, Dec. 18 (AP)—Antonio Certelli, 53, a merchant of West Elizabeth, near here, was shot to death by his three-year-old grandson in a room in the rear of his store.

The child, playing on the floor as Certelli slept in a chair, removed a pistol from the merchant's pocket it was accidentally discharged and Certelli was shot in the head

'Kittens' Leightmor's Hubby Tries Suicide

New York, Dec. 18 (INS)—Elias Brody, Hungarian artist husband of Vera "Kittens" Leightmor, former "Follies" girl was in the psycopathic ward of Bellevue Hospital today after slashing his wrists with a razor blade.

Police said he attempted suicide.

60 Years at Trade

Portland, Me., Dec. 18—George W. St. John, who learned the printing craft when he was 17, celebrated his 77th birthday by working as usual in the composing room of a local newspaper plant. He has worked almost the entire 60 years in newspaper plants in this city.

Acquit Contractor of Drunken Driving

Bernard R. Murphy, landscape architect and contractor, of Highland rd., Brookline, was found not guilty on charges of drunkenness and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor by a jury in the fifth session of Suffolk Superior Criminal Court.

In the lower court, Judge Good had severely criticised the police because of their failure to get a doctor for Murphy, saying that the doctor would have been an impartial witness. He found Murphy guilty, however, and the latter appealed.

GOODWIN GIVES WARNING ON TUBE PLAN

Urges City to Go Slow in Approving Any Proposals Until After Close Study

Chairman Frank A. Goodwin today warned against any haste by the city in committing itself to any plan for an East Boston vehicular tunnel and declared that the whole project demanded the most intensive study and consideration.

He said the adoption of any of the plans submitted by Henry I. Harriman, except the spiral ramp plan, would cost the taxpayers of Boston many more millions of dollars than the estimated cost of $18,000,000.

"Of course," said Chairman Goodwin, "the whole question at the present time is up to the transit commission and the Mayor.

"It would seem to me that with the Transit Commission unanimously in favor of a certain plan and opposed to either or any of the Harriman plans, and supported in its opinion by its distinguished engineer, Ernest Springer, that we should go slow about committing the city of Boston to an expenditure of $18,000,000 and possibly many millions more.

"This huge expenditure would be made necessary by the adoption of any of the Harriman plans, except that embodying the spiral ramp idea.

"The Transit Commission and its engineer is also further fortified in its opposition to the Harriman plans by the opinion of the Finance Commission's engineer, Guy Emerson.

"It would appear, at any rate, that if the latest proposal of Mr. Harriman were adopted, the city would save about $900,000 from the cost of the plan originally recommended by Harriman and adopted by the mayor."

Mayor Nichols has the whole project under consideration, but had no statement to make today.

Sugar Lobby Cited 'Interest' of Hoover

work for a low sugar duty had done anything.

Pressed to tell from whom he obtained the information, Lakin said "it might have come from Rep. Hull (D.), Tennessee, but he was not sure. He said he was certain no Republican member of the ways and means committee had told him.

Lakin previously had testified that Shattuck had been employed partly because of his friendship with President Hoover and he had frequent conferences with Newton.

QUOTES PRESIDENT.

The letter to Starring, who is president of the California and Pittsburgh Utilities Corporation, was dated April 16, 1929.

The latter said that Lakin had been informed that an actual majority of the committee now opposed any increase in the sugar tariff.

"Several members of the committee have appealed to President Hoover," the letter said, "and he has instructed his secretary, Mr. Newton, to establish contact between the committee and ourselves.

"We are inclined," Lakin continued, "to be a little doubtful about this step, but in the end would, of course, have to do what President Hoover desires, especially as he seems to be genuinely interested in our case. Heretofore our work has been in the direction of leaving final negotiations to Sen. Smoot, who, after all is the spokesman for the beet sugar interests."

SOUGHT BEET "CONTACT"

"Among other things, we have been informed that outside of Smoot, Sen. Reed of Pennsylvania is the most influential member of the finance committee of the Senate. I am very anxious to establish an intimate contact with him.

"I know that his secretary has become an advocate of the Cuban point of view, and at Sen. Reed's request has been preparing a report on the subject during Reed's absence abroad."

The letter to Starring also said that "I am especially interested in bringing pressure to bear on Congressman Estep of Pittsburgh."

"We were informed by a member of the ways and means committee yesterday, while in Washington," it added, "that an actual majority of the committee is now opposed to any increase in the sugar tariff, and that Bachrach, Watson and Estep might be induced to change their votes, which have thus far been cast in favor of the increase."

The Lakin letter to Starring said: "We feel much encouraged," and added Professor Mansfield Shattuck had been advised it would be better "not to intervene because Congress resents approach from foreign nations."

Lakin was criticised by Senator Walsh of Montana, after a letter written by the witness to a Mr. Aball, head of an association of Cuban mill owners, had been read.

The letter said that it would always be advisable to put our plans in writing but we will contrive in some way to keep you and your association informed of developments.

"That was an inept expression," Lakin said.

"There is so much of your language that does not express your ideas," Walsh commented.

Lakin explained he intended to keep Aball informed by frequent conferences.

The employment of J. P. Shattuck, Washington correspondent for the Cuba company, was referred to in another letter from Lakin to Aball on April 1, which said:

"You have learned from me the closeness of the relations between President Hoover and Mr. Shattuck. Will you kindly arrange with the conference not to mention this subject in the conferences with Mr. Shattuck?"

"He may tell you something on these relations of his own volition. I can tell you privately, but it might be embarrassing for those relations to be discussed in his presence.

MIGHT EMBARRASS HOOVER

"Naturally he is obliged to conceal those relations as much as possible in order not to embarrass President Hoover."

Walsh asked Lakin if he had anything to say about the letter.

"I am afraid the letter speaks for itself," he replied. Lakin added that Shattuck's relations with President Hoover "might be misunderstood."

Senator Smoot was mentioned in another letter from Lakin to Aball. The latter said Smoot was the "real spokesman" of the "Remolacheros," which was interpreted as the beet sugar producers. Utah is a large beet sugar state.

"Smoot is the real spokesman for the Remolacheros," the latter said, "and he is a senator and it would be difficult in talking with him to draw any distinction between his position as senator and his function as the leader of the Remolacheros."

FINDS FOUR OVERCOME IN HOME

Diver Climbs Through Window After Detecting Fumes as He Patrols His Beat

Patrolman John Dever traced the odor of gas to the three-family tenement house at 138 K st., South Boston today, and unable to arouse the occupants, he climbed through a window and awakened the family.

Dever traced the gas to the kitchen, where a jet was open. He shut off the gas and rushed to the bedroom, where he picked up Anthony Scalfino, 13, and Charyza Scalfino, seven, children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scalfino.

He passed the dazed youngsters out the window to a pedestrian who was passing. Later he assisted both Mr. and Mrs. Scalfino to the street in their night clothing. Dever worked over the children until he had revived them.

A physician was summoned and rendered first aid to the family. They refused hospital treatment and went to the home of friends.

The people residing on the second and third floor of the tenement house were not affected.

International Newsreel photos show laun ching of the V-5, world's largest submarine, at the U. S. Navy Yard at Portsmouth, N. H. Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, was sponsor, using a bottle of grape juice.

Photo shows the submarine as it struck the water on its maiden bath. This view gives an idea of the type of the V-5, with its prow resembling a huge liner in appearance. The ship is called the cruiser type fleet submarine. It will be commanded by Lt.-Commdr. J. H. Brown.

TRIAL BARES IMMIGRATION SWINDLE 'RING'

More Arrests Expected to Follow Arraignment of Ship Agent in Providence

Providence, Dec. 18—A legal drama in connection with a gigantic immigration swindle was scheduled to open in U. S. District Court today with the arraignment of Peter Contonis, 40, wealthy New York steamship agent.

Contonis was indicted in connection with the issuance of fraudulent return permits, following his investigation at this port, Boston and New York.

The local investigation was in charge of Immigration Inspector William M. Clarke, and it is understood other arrests will follow.

For the past three or four months immigration inspectors have been checking up on returning residents to whom had been issued permits to visit foreign countries.

The officials found that many permits were being used by persons to whom they had not been issued, having been purchased abroad. Every permit bears a photograph of the holder, but according to officials, the photographs were changed when the permits were sold.

BURGLAR NEAR CAPTURE IN PROVIDENCE

Threatens Albert Coates and Sister in Their Home; Flees Just as the Police Arrive

Providence, R. I., Dec. 18—The mysterious "before-dawn burglar" who has run up a string of robberies in the last few days, briefly escaped capture early today.

Police surrounded the home of Albert Coates in Dover st. a few seconds after the armed and masked intruder had fled by the back door.

The burglar first confronted Coates' sister, Mrs. Norah D. Boynton, who was awakened in her room on the second floor by a flashlight beam across her face. In the reflected light she made out that the burglar was about 22 years old, held a revolver and had a silk handkerchief tied across the lower half of his face.

He ordered Mrs. Boynton to "Keep your mouth shut." But as he went nearer to her bed she screamed.

In a room across the hall Coates was awakened by his sister's screams and dashed into the hallway. There he was met by the burglar, who demanded his money.

Coates stepped into the bathroom to get his trousers, he said, just as Victoria Booth, the housekeeper, arrived on the scene in belief that someone was seriously ill.

The burglar fired a shot into the ceiling to frighten the household.

Meanwhile, Coates had slipped away and telephoned the police phone, putting in an emergency call for police.

They arrived just as the discomfited burglar departed—without loot.

JOBLESS RIOT IN GERMANY

Frankfort-on-Main, Dec. 18 (AP)—Continuous rioting took place during the night on Frankfort streets, with a number of casualties, while the city fathers debated a Christmas relief for the unemployed.

The city spent a night of terror. It was only after repeated charges by police, who were obliged to fire revolvers into the crowds, that they were able to master the situation in the neighborhood of City Hall. Even then the rioting elsewhere continued all night.

Crowds appeared almost simultaneously in all parts of the city, smashing shop windows and attempting to loot the shops. Police frequently were met in an awkward position, combatting not only the crowds in the streets but dodging stones and other missiles from windows and roofs.

HELD IN $10,000 BANK THEFT

Brockton, Dec. 18—Officials of the People's Savings Bank today awaited state bank examiners who are going over the books of the bank today to ascertain the exact amount of the supposed shortage resulting from the alleged juggling of the accounts by Chester L. Willis, 37, married, for the last eight years assistant treasurer of the bank.

While bank examiners were still going over his books, Willis was being arraigned in court today charged with larceny from the bank. He pleaded not guilty and his case was continued to Jan. 4.

Willis was arrested by Police Inspector George Chase of the bureau of criminal investigation at Brockton police headquarters at his home in L st., on the charge of larceny of over $100 from the bank.

He was taken to Brockton police headquarters, where he was booked. He was later bailed out by Frank L. Willis of Elm ave., this city.

As a result of a preliminary investigation, bank officials say that they have discovered that the loss at the bank will total $10,000, but this will not be definitely known until the bank examiners get through auditing the books.

Willis was arrested after Arthur T. Mooney, treasurer of the bank, was alleged to have discovered the shortage. Willis refused to talk at police headquarters.

Mexican Bandits Don't Rate So High

Mexico City, Dec. 18 (AP)—"Our modest banditry" is the way the newspaper Excelsior describes the disturbers of law and order in Mexico, after comparing such armed disturbances of the peace with bank robberies and bombings frequently reported here from American cities.

The editorial was inspired by an American reporter's question to President-elect Ortiz Rubio, asking whether banditry had been crushed in Mexico. In reply Senor Ortiz Rubio asked whether banditry had been checked in Chicago and Los Angeles.

Vare to Stay Out of Senate Contest

Philadelphia, Dec. 18 (AP)—William S. Vare, for many years leader of the Philadelphia Republican organization, is tired of politics and wants a complete rest, according to his physician, Dr. Ellwood R. Kirby.

Dr. Kirby said that because of Vare's health he would advise him not to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator in the May primaries and that unless an unforeseen political situation developed he felt certain Mr. Vare would withdraw from the contest.

Sees a Super Race Produced by Air-Mindedness

Philadelphia, Dec. 18—Miss Clara R. Mason, secretary of the Philadelphia Art Alliance, expects that air-mindedness will produce a super race of men and women. Air-mindedness she defines as the state of mind that came with the introduction of the airplane, the radio, the talking movie, the telephone and the automobile, things that shrank the world in the minds of men to almost a tenth its actual size.

SNOW MENACES MOTORISTS

Manchester, N. H., Dec. 18—Snow followed by rain which froze almost as soon as it struck the ground created considerable difficulty for motorists in this city today.

Motorist living off the main thoroughfares on the outskirts of the city, especially those living in the hilly sections east and north of the city, reached their destinations only after they had skidded innumerable times.

More than a score of minor automobile collisions had been reported at Manchester police headquarters. In none of these accidents was any serious injury to persons reported in this city.

Lord Byng Better

London, Dec. 18 (AP)—Lord Byng, head of the London police force, who has been suffering for some time with congestion of the lung, had a setback yesterday, but was reported better this afternoon.

FRENCH BAN ON HUB SHOW

The boycott against the international exhibition of art in glass and floor coverings being held at the Museum of Fine Arts by the French textile manufacturers has resulted in a conspicuous absence of their products in the rug section of the exhibition displayed in the galleries of the Renaissance court.

As a result the exhibition, which opens to the public today and continues daily through January 15, is less comprehensive than it might be, although most European countries other than France are well represented.

The French manufacturers, like their countrymen, designing women's dress modes, accuse the American manufacturers of plain thievery in copying their designs in floor coverings and other textile manufactures.

The charge, support for which is found by Prof. Charles R. Richards, in a forward to the catalogue of the exhibition, falls with especial severity on the shoulders of the New England manufacturers, leaders in the field.

Prof. Richards, a native of Boston, is the director of Cooper Union, New York. Prof. Richards, in the foreword, says France has declared a boycott not alone against this exhibition but other similar ones in this country.

Rumors of an impending boycott were current last summer, when word reached this country that a representative of the American Federation of Arts, under whose auspices the display was gathered, was having difficulty in France because some of the French manufacturers accused their American competitors of being pilfering "plagiarists," and worse.

Whist Party for Dorchester Kids

A whist party in aid of the needy children of the district will be held tonight at Eastern Star Hall, Virginia st., Dorchester, under the auspices of the Alfred E. Smith Club of Ward 13. Senator Joseph J. Mulhern is chairman of the committee in charge and is aided by the president of the club, John A. Connolly, and a large committee.

Slayer Jokes After Killing 3 in Homes

Romney, W. Va., Dec. 18 (AP)—Three men were killed, and two women and a girl wounded today by a man who visited each of them at their homes here, and shot them down with a shotgun.

Walter Crabtree, 30, was held for the slayings. He was alleged to have had in his possession a list of five names, including those of the three men slain and the sheriff.

The three slain were H. C. Inskeep, 50, the justice of the peace; Ben E. Miller, 55, deputy assessor and jailer, and Asa Wolford, 28.

Sheriff J. B. Saville, summoned to the home of Crabtree's father, found young Crabtree completing the cleaning of a shotgun.

Residents of the town said Crabtree had boasted recently of the "clean-up" he was going to make. He had been in trouble with authorities here at various times.

Sheriff Saville said the young man admitted the shootings and laughed and joked with his captors.

According to reports here, Prosecuting Attorney Rankin has asked Governor Conley for the aid of the state in preventing possible mob violence.

Noted Horsewoman Hurt

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 18 (AP)—Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Sr., of New York and Aiken, horsewoman of international repute, is in a Columbia hospital for treatment of an arm, broken while hunting in Virginia eight weeks ago. Physicians said her condition was satisfactory.

BIG 'MYSTERY MERGER' BARED

Waterbury, Ct., Dec. 18—A tentative $27,875,00 mystery merger became known today when the Scovill Manufacturing Co. announced a meeting of stockholders for Dec. 30 to vote on the proposal.

It is planned to authorize $25,000,000 in 15-year 5½ per cent convertible gold debenture notes and $12,875,000 in common stock at $25 a share for acquiring and expanding additional business.

The names of concerns to be merged have been withheld.

In its three local brass goods, pin and plumbing plants, the company employs approximately 5000 men and women. At Sturgis, Mich., it has a plumbing plant; at Newark, N. J., a metal fountain and accessory plant, and at Racine, Wis., a vacuum cleaner and small motor plant.

Hyde Park Folk to Honor C. A. Norton

Friends of Councillor-elect Clement A. Norton of Ward 18, which embraces Hyde Park, Mattapan and a section of Roslindale, are planning to give him a reception and testimonial shortly before he takes office the first of next month. Mr. Norton is superintendent of the Commonwealth Pier and former commander of the Cecil W. Fogg Post, A. L., of Hyde Park.

Poincare Goes Home

Paris, Dec. 18 (AP)—Former Premier Poincare, who underwent a second operation on Oct. 21 for a difficulty which had bothered him some time, left the hospital at noon today and returned to his home.

Lawyer Fights to Aid Man Who Saved Life

Framingham, Dec. 18—Years ago, when William Coulter was a district chief of the Boston fire department, he saved the life of John F. Hardy, then a fireman, now a law partner of Congressman John W. McCormack.

Now Attorney Hardy has gone on the firing line for his old chief, appearing as counsel for him at a hearing before the board of selectmen in which Coulter, now chief of the local fire department, was asked to show cause why he should not be removed from office.

Standing more than six feet in height, and with an erect bearing, this silver-haired chief went on the witness stand and answered the questions put to him by the man whose life he saved.

Charges against Chief Coulter, which had been preferred by the Selectmen, alleged his inability to perform the duties of his office and that public interests and the good of the service required his removal from office.

At the outset Atty. Hardy contended that the charges were vague, and of general character with no specifications. Later on he stated to the board that he was groping in the dark, as he did not know what the charges were.

A petition signed by 28 of the 40 members of the fire department was presented over the objection of Town Counsel Lemoine in this petition the signers went on record as stating that they felt Chief Coulter was fully competent to perform his duties, and that they had the utmost confidence in him.

Strong objection was also made by Town Counsel Lemoine to the introduction of many letters of praise and commendation which Chief Coulter had received during his eight years as chief of the fire department.

ROSZIKA DOLLY IS VINDICATED

Paris, Dec. 18—A magistrate today dismissed a complaint against Roszika Dolly, American actress, that she had obtained $280,000 in pearls under false pretenses.

Two necklaces that the actress refused to give up have been placed under sequestration and it is understood that complaining jewelers will start civil action to recover them.

The actress claimed that the necklaces had been given her by her husband, Mortimer Davis, son of the Canadian tobacco magnate, from whom she is separated.

Roslindale Man Hurt by Big Truck

Harry Simpson, 44, of 27 Tappan st., Roslindale, was seriously injured today when an express truck, backing up to the entrance of the General Express Company office in Otis st., struck him and pinned him against the building. At the Haymarket Relief Station he was found to be suffering a possible fracture of the lower spine and bruises.

Mabel Normand Is Slightly Improved

Los Angeles, Dec. 18 (AP)—Mabel Normand, once one of the screen's most prominent actresses, is slightly improved, her physician, Dr. Francis M. Pottenger, said today, but her condition still is serious. Miss Normand has been making a desperate fight against tuberculosis at a sanitarium in Monrovia, Cal.

"We have noticed a slight change recently," Dr. Pottenger said, "but Miss Normand's condition still is serious."

Saved From Gas Death by Policeman

Overcome by gas in their home at 135 K st., South Boston, Mrs. Sarafino Scalpino, her husband and two children were rescued by Patrolman John Diver, who traced the odor of gas to the house. He turned off the gas in the kitchen and rushed into a bedroom, where he picked up Anthony Scalpino, 13, and Charyza Scalpino. He passed them to a passing pedestrian. Then he assisted Mr. and Mrs. Scalpino to the police station. Photo shows Mrs. Scalpino and the two children. (Staff photo.)

HOW YOU CAN HELP MAIL

Christmas cards and greeting letters should be sent as far as possible, be posted at the main postoffice at Atlantic ave. and State st. or at postal stations, rather than in street letter boxes, in order to expedite delivery, according to information made by Postmaster Charles R. Gow.

Of late years, the greatest problem confronting postal workers, in handling the Christmas mail, has been the avalanche of cards that have all but overwhelmed the postal force during the days preceding the holiday and Col. Gow explains that if patrons will keep the letter boxes for ordinary mail, it will simplify things to a great extent.

The postmaster also expresses the hope that those posting greeting cards will tie them, face-up, in bundles fastened together with rubber bands so that they can be worked in volume and started on their way.

Among best places to mail such Christmas correspondence, it is said, in addition to the main postoffice, are the North Postal station, South Postal station and the Back Bay station on Stuart st. At these points, there are the shortest post delivery problems to meet and cards and letters can be dispatched far more quickly.

Yesterday was the last day according to the "dead line" program for sending parcel post to New York State, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

Tomorrow will be the zero hour for all Christmas parcel post for delivery throughout New England States. Tomorrow also will see all of the 2800 temporary clerks and carriers in Boston be engaged for the Christmas rush, on the job at all stations, throughout the Boston postal district, which comprises an area of about 270 square miles.

And from now until Christmas, 400 regulars, substitutes and extras, together with the entire force of railway mail clerks and hundreds of additional men assisting the railway mail officials at the Burlington avenue terminal will work with little let-up. All Christmas mail for local delivery must be posted by Midday night.

Oscar C. Roos Is Buried in New York

Funeral services for Oscar Christian Roos, former Boston resident and first radio editor of the Boston Sunday Advertiser, were held this afternoon from the Presbyterian Chapel, New York city. Mr. Roos died in New York Monday following an operation.

Masonic services were in charge of Guiding Star Lodge by arrangement with Rising Tide Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Boston, of which Mr. Roos was a member.

Burial was in Woodlawn cemetery.

Sues Brother-in-Law for Auto Injuries

Portland, Me., Dec. 18—Miss Gertrude M. Prinn of this city is suing her brother-in-law, Frank Cerice, boxing promoter, alleging negligent auto driving in Beverly, April 5, when the car was smashed and she suffered a broken arm, cuts and bruises.

Dr. Peter P. Johnson of the Beverly Hospital testified that he is of the opinion that Miss Prinn will never have a perfect arm again. Plaintiff told a superior court jury today that she had pleaded in vain with Cerice to slow down, but he refused.

CANDY MAKER GIVES TO KIDS

Thousands of needy kiddies in Greater Boston institutions will receive presents of candy at Christmas through the generosity of a candy manufacturer who loves all children and wants them to be happy at Yuletide.

Through the medium of the Boston Evening American, 86,000 packages of Monarch Teenie Weenie Toffies will be distributed to the boys and girls in the various charity institutions in this and neighboring cities and towns.

Monarch Teenie Weenie Toffies are famous throughout the country because of their purity. All youngsters are fond of them because they contain nothing but the finest ingredients such as pure creamery butter, fresh cream and pure cane sugar.

They have a delicious flavor, quite different from other candies. Another good feature about this super-quality candy is that each piece is wrapped in sanitary, glazed paper and the paper cartons and tin boxes in which it is sold is dust and germ-proof.

The man who makes this fine product knows how barren Christmas would be without candy and so the boys and girls in dozens of Greater Boston institutions are going to be happy because of his generosity. He wants all who can be reached to have a taste of Monarch Teenie Weenie Toffies on Christmas.

Sen. Walsh for Ryan City Leaguee Plan

Senator David I. Walsh is the latest to place the stamp of approval on the World League of Cities project, sponsored by William A. Ryan of Dorchester, window cleaner.

Replying to a letter sent him by Ryan outlining progress of the league, Senator Walsh assured the promoter of world peace that "the sentiments conveyed are heartily reciprocated."

Who Wants Some Candy?

Don't all call at once. Rita Dillon has only a small supply with her and is trying to stretch that to serve as many kiddies as possible. But she can get more, for the manufacturer has contributed thousands of packages of Monarch Teenie Weenie Toffies for distribution to boys and girls in Boston charity institutions. (Staff photo.)

GIRL PARTNERS IN AIR DISBAND

Los Angeles, Dec. 18 (AP)—The feminine endurance flight team of Bobbie Trout and Elinor Smith appeared to have split today with announcement that Miss Smith had departed suddenly for her home in New York.

The two girls recently remained aloft 42 hours 18 minutes, being forced to land by inability to refuel in the dark. Another attempt at a record was planned, and mechanics had been working on motors of the refueling planes in preparation for it.

Miss Smith's only explanation of her departure was that her grandmother was ill in Freeport, N. Y.

Miss Trout said that on the next flight Miss Smith will not be in the plane. During the last flight Miss Smith flew the ship, while Miss Trout handled the refueling hose. Miss Trout said that hereafter she will be at the controls with whoever she selects as her new partner handling the refueling.

Truck Driver Held for Drunkenness

Arrested for drunkenness after the truck he was driving crashed into the rear of a passenger car on Broadway, Chelsea, near Williams st., injuring the driver, William F. Knowles, 37, of Hampton Falls, N. H., is being held by the police for arraignment in Chelsea court today.

He will, according to Chelsea police, also be charged with operating while under the influence of liquor, operating so as to endanger, and refusing to stop on signal of an officer.

Boom! Auto Soars; Driver Flees; Cop Reproaches Him

Los Angeles, Dec. 18 (AP)—E. R. Rueter drove serenely down a busy street here yesterday and stopped when the traffic light turned red.

There was a terrible explosion. Rueter's car jumped straight up about two feet. As it bounded to a standstill Rueter jumped out and ran.

A policeman took a hasty look at the car and overtook Rueter two blocks away.

"Hey, wait!" implored the law. "It's all a mistake. Gas in a sewer. Explosion. Manhole lid blew up under your car. Come back. You're holding up traffic."

Rueter returned, but his car was hors de combat. Fire inspectors said someone probably would have been killed if the car had not stopped directly over the manhole.

Snook Will Not Be Executed Friday

Columbus, O., Dec. 18 (AP)—Failure of the Ohio Supreme Court today to pass on two motions for review of the case of Dr. James H. Snook, deposed Ohio State University professor, and slayer of Theora Hix, will not result Friday in his execution, it was said by court officials today.

The petition in error as of right filed by Dr. Snook's attorneys will automatically stay the electrocution, it was said, until the court has passed on it.

MIDWEST IS HIT BY BLIZZARD

Kansas City, Dec. 18 (AP)—Whipped by a freezing north wind, a snowstorm of near blizzard proportions settled over much of the Middle West today, with temperatures dropping to new seasons lows in southern states. The wind and cold dispelled a fog which had held southwestern air mail lines virtually at a standstill for 10 days.

Rain which fell here froze in solid sheets of ice over streets, buildings and vegetation as the thermometer dropped 10 degrees.

Oklahoma, which had been enjoying a belated Indian summer, shivered before a prairie gale which brought temperatures of 12 to 18 degrees. Texas was threatened with a cold wave today.

Reindeer Man to Hunt for Eielson

Nome, Alaska, Dec. 18 (AP)—Alfred J. Lomen, manager of the Lomen Reindeer Corporation, today was placed in full charge of operations to rescue Carl Ben Eielson and his mechanic, Earl Borland, missing in the vicinity of Seith Cape, Siberia, since November 8.

Swanson Moves to Make Byrd Admiral

Washington, Dec. 18 (INS)—Commander Richard E. Byrd, now exploring the South Pole, would be promoted to a rear admiral on the retired list of the navy under a bill introduced in the Senate today by Sen. Swanson (D.) of Virginia.

Chicago's $225,000 Plant Sold for $800

Chicago, Dec. 18 (AP)—The city's incinerator — built in 1914, never used and occasionally pointed to as "a monument to civic wastefulness," has been sold to salvagers for $800.

The original cost of the incinerator that never incinerated was $225,000.

water to serve three, and dry bread.

It will probably be their last Christmas on this earth, so Mr. GOODFELLOW please help them. You can turn a sorrowful Christmas into one of blessing and cheer if you will.

Get busy, Goodfellows, this is indeed a heartbreaking case. It came in today's grist to the GOODFELLOW EDITOR.

Here is another:

Dear Goodfellow Editor:

There are two old ladies, one 84 years, and the other 76 years. The eldest (the mother) has been bedridden for six years. The younger had a shock about two months ago and the doctors have no hope of her ever walking again. They haven't any money. The town gives them only enough for the rent and not a cent more.

A niece keeps house and cares for them, although she herself is ill and unable to work and earn money. Her fiance helps out with a few dollars a week to buy food for them all, but this only gives them one meal a day. He is at present out of work and unable to help them at Christmas time.

Won't someone please help these poor old people? I am at present out of work or I would help them myself. As it is I am lucky to have a mother to help me out. MRS. E.

Stoughton.

FATHERLESS CHILDREN

Dear Goodfellow Editor:

I am writing to you so you won't forget us this Christmas. I pray for you every night and for your goodness to us. God will help you. We haven't any father. He died seven years ago so there is just my mother.

I am 13 years old and I have a twin brother. My other brother is eight and my sister seven. Please don't forget us. We will be thankful for anything.

JAMES.

Boston.

Dear Goodfellow Editor:

I have heard and read a good deal about the Christmas Spirit and I am wondering if there really is such a thing. I am a painter and paper-hanger, also handy with tools in other mechanical trades. I am fifty years of age, and able to work as a man much younger. I have been trying to get work at anything for three months to support my wife and four small children.

The money I had saved is all gone, and we are about destitute. The poor kiddies will have to get along without Santa Claus this who could help us.

Hoping someone will be interested in our case, for which I year unless there is someone would be really grateful. I am,

Dorchester. T. C. J.

APPEALS FOR FRIEND

Dear Goodfellow Editor:

I am taking the liberty of sending in the name of a neighbor deserving your aid. Her husband has been out of work for over two months and they have three children under school age and are expecting another. She is very proud and would not write you herself. MRS. S.

Lynn.

Dear Goodfellow Editor:

I am a little girl, three years old, and I have a baby sister four months old. My daddy has been out of work for a long time and my mamma is not well since the baby came. I want to ask you if you will make us happy at Christmas, for my mamma and daddy won't be able to get us anything.

Sister and I have no warm clothes and my mamma said she would go to work, but she has no shoes. I have just had an operation on my throat. It is going to be a sad Christmas. We would be glad for anything you can send us. My mamma is writing for me.

HUB IS FLOODED WITH HOLIDAY BOOTLEG RUM

Boston will have plenty of pre-Christmas liquor, but at least half of it is "bad stuff."

Police and federal prohibition men are keenly on the alert for increased activities of bootlegging rings, for reports are circulating that large quantities of "reasonably priced" liquor are flooding the city.

Meanwhile, quality of the "joy-water" is fairly definitely known to federal chemists. Recently an analysis of 100 current samples was made.

These tests revealed that 27 per cent of the Boston liquor contained wood alcohol, and was therefore "dangerous."

These tests further revealed that 47 per cent of the liquor samples contained denatured alcohol.

A federal man said that Boston liquor usually is "very much worse" than that of western states. He pointed out that New England ranks third in legal consumption of alcohol for industrial purposes.

"Therefore Boston bootleggers are close to the source of supply of denatured alcohol," he added.

Reports by a New York press association as to prices of liquor in different cities contained prices for Boston. These were given as:

"Scotch, $45 a case; bourbon, $55; rye, $55; cordials, $75, and gin, $30 to $60 a case."

Asked if these prices were typical of Boston quotations, police and federal men informally commented that they are about right.

One federal man said that very little cordial was sold in Boston, as he had seen only three or four cases in the past two years.

"Boston is like the rest of the country—it has the whiskey taste habit and no other kind of liquor will suffice," he added.

Three Charged With Diamond Robbery

Providence, Dec. 18 (AP)—William Lessard, 35, of 12 Church st., Lawrence, Mass.; his brother, John J. Lessard, 45, and George Rowan, 36, both of New Hampshire, were held under $25,000 bail each in Superior court today when they pleaded not guilty to a charge of robbery of a $1,500 diamond ring from a Pawtucket shoe merchant.

The men were arrested early on the morning of Nov. 13 within a short time after the robbery of Thomas J. Moran, who had been followed to his home in Pawtucket. The trio, police said, used a fake "toy pistol."

POLICE COSTS DOUBLE UNDER PROHIBITION

Washington, Dec. 18 (INS)—Operating costs of police department in cities of over 30,000 population increased from $75,143,000 in 1919 the last year before official prohibition to $161,501,500 in 1927, Bennett Mead of the Census Bureau said today in an analysis of law enforcement.

Part of this increase was attributed to growth of population, although the per capita costs leaped from $2.19 in 1919 to $4.22 in 1927 the last year for which accurate statistics were available, indicating the aggravation of crime conditions.

In 1905, the first year surveyed, operation and maintenance of these police departments cost $38,258,000, or a per capita expenditure of $1.52.

Prohibition costs were not listed separately for the municipalities although they were segregated by states. In 1927, for dry enforcement, state governments expended only $685,855, compared to $7,426,500 for other police activities. For prohibition $324,620 was spent for state enforcement in the east north central states and $138,119 in the South Atlantic, expenditures in other groups having been comparatively small.

Mead called attention in the bitter controversy between advocates and opponents of prohibition centering the significance of the marked increase in arrests for drunkenness, which have occurred in many localities during recent years.

'Dakota Dan' on Trail of Indian 'Russeau'

"Before I get through I am going to prove that I am a Yankee and not the Indian they tried to prove me" writes "Dakota Dan" Russell of Browning, Mont., in a letter to the Boston Evening American giving further details of his intention to renew his fight in Massachusetts courts to show that he is Daniel Blake Russell of Melrose.

Insisting he is not "Jim Russeau," an Indian imposter, as ruled by the courts of this state during his famous fight for the Russell fortune, "Dakota Dan" says he is engaged in obtaining additional data on Russeau's life. This includes documentary evidence from Washington that Russeau served in the United States army and was discharged on account of epilepsy.

"I am going to Boston when I get certain information I am seeking," writes "Dakota Dan." "I am not seeking the money and property left by my father in Melrose. I want to clear my good name and the good names of my friends who testified in my behalf.

"I am planning to engage a well-known detective agency to help me secure the information that will prove beyond doubt that I am not Jim Russeau, but am the person I have always claimed to be—Daniel Blake Russell, and that William Russell of Melrose was my father.

"I don't care for the money left by my father. That means nothing to me. My good name and my honor mean everything to me, however, and that's what I'm going to fight for, that and the good name and honor of my friends who testified in my behalf and know I have been wronged."

The attempt of "Dakota Dan" to prove himself Daniel Blake Russell was the longest "identity" trial ever conducted in this country. The stake was a son's portion of a $5000,000 estate.

Skirts for Spring 6 Inches Below Knee

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—Skirts for spring are displayed at a fashion exhibition of the United Cloak and Suit Designers, are six inches below the knee. The showing precedes the usual Paris revelation of forthcoming modes by more than a month.

Up rises Jacques Worth of Paris with a 267-word telegram in the papers expressing astonishment over formation of a fashion league by New York society women to assist man-made styles. All that he and other such creators do is to interpret women. He is applying for membership in the league.

J. S. ALEXANDER, BANKER, QUITS

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—James S. Alexander, chairman of the board of directors of the Guaranty Trust Company since its merge with the National Bank of Commerce several months ago, resigned today.

In tendering his resignation, Alexander pointed out that he was concluding 30 years of business activity and 20 years as an officer of the National Bank of Commerce.

Furthermore, as he was nearing the retirement age, set for officers of the National Bank of Commerce during his term as president, he felt that the present occasion was a proper one for him to ask for relief from executive and business responsibilities.

Doctors to Test Boy Slayer's Sanity

Kingston, N. Y., Dec. 15 (INS)—Blonde-haired Lawrence Wilbur, 15, self-imposed master of a lonely, mysterious home in the foothills of the Catskills in Sight Hollow, near Kingston, was to be examined by alienists today to decide whether punishment or mercy shall be his lot for killing his young brother and sister with his father's bear hunting rifle.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR 50

Exeter, N. H., Dec. 18 (AP) Dr. Lewis Perry, principal of Phillips Exeter Academy, today announced the award of more than 50 scholarships with a total value of approximately $25,000.

TELLS PLANS OF 'GOLD STAR' PILGRIMAGE

Washington, Dec. 18—Plans for the Gold Star Mothers' pilgrimage to France have been revealed for the first time by Maj.-Gen. B. F. Cheatham, quartermaster-general of the army.

Gold star mothers and wives of American soldiers who died during the World War and now sleep in the great national cemeteries of Europe will begin the pilgrimage May 7 next, Gen. Cheatham said.

On that date the first contingent of 200 will sail for a two weeks' tour of the cemeteries, battlefields and shrines of the war in which their loved ones made the supreme sacrifice.

Thereafter, contingents of the same number will sail each week.

The women will be grouped according to States. The pilgrimages will be under escort of army officials.

Over 6000 war mothers and wives are expected to make the tours, all expenses from the time they leave their homes until they return being paid by the federal government under provision of the Gold Star Mothers' act passed at the last session of Congress.

Gen. Cheatham made known the War Department plans for the pilgrimage at a hearing of the House military affairs committee which has before it additional bills designed to liberalize the purposes of the act.

The additional bills are sponsored by Representatives Andrew and Luce of Massachusetts, Fish of New York, Johnson of South Dakota, Welch of California and Williams of Texas.

They call for extension of the pilgrimage to include fathers, foster-mothers and sisters of the dead soldiers.

Another clause extends the same privilege to mothers and wives of soldiers who lost their lives at sea or "the missing," whose names are simply inscribed on the chapels of the cemeteries where American heroes are buried.

Italy's King Will Decorate Rep. Tilson

Washington, Dec. 18 (AP)—Representative Tilson of Connecticut, House Republican leader, tonight will become a grand officer of the Crown of Italy.

Ambassador Martino of Italy will decorate him at a ceremony at the Italian embassy. The award was made to Mr. Tilson by King Victor Emmanuel of Italy "as a token of appreciation for your friendly feelings and interest toward the Italian people."

Tilson has more than 60,000 Italians in his district in Connecticut and his interest in their affairs was brought to the attention of the King of Italy, who expressed a desire to show his appreciation.

Babe's Future a Problem

Evelyn Victoria Leano is the babe's name, but that is about all that has been decided about her. Evelyn is only a week old and was born in the Cottage Hospital in San Rafael, Cal. Her mother, Mrs. Frances Culp Leano, shown with her, was removed from San Quentin prison, where she is serving a two to five year term, so that the baby might not be born in prison. Now the mother must go back to her cell, and what to do with the baby is the problem. (International Newsreel photo.)

Oh, Venus; Can It Be You're Just Fat Lady?

New York, Dec. 18 (INS)—Venus is in a tantrum.

For 2000 years men have been circulating armless pictures and statues of her, and even longer ago than that they started telling spicy bits of her past out loud.

And, as if that were not enough, Uncle Sam is now trying to make her out an undersized frump.

The bureau of standards says the lady who has been holding up her scanty draperies by strength of will these 2000 years is just another plump woman. Her measurements are: Bust, 36 inches; hips, 39.

The official measurements of the average American woman are a 37-inch bust and 37-inch hips, which makes Venus just two sizes too large. No wonder she's sore. Are women shrinking? Is dieting changing the national figure? Must we look forward to a day when all women will be simply emaciated frames to hang clothes on?

Neves McMein, who draws some of the girls on the magazine covers, doesn't believe it.

"My dressmaker told me," she said, "that she had changed her standard measurements from 36 to 38. She says women are growing larger, not smaller. That seemed logical to me. The healthy lives we lead lead to make us bigger and stronger."

Jeanne Frontul, playing in "A Wonderful Night," thinks 34 inches around the bust is enough for any woman.

"Any girl who wears a 36 is beginning to show signs of obesity," she says, licking the classic beauties right in the teeth.

FIND ARNOLD 'PLAYED WITH OTHER LOVE'

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—A Supreme Court jury that had been instructed not to confuse loose manners with loose morals today found Ray H. Arnold, wealthy investment broker, guilty of misconduct in a divorce suit brought by Mrs. Beasie S. Arnold.

With the exception of one charge, on which it was unable to agree, it exonerated her of similar charges preferred by him in a counter suit.

The jury deliberated 11 hours. It found Arnold guilty on two questions of misconduct with Mrs. Margaret Crenshaw West of Crestwood, N. Y., widow of Stuart P. West, financial writer. On another question involving Mrs. West it failed to agree.

It exonerated Mrs. Arnold on all except one question which involved alleged misconduct with Charles J. Hann, Jr., one of her lawyers. Arnold had also charged her with misconduct with the late Charles Pritsch, former representative.

A motion to set the verdict aside on the ground of insufficient evidence and order a new trial was made by Kenneth Walser, personal attorney for Mrs. West.

Justice Philip J. McCook set Saturday for argument on the motion. If he denies the motion, Justice McCook will take up the question of granting a divorce in a special term of Supreme Court.

In his charge to the jury, Justice McCook stressed that social conditions and manners change from era to era.

"You should not draw an inference of guilt when you can draw an inference of innocence," he said. "What may have seemed conclusive proof of guilt once does not now. Do not confuse loose manners with loose morals."

Adult Education Lags in U. S., Women Hear

New Morality About Childhood Is Needed, Says Prof. Morgan

ALL human progress is substantially dependent on adult education.

The indoctrination of chidren with religious or other prejudices kills any chance of education in adult life. It is one of the crimes of the ages. We need a new morality about childhood.

Around these central ideas, Prof. Arthur Morgan, president of Antioch College, discussed the broad and expansive subject of adult education. His address followed one on the same topic by Miss Hilda Smith, director of the committee on the Affiliated Summer School for Women Workers in Industry.

The remarks were made at a luncheon in Miss Smith's honor given by the Women's City Club at the clubhouse. She spoke on "Adult Education," stating that the United States is far behind Europe in the development of such, and that "all over the world the adult education movement has had a mushroom growth since the war."

Miss Smith outlined three types of adult education now in existence: The disorganized variety, which is represented by casual attendance at lectures and other efforts at cultural self-advancement; the type which is directed toward general social advancement and those organized endeavors which are committed to some definite principal. She cited as an example of the latter, the Danish Folk high school, which strives toward the evolution of better citizenship among workers.

Prof. Morgan, taking up the discussion at this point, said that "the education of children is more or less repetition of what earlier generations also learned as children. It is static, but learning and human affairs are advanced by people who appraise what they learn as children in the light of mature experience."

Miss Frances Curtis, president, presided and introduced as the other speakers Charles F. D. Belden, director of the Boston Public Library, and James A. Moyer of the university extension service of the Boston public schools. The luncheon-meeting was held under the auspices of the subcommittee on education of which Mrs. Cornelia Stratton Parker is the chairman.

BOSTON CHAPTER, HADASSAH

Eight hundred women, gathered together at the annual tea of the Boston Chapter of Hadassah, silently pledged assurance that the $30,000 campaign unofficially launched at the tea would be realized when the annual donors' luncheon takes place in March. "At that time the campaign will officially make its bow to the general public with the possibility of the full amount being announced.

Mrs. Louis Goldberg, president of the Boston Chapter, welcoming the crowded ballroom of women at the Hotel Statler, told of the pride with which Hadassah is accepted as representative of American Jewish womanhood throughout the civilized world.

Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America, had 50,000 women enrolled in its membership with its ultimate goal the rehabilitation of Palestine as a national homeland for the Jew.

The medical relief which this organization brought to Palestine some years ago is among the most notable achievements of nations and it is generally conceded by Jews everywhere that Hadassah women did more, medically, to cure and prevent the spread of tracoma and malaria than any other agency of relief.

Mrs. Samuel W. Myers, former Boston president, assumed chairmanship of the remainder of the program, introducing as the speaker of the afternoon Dr. Nathan Ratnoff, organizer and president of the American physicians' committee of the Hebrew University and head of the staff of the Jewish Maternity Hospital in New York.

Dr. Ratnoff lauded the work of Hadassah in Palestine, reviewing the work of the organization in the days when nine out of ten inhabitants were one-eyed.

"I thought everybody was flirting with me," he said, "for almost everybody had one eye closed but I soon came to realize that they were tracoma-stricken and that literally Hadassah and the medical unit it sent into Palestine, opened both their eyes that they might see the light of day."

The women were asked to sign either white or blue pledge cards, which in either event would mean money for the $30,000 quota of the Boston chapter for the national organization's contribution to the general outline of medical pursuits in the homeland.

Mrs. H. H. Rubenovitz spoke. So did Mrs. Alex Burmon. The two added a word of encouragement for the drive.

A musical pageant and a group of character songs completed the program.

SENIOR LEAGUE, YOUNG JUDEA

Under the auspices of this organization, the Jewish youth groups of the city will gather together under one banner Thursday night at the Menorah Institute, Elm Hill ave., Roxbury, to review Palestinian development and pledge their allegiance to the roll call, which ends December 31.

At the meeting motion pictures reviewing 10 years of outstanding achievement in Palestine are to be shown. Mrs. Sudney Epstein is to talk briefly on Palestine, Nathan Richman is to discuss current events and Mary Epstein will give readings.

DORCHESTER HOME-MAKERS' CLUB

A Christmas tree and party for the children of the neighborhood will be conducted by the members of the Dorchester Mothers' and Homemakers' Club tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m. in the auditorium of the high school at Codman sq. The children have been called on to furnish their own entertainment and no doubt the expressions of ageless minds and alert bodies will result. There is to be carol singing, readings, dancing, after which Santa Claus, himself, in person, will deliver to each child a box of candy. Mrs. Mildred Spilane, president, has charge of the party and Mrs. Grace Crowley Russell will be at the piano.

DORCHESTER WOMAN'S CLUB

Presidents and officers of the 21 clubs in the fourth district were the special guests of the Dorchester Woman's Club at Presidents' Day, held at the clubhouse, Centre st., Dorchester. Mrs. Henry W. Davis welcomed the visitors, extending the greetings and hospitality of the club. There were representatives of the clubs in Allston, Brookline, Brighton, Dorchester, Jamaica Plain and Roxbury.

MELROSE WOMAN'S CLUB

Children's parties are very much in order these days and generally throughout the state a Christmas holiday has been declared in their honor. So with this group who tomorrow will hold a children's afternoon. There is to be a bird mimic and a song recital, illustrated with colored lantern slides to which has been affixed the name of Edward Lear. Each club member may invite one child of 12 years of age or younger, the rules have it. To the party the Mother's Club and the Garden Club have also been invited. The time is 2:30 p. m. and the place, the Methodist Parish House. Mrs. W. H. Cotting who wields the gavel for this club will officiate.

Nancy Brewster

Children's Interests Come First in Vacation Fight

School teachers of Somerville have been denied their request for a change in the Christmas vacation. The teachers desired the vacation at the close of school at noon Tuesday of next week and to end January 2. The school committee fixed the vacation to begin at the close of school on Friday afternoon of this week and end on December 30.

It was argued that the two days previous to Christmas should be allowed the children to earn pin money for the holiday.

Outdoor Sports Won Rockefeller Bride

Philadelphia, Dec. 18 (AP)—A romance that began several years ago at Northeast Harbor, a Maine summer resort, has resulted in the engagement of Miss Mary T. Clark of this city and Nelson A. Rockefeller, second son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

In announcing the engagement Miss Clark's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hamilton Clark, said the wedding would not take place until some time after next June," when Mr. Rockefeller will have graduated from Dartmouth College. Present plans are for a honeymoon in Europe.

Miss Clark is 22 and Rockefeller 21. Their romance began in the Maine resort where both families spend their summers, Mr. Clark said, and an association which started through the interest of both in outdoor sports blossomed into an engagement.

Miss Clark made her debut in 1926 soon after her graduation from the Fox craft school in Virginia. She is an accomplished sportswoman, favoring riding, swimming, tennis and basketball. She has given considerable time to theatrical productions in behalf of social work. Her father is a member of a Philadelphia law firm. Her maternal grandfather was George D. Roberts, a former president of the Pennsylvania Railroad. She is one of two girls in a family of eight children.

Rockefeller has specialized in economics at Dartmouth. When he begins his business career he expects to start in his father's office

TO FORSAKE STAGE FOR SCREEN

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

(Copyright, 1929, Universal Service, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—That permanent glorifier of the American flag, George M. Cohan, has hooked through passage in Hollywood. There, I tell you, are exciting times in our movies. George M. Cohan comes here to write, direct and produce a story for Al Jolson, and incidentally for United Artists. What would be better for Al and for George?

Joseph Schenck, who is now on the high seas, enroute to Paris, Berlin and London, negotiated with Cohan before he sailed. The actual contract was signed after Mr. Schenck left the U. S. A., but such is matter. United Artists gets him.

Mr. Cohan must finish his starring contract with "Gambler," before he comes to Hollywood, and let me tell you, he has a real success in "Gambler." Maybe he will also make that for U. A. We will soon have all Broadway's pets parked out here. Isn't life in the talkies wonderful these days? Do I sound Pollyannaish? Of course, George Cohan made a picture for Paramount in the silent days but we only think film history since dialogue came into our lives.

METRO - GOLDWYN - MAYER owns great store by George Hill and rightly. He knows his movies and he seldom fails when handed a big assignment. George's next job is to make a story of prison outbreaks to learn the cause and film a picture, showing some of the scenes that actually happen. He is now at San Quentin getting his data on reasons that lead to these outbreaks. Wallace Beery's the lead. There will be a great picture ahead. The two violent outbreaks, one at Canon City, Colo., and the other in Auburn, N. Y., may have been the inspiration of the idea, and just in case any other prison has the urge to borrow this idea, it is all catalogued with the Hays' organization.

GEORGE JESSEL PICKS LILA LEE AGAIN AS HIS LEADING LADY

By HARRIS MORGAN

HERE'S a story that makes you understand why George Jessel acts like a human being in "Love, Live and Laugh," now at the Keith-Albee. Mr. Jessel does his role naturally, and it is the human element in his make-up that gives his performance conviction. The story slides back time 18 years, to a day when a 10-year old boy and a man were walking down the street in Union Hill, N. J.

THE boy was complaining.

"Mr. Edwards," he said, "that girl I sing my song to is not so good—she doesn't pay any attention, and when I can't get a reaction I sing like a dill pickle."

"Oh, is that so?" inquired Gus Edwards, with just a touch of sarcasm in his voice. "So you want to pick out a leading ladies already, eh? Well, if you're so smart, let's see you do it."

"All right."

How about that girl there?" the boy pointed to a little girl, about four years old, playing with a doll on a porch. The girl was very pretty and had big dark eyes. "Why can't we get her?" the boy insisted. "You're not such a bad picker at that," Edwards answered. He knocked at the door of the house, introduced himself to the little girl's mother. The mother was very much opposed to the idea of her four-year-old daughter going on the stage. But after a family conference, at which the small boy was present as one of the chief arguers, the little girl was signed to a contract.

THE little girl was Lila Lee and the boy was George Jessel. Lila was promptly christened "Cuddles" for stage purposes and for years played opposite Jessel in various Gus Edwards' vaudeville acts. Then Jessel's voice changed and he quit Edwards, striking out for himself on the stage. The girl continued with Edwards for a while, and then came to Hollywood, where she later became a motion picture star.

RECENTLY when Jessel was signed to star in "Love, Live and Laugh," the question of a leading lady arose.

A dozen suggestions were made, the girls called in and each one Jessel turned thumbs down.

"They won't do," he said.

"Well, if you're so smart, pick your own leading lady," was the challenging suggestion.

Jessel sent for Lila Lee. She was given a contract to play opposite Jessel.

"IT'S the first time we've been together for years," Jessel said, "and I'm as thrilled as Miss Lee is. I always said when I was a kid that she was the best leading lady I ever had, and I haven't changed my mind after all these years."

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

New York, Dec. 18.

LAST summer, when Charles Dillingham was in London, he went to see "Cochran's British revue. The leading man, Charles Collins, was the hit of the show. Straightway Dillingham signed him to play in Fred Stone's show, "Ripples," which goes into rehearsal next week.

Collins arrived this week on the S. S. Olympic and he was introduced to Fred Stone, Mrs. Stone and daughters, Dorothy and Paula.

"You don't look like an Englishman," Stone remarked.

"I'm not," was Collins' reply. "I was born in Oklahoma."

Stone recalled another Oklahoma chap named Will Rogers who helped him out last season, and he slapped Collins on the shoulder and remarked:

"Then you belong in the Stone show!"

The American Laboratory Theater's production of Tchekov's "Three Sisters," with Maria Germanova directing and playing the role of Masha, will open on Wednesday, January 8, at the Theater Auditorium, 222 East 58th st. It will have 12 performances, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of four succeeding weeks.

"Top Speed," the new musical comedy by Guy Bolton, Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, opened at the Shubert Theater in Newark for a week. Its New York premiere will take place at Chanin's 46th St. Theater on Christmas night.

With the Philadelphia critics spreading the good word that Harry Ruby's music is "something to write home about" and heralding the featured trio, Lester Allen, Irene Delroy and Paul Frawley, box office interest has developed to such an extent that the house is entirely sold out, an unusually good omen for the traditionally low week before Christmas.

* * *

Roy D'Arcy, the motion picture actor, who will be remembered for his performances in "The Merry Widow," "Beverley of Graustark" and other films, will head the cast engaged for the new midnight comedietas to be presented at the Candlelight, 12 East Sixtieth st., when this new form of entertainment opens the latter part of December. Supporting Mr. D'Arcy will be such players as Vivienne Osborne, Marion Lessing, Clara Bonamanyi, Franklin Fox and Henry Gurvey.

PANTOMIME IS FIRST STEP

LYNN FONTANNE, now playing in "Meteor," now at the Tremont, was born in London and made her first appearance on the stage in pantomime at the Drury Lane Theater. She came to America in 1910 to appear with Lauretta Taylor in several plays. Her first real success was in the role of Dulcinea in "Dulcy" in 1921. Following that came "Sweet Nell of Old Drury" and "In Love With Love." Miss Fontanne, with her husband, Alfred Lunt, joined the Theater Guild in 1924 to appear in "The Guardsman," and they have been with that organization ever since. Her other famous appearances with the Guild include "Pygmalion," "Joan Clegg," "Arms and the Man," "At Mrs. Beams," "Caprice" and "Strange Interlude."

Lynn Fontanne

Miss Fontanne has been playing all this year in "Caprice," which opened a year ago at the Hollis.

NOVARRO WILL SING, DANCE

RAMON NOVARRO'S dancing artistry will be combined with his singing ability in his new talking picture, based upon the Spanish romantic classic, "The House of Troy," directed by Robert Z. Leonard.

In the film, Novarro will dance a new tango with Dorothy Jordan. The number was created by himself and modernized from the traditional dance of old Spain.

Novarro, it is recalled, began his career as a dancer on the stage and his terpsichorean skill led Rex Ingraham to bring him into motion pictures.

BEAUTY FROM BALKANS IS STATE STAR

THE old adage about beautiful girls does not hold true in the case of gorgeous Litka Kademova, featured dancer at Loew's State. For example, it took but two years for this young woman to master the English language after landing here from Bulgaria and then but a single year to assimilate enough of Ned Weyburn's dancing instructions to win her a featured spot on the musical comedy stage.

Yet during this time, the youthful beauty was using her spare hours to pose for magazine cover artists in order to pay her tuition.

Miss Kademova was born in Pavlovac, Bulgaria, and came to this country with her mother in 1922. Her father was killed in the World War. Neither knew a word of English, so Litka was sent to school and later to Ned Weyburn's dancing school. One year was all the dancing master needed and the next year found Miss Kademova as a featured dancer in the musical "Time."

She has also appeared in "White Lights" and "Rivsie."

Balkan Beauty

LITKA KADEMOVA

The Balkans is the habitat of this little girl, who is a featured dancer on Loew's State stage. She stepped into the "big time" show business when still an immigrant.

McLaglen-Lowe Team

Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe will work together again, this time in "Broad Minded," which Raoul Walsh will direct for Fox upon his return from Europe, where he hopes to find a new feminine foil for them. The film will be in Grandeur.

DOT MACKAILL DOTES ON FANCIES

"I DON'T like onions or garlic on my own or anyone's breath, and I'm not afraid to tell it to the world," says Dorothy Mackaill, star of "The Great Divide," at the Fenway and Scollay.

"I don't like 'collegiate' sox on men. Gartered sox for me. In the same way, I hate to see a woman whose stockings have crooked seams up the back.

"Male soprano voices are distasteful to me. So are all yodelers.

"I don't like the sort of man who puts on a woman's hat in order to clown at a party. Perhaps he'd be all right if he discontinued this habit and its usual accompaniment, a running fire of stale quips and puns.

"Probably he wouldn't approve of me in white canvas beach pants and a bathing suit, riding a bicycle to the ocean for a morning swim.

"I have other prejudices by the dozen, and I'm proud of them. I also like and respect the prejudices of other folk. Prejudices show that their owner has an alert mind.

"It's just like counting your change, this thing of criticising, silently or audibly, the things that pass in at your ears, eyes, nose and touch system in the sanctum of your brain. Don't just grin and say they're all good.

"If you do, you're just doing an injustice to the really good things by not giving them the distinction they deserve. It's like people. Be everybody's friend, and the really worthwhile folk will not value your friendship. Nothing is truer than Aesop's fable of the man, the boy and the donkey, in which the man tried to please everybody.

"That's why prejudices are healthy, sane, normal and intelligent."

OLD HANGAR IS MENACE ON AIRPORT

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Remove that hangar!

This is the slogan of all the fliers on the Boston municipal airport.

And when the whole gang starts kicking, it is time to pay a bit of attention to them.

The hangar in question is the old Boston Airport Corp. building, which now sits in the exact middle of the new Boston municipal airport, and which threatens to kill somebody sooner or later unless it is removed.

There was one occasion in which the pilots of two airplanes, both cabin monoplanes, narrowly escaped death because of this building, and Monday of this week was enough to cause any spectator who didn't know anything about flying, to turn his back and await a crash.

On that day the wind was blowing southeast, according to the wind indicator on top of the almost completed Administration Building, which is all of seventy-five feet in the air, and said wind was blowing northeast on the ground, according to the wind-sock next to the floodlight on the ground.

The consequence was that airplanes were taking off on both sides of the airport, with the exception of a building belonging to the Boston Airport Development Corp., standing right in the way.

Airport Patrolman Daniel Eldridge was running around in his flivver trying to straighten out the matter, but it was impossible with all the planes flying. Eldridge was working under the orders of Airport Supt. "Eddie" Edson, but with ten airplanes making landings, it was an impossible feat to straighten them all out and get them flying in one direction.

We understand that the City Council of Boston has the final action before this pestiferous building is moved. The sum in question is $15,000, and when somebody's life is at stake, what is this amount of money?

Our contemporary, Dan Rochford of the Transcript, has started a campaign to have Eddie O'Toole's "Cottage by the Sea" preserved for future reference, starting said campaign of $200 with a donation of $10. Such a campaign is noteworthy, but why start such a thing when there is an absolute handicap to the present airport in the form of the old B. A. C. hangar?

Granted we will kick in 10 bucks to match Dan's for the preservation of O'Toole's old shack, if for no other reason than the many times we have warmed our feet on his fire back in '23 and '24. But, let's stay right with the times, and get the airport fit for traffic, which it is not at present, with this old building occupying the main seat.

After all safety of the passengers at our airport, comes the sentiment for the preservation of old times.

According to everybody on the airport, let's get this old hangar off the middle of the field righ now!

NEW PLANES IN SPRING

Alexander J. Jones, chief of maintenance of the Bay State Flying Service, comes up to the plate with the information that the big, re-engined American Eagle, owned by the company, will not be brought out of storage, after a complete overhaul, until the spring rolls around. Bay State, according to Jones, has a couple of American Eagle Phesians coming from the factory when the first warm breezes blow, and the company will again assume its place among the foremost purveyors of commercial planes in New England.

The shifts are still being made in the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service, the latest being the appointment of Alton H. Sherman as chief of student instruction. Adolph M. Backstrom, who was formerly chief of student instruction, is expected to be transferred to another station of Curtiss-Wright in the same capacity. Lucky is the station that wins "Backy."

KELLNER GOES SOUTH

Yes, and the evacuation of Boston still goes on. We mean as far as the lucky boys go. We mean the taking off for the warm Southland regions, where one never sees snow or ice, and where one can fly in summer weather all winter and never know the joy of battling with a bit of tough flying conditions.

The latest to follow Charlie Arnold and Val Chick is W. W. "Bill" Kellner, a student of Curtiss-Wright, who has decided that the warm temperatures of the South would be more conducive of flying to build up time than our own New England weather.

At Graduation

Mr. Richard Klofkorn, advertising manager of the H. P. Hood Company, who was master of ceremonies at the Martha Lee graduations.

Winter winds and rain failed to dampen the enthusiasm or the attendance at the twin graduation parties in the Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery.

On Tuesday evening even the window sills were occupied by Boston's bright and beautiful brides and business girls and the exercises of the Homemakers' Class today were equally well attended, graduates coming from all over New England to receive the diplomas for which they have waited 10 long weeks.

These complimentary cooking classes certainly seem to fill a real need with both the novice and more experienced homemaker as evidence of which the January classes are already over-enrolled and applications are being filed for the April classes.

Mr. Richard Klofkorn, advertising manager of H. P. Hood Co., turned the movies into up-to-date "talkies" through an interesting chat during the presentation of the picture and afterwards played host with four of the famous Hood's Ice Cream Cakes, awarded as gifts and Hood's Ice Cream for the entire company. The accompanying Sunshine English Style Biscuits were served through the courtesy of the Loose Wiles Biscuit Co.

Other merchants who contributed generously to the success of the graduation exercises were Mr. Frank Archer, Sr., President of the Archer Company of America, with ten cases of Moxie. Moxie Lolly Pops and Moxie Rags; the Connolly Ovens from the Connolly Stamping Co. and two cases of complete assortments of La Choy Chinese Food Products.

Cocomalt came from the R. B. Davis Co.; Campfire Mallo Whip and Marshmallows, from the Campfire Marshmallow Co., and a generous supply of Pabst-ett, from the Pabst Corporation of Milwaukee (through the courtesy of Miss Annette Snapper).

Make Plans for Labor Convention

Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, with John P. Frey and John Manning, of the general executive board, held a lengthy conference with the committee of 15 appointed by the Boston Central Labor Union for a discussion of preliminary plans for the convention of the A. F. of L. here in October.

The discussion was entirely about convention headquarters, hall and hotel accommodations. A subcommittee, consisting of Nathan Stidd, president of the Boston Central Labor Union and chairman of the committee, E. A. Johnson and P. Harry Jennings, will meet Morrison and his colleagues today to assist in arranging for convention headquarters.

O'Fallon Valuation Hearing to Be Jan. 23

Washington, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today notified parties to the commission's investigation of railroad valuation that it would hear argument in Washington, Jan. 23, on the principles to be followed in fixing a valuation on the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railway.

The O'Fallon line was selected by the commission and carriers as a vehicle for testing the validity of the commission's principles of valuing railroads, and when the Supreme court passed upon the case last spring the commission was ordered to alter its program.

Pair Held as "Fences"

Father and son, Samuel and Jacob Bourstein of Lexington, with a store in Beverly st., North End, were found guilty by a Suffolk County jury of receiving $100 pounds of stolen copper wire, the property of the Western Electric Company. Each was held in $5000 bail for disposition on January 8.

Mystery Poison Girl Ready to Go Home

Washington, Dec. 18 (INS)—Antoinette Brewster Ruggles, until a few days ago Washington's mystery girl and divorced daughter of the Rev. George W. Brewster of Selma, Cal., recovering in Emergency Hospital from poison she took in St. John's church, will return to California.

She told police when she had fully recovered consciousness she had taken the poison because her family had disowned her. Her mother, divorced from her clergyman father, lives in Oakland, Cal., and when her identity was established, telegraphed the hospital sending love.

18 Women Shot in Africa by British

London, Dec. 18 (AP)—Eighteen women were shot by British police and troops in Southeast Nigeria, Great Britain's West African colony, during native disorders on Dec. 12.

Dr. D. Shiels, undersecretary of state for the colonies told a questioner in the House of Commons today that British authorities had been having trouble in dealing with native unrest in the southeastern section.

This had resulted in a clash between natives and troops and police in which there were 18 casualties among the natives, though it was not known how many were fatal.

Sharkey Challenges Dempsey to Meet Him in Miami

HUB HEAVY SAYS TIGER IS AFRAID

"I WOULD rather meet Jack Dempsey than any other heavyweight in the world, for I know I can knock him out."

This was the statement of Jack Sharkey, the Boston boxer, when informed today that Dempsey still believes that he can defeat the Hub big boy.

"I am under contract to box at Miami, Fla., for the Madison Sq. Garden in February, and I would rather meet Dempsey than any one else," declared Sharkey.

If Dempsey thinks he is still such a great fighter, here is an opportunity to do a favor for his old friend, Bill Carey, and at the same time give Miami an outstanding boxing attraction.

"Last winter in Florida, when Dempsey was acting for Madison Sq. Garden in my fight with Stribling, I agreed to meet him during the summer in New York, but he refused the match on the ground that I punched too hard and that the fire had left his legs.

"Dempsey told Johnny Buckley that he would never agree to meet me again in view of the punishment he received in the first two rounds of our contest in New York two years ago.

"I believe I am a much better fighter now than when I last met Dempsey, and I feel that I could stop him in five rounds. I do not believe, however, that Dempsey will ever agree to meet me again. He realizes that I can knock him out and he does not care to risk such a defeat.

"Bad as I May Be, I Can Still Lick Sharkey"—Dempsey

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, Dec. 18.—"Bad as I may be, I can still beat Sharkey." In these slighting accents, Jack Dempsey today consigned the lusting heavyweight of the times to the limbo of the linsburgers and, by tacit suggestion, the entire division with him.

"They are pretty bad," said he. "How good am I? It doesn't matter. I can't be as bad as the average 'good' heavyweight of today."

He said today that he might fight this year if "some crazy promoter offered me a million dollars." I said that if a promoter was that crazy, he wouldn't have a million dollars. This seemed to terminate the discussion.

As for the Sharkey matter, it didn't take long to talk about that, either.

"I wouldn't mind sinking a few more in his body," said John. He was almost wistful about it.

"Do I think I can lick him again? Why not? He's got the same body and I've got the same two hands. I'd like to make him this proposition: That we agree before the fight that no elbow of foul is to be made by either fighter and that only the referee is to be the judge of whether a punch is low or not. If the referee doesn't call it, then we are to go on fighting. That's what two fighters are supposed to do, anyhow.

"I don't have to hit a man low to hurt him."

TIGERS ARE OUT FOR REVENGE

Revenge will be the object of the Boston Tigers when they tackle the New Haven Eagles in the third game of the season's series in Boston Garden tomorrow night. To date the Eagles are the only team in the league the Tigers have been unable to beat.

The New Haven entry won the opening game of the season in New Haven, 2 to 1, and later humbled the Tigers, 6 to 2, on Thanksgiving eve when Billy Boucher went on a spree and scored three goals.

The Eagles, by virtue of these and other triumphs are parading along at the top of the league. The race has been tremendously close up to this time and all five clubs are within reach of the top. Tigers, in third position, are well-placed to hop ahead if they strike their stride this week.

New Haven theoretically will be at a disadvantage in the impending game for the team is scheduled to play in Philadelphia tonight and the long hop to Boston probably will not do the team a great deal of good.

Tigers have been in Boston seven days on end and have been practicing daily at the Garden. They are sure to be in the best condition of the season.

The game will be the last under the free forward-passing code and the Tigers will be out to improve their batting averages.

FLATLEY SAYS

ART SHIRES has discovered that fighting isn't just a cream-skimming racket. Art had plenty of publicity and a million offers, so he got himself ready to jump his manager, Chicago Jim Mullen. He was going with a bigger boss, one who could get him more dough. Art had to battle once for Mullen, who knew he was getting the works. So Jim dug up the huge Trafino, and the great Shires has been knocked off the screen.

Art, had he been willing to go along, might have cleaned up quarter of a million, had he toasted along with a few more Dangerous Dan Dalys. But, like a lot more wouldbe fighters, he wanted it all at once. So he got it, right on the point of the bank roll.

HACK WILSON would never fight outdoors. He might have the sun in his corner.

THE Shires' ruination will bring a lot of comfort to the minds of the baseball magnates. They were beginning to fret. Their noble ath-a-letes were getting set to go after more money. With $10000 ring offers flying around, the husky young men were all ready to leap over the fences.

Plenty of good scrappers in baseball; burly boys who have half a dozen dangerous men with a season's for the fun of it. Wouldn't have taken the hawks of the ring racket long to an gle them out.

A ball player, starting to fight is a natural box office attraction. A bird like Shires gets more in a couple of preliminary bouts than he collected for a whole season of baseball.

If pugnacious athletes got to finding that out, the baseball owners would have been up against it, just when they were hoping to cut down top heavy salary lists.

Shires started somethun. The ath-a-letes will get 12-month contracts pretty soon. Then the owners will have control of their winter activities.

THAT Yale earthquake was just the echo of Rawson and Shires going down on the same evening believe it or not, Mr. Ripley. Eddie Mead, Yale manager, Rooney for ten on the Arena brawl. Al Lippe, who handles Friedman, has managed fighters in every known part of the world hope never dies; Alex McLean is still trying to find another Jack Johnson. But they don't happen that often—Shikat, the wheeler, was in the German submarine service in the war, and was decorated by the Kaiser—Suzanne Lenglen wants to become an amateur again; more money in it. 100 Cadets are going to the Coast a ready army.

THIS, by George Phair, is worthy of repetition:

"I lost on a foul," said the wild young man.

And his voice was full of heat. For he was a simple boxing fan Who paid for a ringside seat.

REAL selling for stock players in winter sports; everything is at least 15 or 20 below—women applicants lead men in new license tests; this is the woman's season—Helen Wills' wife says he can't fight; she should know—Campolo, we read, is on his way back here without a contract that gives him a chance—they might invite Jack Sharkey down to take on that Miami high football team —a year ago today that Sunday baseball thing broke—Hogan has signed with the Giants—he did his Christmas shopping early—Missouri football star gets the gate for pilfering; he had to be given up—five out of six still have it—that Christmas list—pro golfers at Catalina have nothing on the rest of us; cinch to break fifty these days.

Jackie Fields collected $7,500 for his end of the Camilla Jones. He's taking his fund where he finds it.

IT OCCURS to us that a free drink is no bargain—that hockey is rough enough for even the Shires that was—that Garden fans don't get plenty of fighting by just going to the Bruin games, no wonder the place sells out—that hockey has arrived; the box scores are as much in demand all over the country as the baseball summaries

Shires Is Thinking of Retiring From Ring

CHICAGO, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Great Arthur Shires is almost convinced that as a professional fighter he is a good first baseman. He may retire from the ring.

Since he dropped the decision to George Trafton after five rounds Monday night, Shires has been doing a lot of sleeping and no little thinking and he is considering forgetting about fighting and getting in shape for baseball.

"Maybe professional fighting isn't my game after all," the great one orated to friends who came to offer condolences and quick remedies for the marks Trafton put on his face. "I have got about all I can out of it now—a few thousand dollars and a fat two weeks' vaudeville contract. Unless someone gets me darn mad with his challenges, I may quit."

It is understood King Arthur's vaudeville calls for a salary of $2000 a week.

Meanwhile, Promoter Jim Mullen was being besieged with requests for a chance to meet the "bad boy" of the White Sox in the ring. Baseball players, football players and a few boxers who haven't had a fight for a decade or more wanted to fight him. Al Nesser, veteran guard on the Akron, Ohio, professional football team, wants to fight Trafton for the "professional football championship of the world."

St. Mary's to Play in N. Y. November 15

San Francisco, Dec. 18 (AP)—The "Mighty Mikes" of St. Mary's will meet the football eleven of Fordham University at the Polo Grounds, New York city, next November 15. Negotiations for the game were completed today.

St. Mary's emerged from the 1929 season with the best record of any major football team on the coast, and the best defensive showing of any college eleven in the country. The Gaels went through the season unbeaten and tied but once.

Linehan Wins Yale Prize

New Haven Conn., Dec. 18.—Fred J. Linehan of Westfield, Mass., Yale 1931, was awarded the Norman Stewart Hall Scholarship at Yale Hall gave his life to save a fellow skater, who had fallen through the ice near Atlantic City, just a year ago.

Although the fund is not fully complete, it yields $500 and will be awarded annually to the student who most nearly approaches the standard of character and sportsmanship which Norman exemplified. Hall was a football guard and all-round track star for two years at Yale, and previously at the Roxbury School in Cheshire. Linehan is also a member of football, basketball and baseball at Yale three years, although crippled in mid-season in football.

CYCLONE BURNS TO REFEREE

Cy "Cyclone" Burns, a famous Boston wrestler, will referee the Dick Shikat-George Hagen heavyweight match at the Mechanics Building tomorrow night. Announcement to this effect has been made by Promoter Billy Avery.

Burns, head coach of the Allover Academy boxing and wrestling squads, was selected to be the third man in the ring in the all-important tussle after Hagen objected to the referee who officiated in his bout with Jim McMillen here last week. Avery could have obtained Lou Magnolia, famous New York boxing official, but the popular Texan passed him up when he learned he could secure Burns.

Promoter Avery looks for a capacity throng to witness the bout, which is attracting attention throughout New England.

The Hagen-Shikat affair is only one of five great bouts listed. In the semifinal George Calza, the Italian idol, will engage Charley Blackstock, the whirlwind Texan, in a finish match, while in the third number Hans Steinke and Joe "Bull" Komar will settle an old feud.

The second match brings together Carl Poiello, the Lithuanian favorite, and Joey Mario, the latest Italian sensation. In the opener Tommy Record, popular Boston schoolboy wrestling and boxing instructor, will go to the mat against Carl Hill, the Brockton Finn.

Tickets for the all-star show are now on sale at the Horace Partridge and Wright & Ditson sporting goods stores.

Wilson Serves Notice on Fans

Chicago, Dec. 18 (AP) — Hack Wilson, the Burly Cub outfielder, is in training at his winter home in Martinsburg, W. Va., but not for a ring battle with Arthur "The Great" Shires.

He is training his explosive temper so he can laugh off the shouts of "Sunny Boy" that are almost certain to greet him every time he steps on a diamond next season.

"It's going to be tough listening to them call me 'Sunny Boy' because I lost that fly ball in the sun during that world series game in Philadelphia," Hack said, "but it's all a part of the racket. I'm training myself to control my temper and laugh it off."

Hack is in perfect condition, weighing 195 pounds, after getting in suiting," Hack added.

NEW CODE IS NEEDED IN HOCKEY

By BILL GRIMES

NOW that the "inside homes," whose inception came by allowing players to enter the attacking zone before the puck carrier, has been curtailed, the lacrosse element has been noticably eliminated from the popular winter game.

But, until such a time as the rule book is completely rewritten, hockey will continue to be the one sport with such a variance of rule interpretations as to be always in danger of collapse, or at least a loss of prestige.

Bill Grimes

Although the hockey rule book goes into detail regarding duties of officials, rinks and dressing rooms, it is lacking as to definitions of the most important phase of the game—penalties.

Of course, many of the penalties are self-explanatory, such as carrying the stick above the shoulders, holding, hooking, body checking into the boards, loafing and tripping. But if approved rulings were supplemented by the board of governors as they are in football, and a complete definition attached to every foul, much of the present trouble would be avoidable.

There are many rules in the book, which are far from clear to the officials, players or fans. And at least one infraction—charging—cannot be found in the book. It is a well known fact that if a player takes more than one step towards an opponent, he is subjecting himself to a minor penalty. But, try and find a rule covering this foul in the book.

RULE REVISION NEEDED

In football, every rule is explained in detail and the penalty for infractions are clearly specified. Compared with the gridiron game, hockey rules are few and simple and could be thoroughly revised by copying the football guide.

Without exception the managers of hockey clubs are protesting against the over abundance of fouls. Under the new rules any team playing short handed is greatly handicapped and it is almost fatal to have two men off the ice.

Tripping is the most outstanding foul and, because of the poor judgment of the officials, only about 10 per cent of the players, who have been sent to the box for this infraction, have really tripped an opponent. The present interpretation of the tripping rule is a comparatively new version.

In the old days, if a player skated over or fell over a stick laid on the ice to hook a puck or to make an opponent step over, such a player was penalized. He is never penalized. Such a style of play is made with no intention of tripping an opponent, and if the puck carrier is not clever enough to step over the stick, it should be his tough luck. Now, all that is necessary to do to get an opponent sent to the box, is for a carrier to fall when an opponent puts a stick in his path.

TRIPPING RULE VAGUE

The only time a player should be sent off for tripping is when, after putting his stick in the road of the puck carrier, he deliberately pulls it away as it collides with an opponent.

A clear interpretation of the rule on tripping would not only uniform the decisions of the officials from all over, but eliminate many so-called fouls and an equal number of whistles.

Another rule which is badly in need of an approved ruling or rather a ruling, as it is not covered in the book, is the blocking of a goal tenders vision. Some referees have ruled that a player can cross in front of the goal and that is not actually being shot. The Rangers are using play where the players come in front of the goal minder before the goal has been shot. Manager Lester Patrick gets a ruling on this play from the officials before the game and if they agree that the puck must be in the air before a penalty can be called, the Rangers make life miserable for the goalie.

There has been so much controversy over the hockey rules that Fres Frank Calder should appoint a rule committee to compile a new and complete code, such as governs American football.

May Resign

Gus Tebell probably will resign as football coach at North Carolina State.

Harvard Sextet Opens Season Against B. U. Tonight

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

RIVALS WILL BATTLE AT ARENA

Lineup at Arena

HARVARD		BOSTON UNIVERSITY
Wood, jw	.....	rw, Whitmore
Lakin, rw	.....	lw, Lombard
Putnam, c	.....	c, Currier
Batchelder, ld	.....	rd, Elliot
Garrison, rd	.....	ld, Bergholtz
Ellis, g	.....	g, Grodberg

Harvard spares: Crosby, Cross, Cunningham, Hale, Harding, Hallowell, Frothingham, Draper, Maya, Stubbs, McGregor, Wetmore.

B. U. spares: Arkin, Perron, Barefsky, Nelson, French, Clem, Weafer, Goodale.

Game called 8:15.

HARVARD'S varsity hockey six will open its season against Boston University at the Arena tonight in the first of a two-game series. Tonight's encounter will mark the first clash on the runners in two years between these old rivals and a close, hard-fought game is looked for.

Coach Joe Stubbs of the Crimson has many veterans from last year's sturdy squad available this winter and in addition, several likely prospects from the freshman team of a year ago, including Barry Wood and Eddie Mayo who were backfield stars on Arnold Horween's football team last fall.

The Crimson skaters have been on the ice for three weeks and are in good shape for the opening clash and should exhibit a dazzling brand of hockey this evening. Harvard is cut for reserves and has three full teams to throw into the fray against the Terriers.

The abundance of capable spares in the Cantabs' roster may have an important bearing on the outcome since it likely to wear down the B. U. team which has at best, only a half dozen good reserves.

Elliot Putnam, halfback on the football team, will captain and play center for the Crimson and he will be flanked by Barry Wood and Charlie Lakin. Both Putnam and Lakin are veterans, but Wood is making his first start for the Harvard ice team.

Sam Batchelder and Johnny Garrison, a pair of veteran players, will be at the points tonight and should make a good showing in their initial encounter. Batchelder is an experienced defense man but Garrison is a converted forward and is making his first bid for his new berth.

Ellis, in goal, is a newcomer, but he has shown up well in recent scrimmages and can be expected to handle things in a capable manner around the nets.

Boston University has failed to win a game yet this winter and has tested defeat three times. With such a background in face of the clash with the Crimson, the admitted class of the college hockey clubs, the B. U. puckters are likely to rise to new heights and exhibit their best brand of hockey which will keep them well up in the running.

Wayland Vaughan, the Terrier coach, will stand pat on the same lineup that has represented B. U. in past encounters. Ben Currier will face off and will be flanked by Dick Lombard and Holmes Whitmore; Buck Bergholtz and Bob Elliot will be at the points, and Bert Grodberg in goal.

SENATORS' SCORING ACE COUNTS

Hec Kilrea, dashing Ottawa wing, is shown splitting the famed Bruins' defense and scoring the Senators' first goal in the hectic battle at the Garden. Thompson came out in an attempt to grab the puck and Kilrea lifted it over his shoulder and into the strings.

DE GLANE IS SET FOR GANSON

With both man-maulers nursing the idea that they will leave the ring with the winner's spoils after the smoke of conflict clears away, Lionel LeGlane, sensational French heavyweight, and Jack Ganson the California star, will wind up training today for their finish struggle at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night.

Each "bone-crusher" feels that he will crash the mat aspirations of the other to the edification of the large crowd of grappling disciples expected to view the fuss. De-Glane is eager to win believing such a feat will take him just a little bit closer to a shot at the king's crown.

Ganson, too, realizes that much is in store for the victor. This pair of mountains will go to a positive finish, with two out of three falls deciding the winner. Mat followers will get another look at Ed George in action in the semi-windup. He tackles Bob Wilkie of Buffalo, who surpasses him in experience. George has been forging to the front in a manner not unlike that which carried Gus Sonnenberg into the sport spotlight prior to his victory over Strangler Lewis.

Wilkie has sent word to the effect that he hopes to turn back the spectacular athlete who formerly attended the University of Michigan. It should be a slam-bang affair all the way.

In keeping with giving the fans an attractive program, Promoter Paul Bowser has signed Dr. Lurich of Germany to meet Ivan Ludlow and Count Zaryhoff, giant Russian, to engage Sam Skorsky in two of the supporting bouts.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

WITHOUT a single exception, every fan treked out of the Garden halls convinced that the Bruins had it over the Senators like a tent. By the way, it was the twentieth victory for the Bruins in the last 22 starts.

If all games were played along the lines of last night's engagement there would be no necessity of any change in the rules.

It was uncomfortably hot in the Garden last night, even for the spectators. How the players ever stood up under the heat is a mystery. It was particularly hard on the Ottawa players, who are accustomed to a cold rink.

Marty Barry, who was the leading goal getter of the Can-Am League last season, came into his own against Ottawa. He was started at center ice, and if he can continue to display the form of last night, he is a fixture.

There is not a fraction of an ounce of guile in King Clancy's makeup. The King was traveling just as fast and fighting just as hard with the score 5 to 1 against the Senators as he was when the teams were on even terms.

The officials took a goal away from each team. The Bruins scored in the first period on a double pass but it was called back by Bobby Hewitson. Mickey MacKay passed to George Owen, just as he entered the attacking zone, and George shipped the disc across to Bill Carson who, in turn, drove it into the net.

Grosvenor and Toohey teamed up for a goal just as the bell rang to close the opening period, but, although the officials took the puck back to center ice for a face off, they refused to allow the score when informed that the period had ended. If they did not hear the bell, how were they able to decide whether the puck was in the goal before or after the bell had rung?

Bill Carson had two fine opportunities to score in the first period but he was traveling just a little too fast to complete the pass. Bill did crash through with a tally in the second chapter.

The Cooney Weiland, Joe Lamb fisticuff might have been an aftermath of the unintentional cut the little Bruin gave Lamb in Ottawa.

The major penalty inflicted upon Cooney Weiland gave the Bruins an anxious five minutes.

The largest crowd of the season witnessed the game and it was the best contest of the year. The rush seat boys began to gather outside of the Garden about 3 o'clock despite the rains we will get.

Lionel Hitchman and Bill Toohey collided in the second period and for a few seconds it looked like a double knockout. However, Hitch managed to stagger to his feet but Toohey was assisted from the ice. He was badly shaken up and did not return until the final chapter.

MALONEY SIGNS TO BOX WINNER OF GARDEN GO

JIMMY MALONEY, South Boston heavyweight, plans to make his next start in the ring here early in the new year against either Armand Emanuel, Jewish heavyweight from Los Angeles, or Jack Gagnon of Allston, who clash in one of the 10-round features of the triple windup at the Boston Garden Friday night.

Maloney accepted the terms offered by the Garden to meet the winner of this bout and with such an incentive offered, no doubt it will result in one of the most furious heavyweight contests of the season.

Emanuel and Gagnon insist that he'll be selected to meet Maloney. Emanuel has looked forward for the bout to a meeting with the South Boston idol and when such a match was finally clinched, an injury soon before the contest blocked his chances of getting into the ring.

This occurred in New York where Emanuel and Maloney were carded to meet. Emanuel however injured an arm and was forced to step aside. It will be recalled that Gagnon then replaced him and won from Maloney on a foul.

Emanuel, one of the cleverest heavyweights in the ring today, always has insisted that he can beat Maloney. The smiling Hebrew from the Coast, who had Tommy Loughran on the floor twice, when they met in the West, is regarded as the exact counterpart of the light heavyweight champion. Emanuel has given up all hope of winning Loughran's crown, however, as he now weighs 190 pounds.

The Los Angeles boy will be seen in action in his first gymnasium session in the Hub today. He reports here fit for his hardest fight for nothing will satisfy him but a decisive victory over Gagnon. Emanuel is planning to remain in the Hub for a few months if he successfully hurdles the Allston opponent.

IF Hub fans still enjoy the prospects of a knockout finish, they seems to be furnished for them on the second ten-round bout on the card when Arthur Flynn of Lawrence faces Willie Oster of Charlestown. Oster replaced Charlie Belanger, who sustained an injured eye in training yet the insertion of Oster indicates that Hub fans will be treated to such punching thrills as they seldom see.

Oster, although not one of the best punchers that ever invaded the Hub has knockout victims include Billy Frankfort, Emory Rianch, Johnny Curro, Johnny Joe Ferrieri, Bobby Brown, Tommy Drury, Tiger Tom Dixon (twice) and Johnny Havelock and some of the ringsiders thought he was entitled to the verdict in his last meeting with Joe Zelinsky.

Husky-Engineer Hockey Game Off

Neil Raymond Northeastern hockey coach, announced that he has been informed by the Arena management that the Northeastern-Tech hockey game, which was to have opened the Huskies season, would have to be cancelled as Dartmouth objected to a double header.

As the Dartmouth-University Club contest was scheduled, first there's nothing for the Huskies and Beavers to do except get together on another date.

MR. BOSTON

by JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

"Why all the excitement?" asked Mr. Boston.

"Want to be in condition on that I can get plenty of Christmas chicken," chirped Sharkey, good naturedly. "Just got back from New Hampshire, where I shot a flock of ducks."

"This is the second time I've been in the gym since I fought Tommy Loughran. I want to keep tuned up so that I'll be in condition whenever they name as my opponent for the Battle of the Palms at Miami, Fla., in February. I understand that the Garden has Victorion Campolo and Tuffy Griffith under consideration as possible opponents.

"I intend to fight three or four times next year. I am particularly anxious to get a crack at Max Schmeling. I feel that I could knock out the German heavyweight. I am also willing to take on Phil Scott if the promoters wish me to do so. If I mopped up Campolo, Schmeling and Scott I don't believe anybody then could deny that I'm the world's heavyweight champion."

"I WISH you would convey my Christmas greetings to the boxing fans of Boston and New England. I wish them all the prosperity in the world and confidence at this time of the year."

"I WAS in Bill Carey's office at the New York Garden on the day of the Scott-Von Porat bout," said Mr. Boston. Sharkey dropped in to hello Carey. Soon did laughing stock it was the first meeting of the rival heavyweights since they exchanged blows in the dressing room after their quartet at the Yankee Stadium.

"Instead of talking fight Loughran was interested in gaining information from Sharkey about the amount of time it took the gate of Father Power in Malden. Tommy had told how Jack had rented the shine to pray that the sight in the right eye of his daughter Dorothy be restored.

"LATER Loughran told Sharkey that the right-hand punch which knocked him out was the most terrific wallop he ever received.

"When you meet Schmeling you will also knock him out," went on Loughran. That will make me look pretty good.

"HOPE springs eternal in the human breast. I met Alex Maclean at the office of the Boston Garden. He was singing the praises of Neil Chisby, California heavyweight, who clashes with Tony Galento of Orange N. J., in one of the 10-round bouts at the Garden on Friday night.

"I don't claim Chisby, a real good battler, is as good as Jack Johnson, whom I managed in the early days of his career," said Maclean, "but he is, nevertheless, a pretty fair heavyweight and will lick a lot of these fellows who think they are front runners. Chisby has been training in the Hub for a couple of months and is ready to shoot for the big money.

"The oddmakers will watch the progress of Chisby with interest.

"I MET Joe Walcott clogging up the corridors at the New York Garden last week. The former welterweight champion told me he has a nephew who is a fine ring prospect. Joe made a fortune in the ring, but like Johnson, Dixon, Langford, Robinson and other famous colored boxers he was not able to hold on to his money.

"HARRY WILLS, who is back in the ring again, is the only negro boxer who is on Easy Street. Wills invested his ring earnings in apartment houses in New York City. Increased real estate values and rentals have netted the former Black Menace a tidy fortune. It is estimated that Wills is worth $300,000."

Henderson Goes to Yankee Club

Jersey City, Dec. 18—The release of Bill Henderson, right-hand pitcher, to the New York Yankees was announced today by Frank Donnelly, treasurer of the Jersey City club of the International League. The home club will receive cash and players for the transfer.

ARMY ELEVEN STARTS FOR COAST

At 3 o'clock this afternoon 110 cadets, coaches, trainer, friends and newspapermen start for Palo Alto where on December 28 the boys will battle it out with Glenn S. Warner's Leland Stanford team.

This is probably the most pretentious football train that ever hauled a squad on a transcontinental junket. There are 8 coaches all told. Two of the baggage coaches have been equipped with hot and cold water, shower baths for the boys after their several workouts along the route. Special dynamos have been installed in one of the baggage cars to furnish power for Frank Wandell's lamps, etc. The train is but a hotel on wheels.

MANY WORKOUTS

The Kaydet special will pull in to Chicago at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, and tomorrow afternoon the squad will have an hour's workout at Knox College. Then will be another workout at Stanford, Kansas, and still another at Needle, California. Several more will start at once and the return trip will be taken over in jollity and a final send off in

There are eight secret trips arranged for the party and one of the least interesting of the stops will be the Hopi Indian dance at Kayenta on the Grand Canon.

Capt. Biff Jones sending his team into the last game he will direct for a long time breathes deep with no fear. If I mopped up Campolo, Schmeling and Scott I don't believe anybody then could deny that I'm the world's heavyweight champion.

HUMBER IN SHAPE.

One thing stands out in that Notre Dame game and that is the heroic work of the line.

The Irish never broke through past the Kaydet 30-yard line but just a bit of luck in the game here and there might have turned the tide and the year for Rockne's men.

CARNERA IS VICTOR OVER DIENER

LONDON, Dec. 18—Primo Carnera, the Italian heavyweight, stopped Franz Diener of Germany in the sixth round of their bout in Albert Hall.

Hopelessly outweighed by 123 pounds Diener became merely a punching bag for the Italian. Diener weighed in at only 161 pounds while Carnera's tonnage was 284.

Carnera who is slowly learning a few of the finer points of boxing wore his opponent down without making much use of them. Without displaying anything like a knockout punch and without good footwork or finer details, he hooked, jabbed and cuffed Diener until he had the German groggy late in the sixth round. The referee stopped the one-sided affair awarding the decision to Carnera.

Albert Hall, which was packed with a crowd of 8000 persons, never had seen a little fighter stand up under such a beating as Diener apparently was taking. He always came back smiling and when the fight was ended he was still ready to continue.

Carnera played with his little opponent through the early part of the fight like a big bear playing with a cub and he reached the end without a sign of distress. At the end Diener received as big an ovation as was given to the victor.

In preliminaries, the Portuguese giant, Joe Santa, drew with Jack Stanley of England in 10 rounds and Bobby Shields, heavyweight champion of Scotland, defeated Jack Maurer of Switzerland on points in six rounds.

CARNERA TO BOX MALONEY

An announcement indicating that Primo Carnera gigantic Italian heavyweight would make his American debut in Boston was made today by Eddie Mack, Boston Garden boxing promoter.

Mack stated that Leon C. and Walter Friedman, Carnera European managers, had cabled him acceptance of a match with Jimmy Maloney of Boston on March 17. The ace footster Italian who weighs 260 pounds, will sail from England on December 24 and arrive in New York on the steamship Berengaria on December 31.

The Boston promoter, who will have to obtain the approval of Billy Duffy and Pete Stone, Carnera's New York representatives, before making the match with Maloney, certainly predicted it would draw $90,000 with seats ranging from $2 to $10.

Tech Favored to Beat Harvard

With the Engineers strongly favored to defeat Harvard, a situation which is indeed rare and almost without precedent, Tech and Harvard get together on the basketball court tonight.

The Tech five will attempt to make tonight's court fiesta four straight in the win column. With victories over Newport Naval Training Base, New Bedford Textile and Revere, the Engineers are anxious to add Harvard to the list of victims.

The Cantabs, however, are not quite willing to concede Tech's chances of a win. Although tonight's game will be the second this season for the Crimson, they have already reached a point of high perfection.

West End Five to Play Chelsea Team

The West End Five will play the strong Chelsea Y. M. C. A. team on Saturday.

Chelsea will bring down one of the strongest teams in years, composed of mostly former Chelsea high school stars.

The strong West End Seconds will play the Cambridge Comets. The local quintet will play this season some of the strongest fives in the basketball field, consisting of Worcester Boys' Club, Fall River Boys' Club, New Bedford Boys' Club, Brockton Y. M. C. A., Chelsea Y. M. C. A., Boston Y. M. H. A., Chelsea Evening high school and many others.

PLAN TRANSFER OF VICIOUS PRISONERS

Buffalo, N. Y. Dec. 18 (AP)—A special dispatch to the Courier-Express today from Albany, N. Y., says that Dr. Raymond F. C. Kiely, state commissioner of correction, already is putting into effect a plan to transfer vicious prisoners from Auburn and Sing Sing state prisons to Dannemora and Clinton prisons.

Fifteen hundred convicts were removed from Sing Sing to Clinton prison at Dannemora last month and 16 others from Sing Sing at the same time were taken to Great Meadows prison at Comstock. Several more transfers will be made this week and Auburn will be included among the prisons which will be given relief.

Action followed telephone conference between Dr. Kiely and the wardens of the two upstate penal institutions. The wardens pointed out that they lacked accommodations for additional criminals, especially those of the type which it was proposed to transfer, but it is understood this condition will be alleviated by transfer of a considerable number of short term convicts to other places.

BIG SHIP READY TO LIGHT CITY

Tacoma, Dec. 18 (AP)—Power from the mighty generators of the airplane carrier Lexington will be fed into the Tacoma Municipal Power System, today.

Tested out last night, the temporary electrical connections between the ship and the city system were found efficient for transmission of the 20,000 kilowatts of power that will be taken from the ship 12 hours each day for the next 30 days.

One of the Lexington's power for which the city will pay the government 1 cent per kilowatt hour, in addition to a demand charge of $60,000 a month, will permit the municipality to shut down one of its hydro-electric plants, allowing the water behind Cushman dam to rise 50 normal height. Water all the dam now has been lowered to a dangerous level as the result of prolonged drouth. Rain broke the drouth only a few days ago.

The city will resell the current from the Lexington's generators at a loss. Municipal rates for electricity are in some cases as low as 3 mills a kilowatt hour.

Coffee Boils Over, Gas Kills Woman

Worcester, Dec. 18—Mrs. Mary Lavigne, 61, of Commonwealth ave., was found dead in the gas-filled kitchen of her home by her son, Michael, when he returned from work.

A sauce pan full of coffee which was on top of an open gas burner on the kitchen range caused the police to believe that the coffee boiled over and extinguished the gas flame, resulting in Mrs Lavigne's death.

Hultman MayBeNext State Fire Marshal

Fire Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman is among those mentioned for appointment by Gov. Allen as a successor to the late State Fire Marshal George C. Neal.

The fact that the governor is not likely to appoint a state fire marshal at the present time furnishes a basis in the minds of some for the surmise that he may be planning to wait until Hultman has ceased to be fire commissioner of Boston.

Sand Truck Skids, Hits Two Autos

Northampton, Dec. 18—Sent out on the highways for the purpose of preventing accidents, a truck loaded with sand skidded into two other motor vehicles.

The accidents took place on Tacksbop Hill as the sand truck, proceeding cautiously, crept down the slope with its load. No one was injured.

"Handless Forger" Gets Year's Term

Chicago, Dec. 18—Judge Max Luster sentenced Frank Gressmeyer, who has no hands, to a year's imprisonment for forgery.

Gressmeyer, who professes to "live by his wits" since both his hands were amputated in a factory accident, was also fined $1000 after his father-in-law, Paul Wassmuth, proved that Gressmeyer had forged his name to a check by holding a pen under his stumps.

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

What Has Happened

MARY PATRICIA DAWN beautiful, young brunette, meets the lad of her dreams in the person of Guy Elliott, aviator. Guy is developing a perfect airplane in the plant of old William Bryce. Happy days follow. Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce, young widow of Bryce's son, with her seductive lure.

Pat's father dies and Mrs. Dawn gives her life savings to Bryce to invest, but Guy gets them back. Bryce stops financing the plane factory. Suddenly three persons vanish, Guy, Pat and Mrs. Bryce's little boy. A note is received demanding $20,000 ransom for the boy. The place where the money is left is watched by the police, but is taken mysteriously, presumably by the kidnapers. Guy is found and arrested kidnaper of Bryce's grandson. Meanwhile, the captors of Pat and the boy flew for hours finally to land in a crash in the rocky depths of the Grand Canyon.

Now Read On

CHAPTER 39.

LIKE one with feet caught in railroad tracks and the locomotive comes roaring on, in blind, throbbing terror like that, Pat saw the pilot approach. Had he found the way out? In the morning they would leave?

But before that she would be disposed of—a smashed broken body on the dark canyon floor. Impossible that she should stand here helpless while death bore down.

Her mind flew about seeking escape. Should she plead with them? This tall, thin fellow who now leaned against the cabin door waiting with cold intensity his partner's arrival, could doom or save her. Should she let him know she'd overheard his plan, beg him not to carry it out? Life is sweet—oh, wildly precious. Why should he dash it from her?

She drew harsh, tearing breaths in an effort to gain her voice. She squeezed Billy's hand and shook her head impatiently when he tried to pull her away.

Finally, pointing to the pilot "Wonder if he's found a way out for us?"

No answer.

"I hope so. I've several important dates over the week-end." Then with a faint smile, managing to look up to the man's face

"What are you going to do with me?" Even a sneaky bunch that I'm not exactly welcome on your party, and when we find the way out, you'll likely leave me behind. Please don't?"

The man picked up a piece of wire, wound it carefully. His eyes had a faint gleam

"Ah," thought Pat, her mind rising above her suffering, "there's like a little peak of fire in a fog, the holder I am the better it goes with him."

"Listen, Mr. Tom. I know you're in a hell of a fix. And I don't sympathy your problems, but you wouldn't leave me here to die of starvation or to plunge myself over the cliff. Being just past 20, I'll appreciate it if you let me follow along. I'm awfully good at keeping my mouth shut. You can dump me on the road anywhere and I'll crawl home and never say a word about you and your business. You see, this unannounced trip I've taken is awfully hard on my mother. She'll really have to have me back——"

Slim tossed the neat coil of wire to the man and with a gruff: "Optimistic about finding a way out, aren't you?" sauntered out to meet his partner.

They walked to the edge, their two figures outlined against the flaming canyon walls. The setting sun swept by, and far as one could look were mile-long walls of living fire; were cities, and mountains and mighty spires wrought by gorgeous, unconsuming flame.

The two men stood and whispered. Pat watched. She felt Billy tugging at her skirt, begging:

"Please, Pat, sit down. You said you'd tell that story. Why don't we go away? I don't like those men. He hurt you. He squeezed your arm. Yes, he did! I saw him."

But this actual, physical tugging of the child was less noticeable than the clinking at her throat, the oppressive, leaden weight on her heart

Now they were sitting around that little stove. They were offering her food. And there was no guessing what words they'd said as they stood there on the rim of the canyon

"Would they feed me if they meant to murder me?"

Pat sat with the tin plate idling in her lap her thought drowned. Ah—when men are to be hanged they always allow them delicacies. And the papers publish what they have eaten for their last meal!

A dozen times—a hundred times she had almost sunk in this hopeless, engulfing misery; and a hundred times she came darting violently back to the surface. They wouldn't do it!

Why, here was Ace talking about a deer he had seen. If he'd had the rifle with him he could have downed him. He was saying affably:

And here was little Billy putting up his hand and gently clasping her chin—a way he had of attracting attention.

Otto Schon is shown looking at some pieces of the rotted wooden piers which were taken from under the Boston Public Library. Steel pillars are replacing the piers.

HER HUSBAND FINDS NOTE TO SOLDIER

Prompt Action of a Doctor Saves Mother of Two in Beverly Frightened because her husband found a letter that she was about to mail to a soldier sweetheart, Mrs. John Reardi 26-year-old wife of John Reardi of Elliott st., Beverly, early today attempted suicide, police said by drinking poison.

Only for first aid treatment administered by Dr Francis G Standley of Beverly, it is believed the woman would have died.

According to Beverly police the woman's husband, upon coming home from work found a letter ready to be mailed to a soldier in South Carolina. In the letter she told of a love affair and how much she loved the soldier and wanted to live with him. A photograph of the soldier in uniform was found with the letter.

Reardi took the letter, together with a letter from his wife's father, Lafayette Bennett of Kansas City, Mo., and showed them to Dr Standley, who had been called to help in the case.

WIFE MISSING.

Instead of going to work on Beverly, as he usually does, Reardi went home, found his wife missing, and a short time later received a letter from her telling him that she was going to kill herself as long as you think I am this way. You don't trust me and you know I love you and the kiddies."

Reardi rushed to Beverly police headquarters and told his story. The police advised him to go back home that he would find his wife.

SWALLOWS ANTIDOTE

Meanwhile Dr Palmer, the young woman's father, went searching for his daughter and found her in a room in the rear of her home. Police were notified.

Dr Standley made a hurried trip to the Reardi home and by administering an antidote saved the woman's life.

Reardi who became hysterical over his wife's action said that he was surprised to find the letter written to the soldier.

"I did not know my wife was carrying on a secret love affair and it was only by chance that I found the letter," he told police.

But when I found the soldier's picture I realized that something was wrong. I never thought that she would attempt to take her life."

Beverly police said that Dr. Standley been a minute later Mrs. Reardi would have died. The couple have been married 10 years and have always made their home in Beverly.

YOUTH DYING AFTER CRASH

A youth was injured possibly fatally and another was slightly hurt when in a crash between a sedan and a motorcycle, the sedan was tipped over at Tracy ave and Goodrich st., Lynn

The youth seriously hurt was the driver of the motorcycle, Dwight Hutchins, 19, on Union st., Lynn

He is at Lynn Hospital with a fractured skull, his name on the danger list. Riding behind him on the machine was Clifton Savoy, 19, of 100½ Timson st., Lynn

The operator of the automobile, Frank Steel of 5 Landers st., Lynn, was unhurt, although his machine was tossed over on its side in the collision

FOUND DEAD IN BED BY POLICE

Going to his house to arrest him, police discovered Joseph Omelko of Ash st., Chelsea, dead in bed, the windows and doors closed tightly, and the room filled with gas pouring from an open jet. Police say they are satisfied he committed suicide

He was in court on a drunkenness charge and was given a suspended sentence. Later in the day police say, he had a quarrel with his wife and threatened her with an axe, with the result that she made another complaint to police.

Beauty Takes 'Rap' in Bank Theft Case

A 16-year-old Hudson girl "took the rap" for a man in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court today, and pleaded guilty to larceny, forgery and uttering and was adjudged a common and notorious thief.

She is Edith Scovoli youngest person ever so adjudged in Middlesex County, and perhaps the prettiest girl ever arraigned in the Middlesex court.

Indicted by a grand jury in three counts of larceny from Hudson banks through manipulation and forgery of checks on her brothers savings accounts, she maintained a stubborn silence following arrest and refused to "squeal" on the man the government claims was implicated with her and the "brains" of the plot by which $318.24 was stolen from the Peoples National Bank of Hudson and the First National Bank of Hudson.

PLEADS GUILTY

Today, before Judge Frederick W. Fosdick, she pleaded guilty to all charges, making mandatory the judgment of the court that she was a common and notorious thief.

Because of her youth Judge Fosdick placed her on probation for two years with the provision that she remain, during that time, an inmate of the House of the Good Shepherd and at the mercy of th court if she violates any rule of the institution.

Asst Dist Atty. Frank G. Volpe outlined the case to Judge Fosdick. He said Edith left home at the age of 14 and went to New York. She has a brother, Harry, a sailor in the navy and Harry Scovoli had savings accounts in the Hudson banks.

On Aug 30, 1928, she forged an

RECEIVER FOR A BIG PIANO CO.

A three decade unpaid bill was one of the causes for sending into receivership a $150,000 concern which has a Boston plan.

Today the Irving Trust Co of New York was appointed receiver for the American Piano Co which has plants in Roxbury, Baltimore Rochester, Syracuse and New York.

W. L. Barnes Buckman filed a petition against the owners of the trade names of Chickering, Knabe and Mason & Hamlin. His unpaid bill was for $3500.

Judge Cox of the Federal court appointed the receiver after learning of current liabilities due and unpaid of $1,200,000 besides liabilities not yet due of $500,000.

The company has retail stores in Boston and other eastern cities.

The attorneys for the company said that a resolution had been adopted by the board of directors approving of the appointment of an equity receiver.

FOILS THEFT OF CAR; MAN HELD

After a mile chase through Medford streets William W. Redmond 25, of Cliff st, Malden, was arrested by Patrolmen George D. McWilliams and Clarence B. Sides charged with attempted larceny of an automobile.

Redmond, police claim, made an effort to steal an automobile owned by Walter Guest at Fellsmere, from the back yard Guest saw Redmond in the yard and ran out of the house. He held the man several minutes after a scuffle but Redmond finally broke loose and prior to the arrival of the police.

The police started chase and caught Redmond on Swains Pond ave., near an icehouse.

BIG RUSH IS EXPECTED SATURDAY

Parcel Post Flood Is Started, and Clerks Meet Some Strange People

It was Christmas card day in Boston today.

For the first time this season Yuletide greetings in dispatch large quantities poured in at the postoffice and the numerous branch stations.

A few days have been dribbling in during the week, but today all Boston seemed to choose Wednesday as the appropriate one to bring in big lots of cards. Large as the amounts reported to be here are minute compared to what may be expected for Saturday and Monday, clerks predict.

Today was reported also to be the busiest day for parcel post mailings.

LICK YOUR OWN STAMPS

This year the public must lick their own stamps. This surprises many people, who expect merely to hand over the money and depart.

Denominations of seven and eight cents are most used. Packages in most cases are stamped for only 5c costing five cents.

An errand boy at Young's hotel branch was told the cost of shipping an automobile license plate to a certain address would be 11 cents, if sealed, and 70 cents if sent by registered mail.

The boy flipped a coin. He said heads for insured and tails for registered.

SOME ARE SEALED

Senders of parcels having a parcel post privilege sealed but are read into post with the seals unbroken when it is to pay such costs as 1 ounce for sealed first class ratings.

A package addressed to Texas brought in by a boy was wrapped in very thin paper and the address scrawled in pencil. An adult would have been ordered in turn in a better job, but the clerks simply traced the address over in heavy blue pencil and tied a few more knots.

One man wanted to insure a package of cigars but had not wrapped it in corrugated paper as specified by law. This man appealed in three different offices before he accepted the rulings. He finally decided to send the package as is without insurance.

DOGS ROUSE 20 IN LYNN FIRE

Two barking dogs spread the alarm which aroused 20 occupants of a burning four-story brick block at Washington st. Lynn, early today and over them in burning down smoke filled corridors to the street in their night clothing.

The fire which originated in the Washington Lunch on the first floor of the block burned undetected for some time and had spread the ceiling sending heavy smoke through the apartments on the three upper floors.

Mrs. Alice Hall from who occupies a two room apartment was awakened by the smoke. She took her two sons, Peter and Bruce, in her arms and attempted to escape her way to the second floor landing.

She shouted an alarm as she went and the dogs set up a continuous barking, that aroused Mrs. Phyllis Carpenter and her two daughters Phyllis, 11, and Isabel five, in their second floor suite.

Dean Edith L. Rich and Miss Bella Porter will preside with Mrs Wright. Mrs. Frank G. Wiemann, Dean Caroline Robinson, Mrs. Leo F. Lewis and Mrs. George P. Bacon, will preside at the tea tables.

X-Rays Fail to Locate Needle

With a needle reposing somewhere in her system, Antoinette Torel 14 of Linwood ave., Newton attended her regular classes in the E. A. Day junior high school at Newton, Ile.

The girl swallowed the needle at a sewing class, but X rays failed to reveal the location of the needle in her system.

Break Into Garage to Steal Auto

Thieves broke into a garage owned by Mandel Dubin on Granville st., Malden, and stole an automobile owned by Morris Tittlebaum of Baker st., Malden, in which was $100 worth of clygoods. The door on the garage was pried open.

Mrs. Alma Rogstrom, with her two pet dogs, Bunny and Buster, who barked and awakened her when fire started in her house at 524 Washington st., Lynn. She then aroused other tenants in the house. (Staff photo.)

FIRESTONE BAY STATE PLANTS JOIN BOOM

Tire Magnate Assures Co-operation With Hoover for American Prosperity

Harvey S. Firestone, rubber magnate and close friend of Thomas Edison and Henry Ford, today assured the Massachusetts Industrial Commission that Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. plants at Hudson and Fall River would operate in accord with President Hoover's prosperity program.

The company expects to maintain its present schedule of wages, he wrote in a letter to the commission. "Work, not speculation, is the only foundation for permanent success and prosperity," he pointed out. He wrote:

"The recent depression in the market value of stocks and securities has not affected the fundamental soundness of business and industry. It was a natural reaction to the speculative era which had overreached itself.

"Naturally there will be readjusting to this new situation, as many people become involved in stock speculation and must again readjust themselves to the realization that there is no substitute for work to attain permanent success and prosperity. I feel that this will have a good effect on the country."

Similar assurances of co-operation with the Hoover prosperity program have been received from industrial leaders representing some 187 000 workers in Massachusetts.

File Bill to Raise Censorship Standard

A bill to "raise the standard of censorship and of culture" in Massachusetts was today filed in the Senate on petition of Elliot H. Paul, Boston author, by Senator Henry Parkman, Jr.

The proposed act first calls for civil service examinations for censors of books, plays, pictures, music and dancing, the examination to include the standard Binet intelligence tests for mentality of 18 years, and general information and language tests, similar to those required for employes of the Boston Public Library.

In addition, each censorship candidate would be required to "submit to the State Department of Health satisfactory evidence of experience."

Section 2 of the bill provides that in cases where the author or publisher of a book alleged in its unlawful or improper, aside in the commonwealth, either or both of them shall be prosecuted and in case no book-seller, proprietor or employe of a book store shall be prosecuted.

Another section would require the attorney general to take steps to secure prosecution for improper use of the mails, when a book shall be held by a court to be unlawful or indecent.

If any word or group of words is held by a court to be improper in any one book, all other books containing the same word or group of words would be required to be suppressed without further process of law.

DAUGHTER OF OIL KING IS DONOR

Lady Fairhaven Gives Empire Scene of Signing of the Magna Charta

Runnymede Meadow, scene of the signing of the Magna Charta and probably the most historic site in the British Empire, has been purchased and presented to the British nation by a Massachusetts woman.

Lady Fairhaven, formerly Clara Leland Rogers, daughter of Henry Huddleston Rogers, American oil king, and widow of Urban H. Broughton, British financier, is the donor.

Dispatches from London state that Lady Fairhaven, whose generous gifts to New Bedford and Fairhaven placed her among this country's leading philanthropists, presented the Runnymede site to a national trust for the Britten people and included in the purchase adjoining riverside land totaling 182½ acres.

The title of Lady Fairhaven was conferred last May, three months after the death of her husband, who had been recommended for the peerage but died before he could be gazetted. The title then devolved on the son and the widow was given the baronial title by which she is being drawn from Fairhaven, Mass.

It was in 1912 that young Urban Broughton elevated his beautiful bride from Fairhaven and established her in the midst of London's most brilliant society. The palatial residence in Mayfair as the magnificence of their hospitality dazzled all London. She also had a beautiful estate in Berwick Park near York.

Among the many gifts Lady Fairhaven made to the Massachusetts town of that name was the old Fort Phoenix, given in honor of her husband.

She purchased this property from the War Department, under authority of an act of Congress authorizing the sale of several military reservations.

An article for the acceptance of the fort by the town was included in a warrant approved at the annual town meeting on Feb. 6, 1926.

As Clara Leland Rogers, Lady Fairhaven spent much of her time in Fairhaven during her youth. She was known and beloved by every inhabitant of the quaint old New England town.

As Mrs. Broughton, she was celebrated as one of the most brilliant American beauties ever to take up residence abroad.

Wilson Reverses Ruling on Delaney

Patrolman William J. Delaney, Jr., of the Dudley st. station, returns to duty today as a result of Police Commissioner Wilson's action in upsetting findings of a trial board, which recommended his discharge on charges growing out of a raid in a home in Magnolia, in which he and a woman companion were arrested on serious charges.

The commissioner found him not guilty of one of the charges on which the trial board had returned a guilty verdict. He has been ordered to do 210 hours punishment duty.

Pythians of State Now 60 Years Old

The 60th anniversary of the founding of the Knights of Pythias of Massachusetts was celebrated in Nord Hall last night, when delegates from the 153 lodges in the state and their invited guests gathered to enjoy a program of speeches and entertainment. Isaac Gordon, grand chancellor of the Grand Domain of Massachusetts, gave the address of welcome, and presided.

Council Asks Right to Establish Fees

Senators Henry Parkman, Jr., and Michael J. Ward today filed a joint petition with the clerk of the Senate under which all fees for licenses and permits in Boston would be established by the City Council. The two senators acted on behalf of the legislative committee of the council.

Thirty Plates on Steamer Damaged

Damage to 30 plates on the steamer Transportation was discovered today at the Bethlehem plant, East Boston, when the vessel was put in drydock after grounding in the harbor between buoys 4 and 6, outward bound for Norfolk.

Bids asked for today indicate the damage will cost at least $20,000.

'MODERN' GLASS ON DISPLAY

The plain window glass we used to throw stones at when we were kids has gone the way of all art, modern.

The American Federation of Arts, learning of this, sent agents gum-shoeing all over the civilized world in a search for the "modernest" of modern glassware. The result of the hunt is now on exhibition at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Your radiator cap of shiny metal is way out of date. The latest is glass ornaments of alleged unbreakable material. You may have a fighting rock or a goddess' head, or any other kind of a doo-dad that comes to mind.

And water pitchers! The good, old chamber crockery pitcher is now an antique with glass animals taking its place.

Of course the table ornament craze is just reaching its height, but the fancy glassware industry is way ahead. Snaky dancing figures, modernistic icebergs, glass fruit in gaudy colors, all made from the same old base of sodium silicate form the last word in decoration.

Gets Two Years in Theft Case; Appeals

After concluding a six months' sentence in House of Correction imposed by Judge Dolan of Suffolk Probate Court for contempt of court, Monsour Saleh of Harrison ave., South End, was today sentenced to two years in the same institution by Judge Carr of Municipal Criminal Court. He appealed. He was charged by Police Inspector Joseph Laughlin with larceny of $665 in connection with the same case on which he served the six months' sentence. The larceny was from the estate of the late Joseph Essay, an uncle, who died in a hospital in December, 1927.

RUTLAND JAIL CAMP MAY BE ABOLISHED

Plans for Sale of Old Institution Hinted; New Hospital is Proposed

The prison camp and hospital at Rutland established some 30 years ago for the treatment of tuberculous patients from state and county institutions may be abolished.

Plans looking to the sale of the land upon which is under the charge of Superintendent Wendell F. Tuttle to the metropolitan water supply district for the protection of the water shed in the huge Ware and Swift rivers water development is leaked out today are under discussion.

State Public Health Commissioner George H. Bigelow when questioned admitted that the protection measure is being studied.

Though refusing to deny the report, Commissioner of Correction A. Warren Stearns declined to make any comment.

It is known, however, that the intention is, in the event that the sale goes through, to establish a modern tuberculosis hospital at the new prison colony at Norfolk.

At the present time there are 118 inmates at the Rutland camp, of which 20 are tuberculosis patients.

BANFIELD GETS FOUR MONTHS

Sentences totaling four months and ten days were imposed today in Brighton court on Sylvester P. Banfield of Hill st., Charlestown, alleged drunken driver.

Banfield, December 1, was in a crash at Commonwealth ave. and Allston st., Allston, in which his car turned over.

A girl companion Miss Genevieve Donovan of South Boston was injured, as well as Banfield and both were taken to City Hospital. Banfield later walked out of the hospital while police were on the way to place him under arrest, but finally surrendered.

On a charge of operating under the influence of liquor he was sentenced to two months, on a charge of operating after his license was suspended he drew 10 days, and on charges of going away from an accident and operating in a dangerous manner, he was sentenced to a month each.

He appealed, and was held in $1000 for the Grand Jury.

Four Out of Five Pass Tests in Lynn

Four out of five officers of the Lynn police department passed the examination for chief, the Civil Service Commission announced today.

TWO ARRAIGNED IN LOTTERY

Conn e Lewis and Henry T. Gar ity of Bridgeport, Ct., who were among the eight men indicted recently by the federal grand jury on charges of conspiring to transport tickets and advertising matter of the Lucky Day lottery from Connecticut to this State, pleaded not guilty when arraigned today before Judge James A. Lowell in the U. S. District Court.

They were held in bonds of $1000 each for trial at a later date.

It is alleged Garrity delivered tickets of the lottery to a man in Pittsfield. The others named in the indictment have not been arraigned.

Veteran Vanishes From Everett Home

Fears are entertained for the safety of David Magnuson, 31, a disabled war veteran who has disappeared from his home in Chisholm st., Everett.

The young man had been home on a furlough from the Bedford Hospital and left apparently to go to Lynn. Since then nothing has been heard from him. He suffered from a nervous condition and his relatives fear that something may have happened to him.

Sees Big Market for U. S. in Sumatra

From the island of Sumatra, Walter A. Foote, United States consul of that country, arrived in Boston today, and described opportunities in trade there.

"Fifty per cent of all exports from Sumatra are destined for the United States," he said. "The chief product of the country is rubber for use in automobile tires here in addition to rubber the country produces large quantities of palm oil, sisal and hemp.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough
You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.
Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.
This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.
Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.
Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR HAIR LOVELY IN WINTER

Encourage New Growth, Says Beauty Expert

By MARIA JERITZA

IN most beauty parlors these days a leading subject of conversation is the respective merits of long and short hair. Hair dressers report that while many women are letting their hobs grow many others are having their hair cut. The upshot of it all seems to be that both fashions are equally good, provided you do not wear your bob too short or let your hair grow longer than your shoulders.

Maria Jeritza

During the trying period when your bob is not quite shoulder length and is most dreadfully hard to do up because it refuses to stay fixed, you may find it a good idea to turn the ends up over a lead pencil and pin them in place in two or three loose curls at the nape of your neck from ear to ear. This lead pencil curl works out most successfully than mounting the curls over one finger and the effect is very pretty when the balance of the hair is set in loose, round marcel-like waves following the shape of the head. The back of the head especially should be set in graceful waves—usually diagonal in general direction.

In the autumn the hair has a tendency to fall out. This is natural and these dead hairs when combed out only make way for healthy new ones. But when circulation through the scalp is not all it should be, or for any reason the scalp is hot and dry—possibly as a result of eye strain or tired nerves or wearing a tight, hot hat too long—the hair is likely to come out in handfuls, especially about the forehead. This tends to give the brow a high, bald look and also makes the hair thin. ... measures should be taken at once to encourage new growth and discourage the excessive tendency of the hairs to drop out.

All kinds of ... are good for the scalp at such a time, but nothing is better than plain crude oil, which is a favorite beauty measure with Hollywood stars.

Buy a bottle of crude oil at your druggist. Part your hair over and over, and in each parting place a very little of the oil with a medicine dropper.

Massage the oil into your scalp with the fingers of both hands brushing your two thumbs firmly against your scalp and using the usual outward, rotary movements of the fingers without bending them at the knuckles. Also, pick up the skin of your scalp between your fingers. Continue this massage until your entire scalp is covered. Protect your pillow with a towel and go to bed.

Next morning shampoo your hair and scalp with two more thorough and melted or liquid soap. The oil will not be easy to get out, so the shampoo must be thorough.

Once a week massage crude oil into your hair and follow this with a shampoo next morning. Each morning stir up circulation by a movement or two of the scalp massage, which is even more important than oil in encouraging growth of hair.

I feel sure, if you adopt this suggestion, that your hair will soon be in such healthy condition that you will be proud of its thickness and lustre.

Meetings With Guy Came to Pat's Mind

Would she ever talk love to him across the hedge again? Where was he? Was he searching the sky for her? Then one of the kipnapers approached.

Miss Pat -:- Thrilling Romance of Airways

me say 'Meow'? Can I take the bacon'"

He had his fingers—they were extraordinarily soft and slender—poised over Pat's plate.

"When are we going to have a chop? Why don't we tell them to cook some meat—Real meat? It is night time again?"

It was warm, and the shadows emerged slowly from the abyss; they strode up the dark purple stairways and through the gigantic arches of the opposing cliffs. Slim was gathering up tools, putting them in the cabin. Ace was sitting here alongside her, helping himself to more coffee.

Suppose she should get up and carelessly walk away now? In the dark fly from them!

She saw herself doing this—miraculously winged and speeding away—the boy held fast in her arms.

Yes—and they would train the lights of the plane on her; before she'd gone a hundred paces they would drag her back.

Ace poured coffee in her cup. He lit a cigarette. Suddenly he offered her one. Oh, surely a man never wouldn't do this!

Faintly:

"Thanks—you keep them. We may be here quite a while. You'll need them, perhaps. Suppose there's a road out?"

"There should be."

She gave a vague laugh.

"We're rather sorry prisoners aren't we! Will your partner get the plane repaired?"

"Not a chance in a century. We'll never lift her off the ground."

"Then we only have the hope of finding a trail from here? Did you find one today?"

She saw the fiery tip of his cigarette and in its light, for an instant, his weak mouth as it blew the smoke upward. Then she felt his hand closing on hers—then his fingers moving up her bare arm.

"Worried, little girl?"

She bounced Billy from one knee to the other and managed breezily:

"Oh, I'm a grand notion that your partner doesn't intend to include me on the return trip. I sort of feel a little chilly way in looks at me that he'd just as leave march off and leave me here to perish."

Ace laughed.

"He does that, shall I come back and father you up?"

She grew suddenly sick. She was almost screaming.

"Take your hand off!"

Slim came up. Noiseless as a cat he was upon them—a searchlight full in the pilot's face. The cold scornful lips curled.

"Enjoying yourself? Suppose you step over here and gather up the garbage!"

She saw the kid, girl. Walk him about—over that way. Get yourself back in five minutes. I'll be waiting."

The little boy pulled Pat down. He put his arms around her neck.

"Why don't we run away? Isn't HE mean! He's wicked!"

Utterly dark. Pat sat on the ground, and Billy in her arms she drank down the blessed night air. It was refreshing. She took huge mouthfuls of air.

There came back to her mind the moonlight nights when she used to meet Guy Elliott at the hedge. Oh, would that ever happen again? Where was Guy and if he only would appear from the air and rescue her!

Then the man was calling. She hadn't strength to rise. He came up and pulled her to her feet.

"O-ee—you're a hell of a sport, aren't you!" she said with unguessed fire. "Can't you give me half an hour's privacy?"

"Yes you can have this whole chasm to yourself if you want it! You can wander as far as you like in this direction . . . but don't start off with that kid toward the slope."

"I wasn't!"

"Then don't look like it again. You'll only starve to death. Haven't you sense enough to know that?"

He led her back to the cabin. He pulled blankets out for himself and Ace. He closed and locked the doors.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SIX THIRTY . . . Monday morning . . . 'larm clock burring—br-r-r-ring . . . gosh, how you hate your job!

Doesn't it be great if you didn't have to work! If only you could loaf around, all the time?

Elsie Robinson

Well, cheer up, buddy, the good time seems to be on its way. If they keep on tinkering with our labor schedule, as they're now doing, you'll soon have gobs of leisure. Already you have Saturday afternoons off. Some farms are considering a five-day working week. Over in Russia they have remade the calendar to suit industrial needs. Four days to work, then a rest day . . . that's the Russian plan. It gives the Russian worker more than a third again as much leisure time as the American has. But, even if we don't go Russian there are plenty of idle hours coming for all. Which listens lovely.

BUT WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH THEM AFTER YOU GET THEM?

Maybe you think that's a joke question, but it isn't. The use of leisure is one of the most serious questions which Americans will have to face in the next 20 years. FOR WE AMERICANS HAVE GRADUALLY BECOME UNFIT FOR LEISURE . . . WE HAVE BECOME SO STANDARDIZED IN OUR WORK ROUTINES THAT WE HAVE LOST INITIATIVE.

Grandpa would have found plenty of use for leisure. He was chock full of ideas . . . had to be, for he'd had to amuse and support himself since he was a toddler. Lives didn't come ready made to folks then. They didn't have any canned foods, canned music, canned stuff, canned ideas. They couldn't turn on the radio or run to a movie when they wanted amusement. And, when they went to work they had Regular Jobs. They didn't enter some vast factory and spend their days tightening the nut on some screw . . . and doing nothing else.

Grandpa was a Jack of All Trades and the days were never long enough for him. He was full of original ideas. He had a dozen avocations. He would have filled his leisure time with countless experiments.

BUT SUPPOSE YOU GET TWO HUNDRED DAYS A WEEK. WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH THEM?

What do you do with your leisure time now? Listen to the radio . . . turn on the phonograph . . . go to a ball game . . . read the comics . . . wash the automobile . . . take the family out for a ride . . . go to sleep under a tree . . . fight with the wife. That's about all, isn't it?

But what can you do that's different from the things other people do? What can you make or produce that will put a real kick in life?

WHAT CAN YOU DO TO PROVE THAT YOU'RE NOT JUST A PUNCH . . . A FLESH AND BLOOD MACHINE . . . ADAPTED TO JUST ONE JOB?

Believe me, partner, this leisure program may disclose the fact that a lot of us are nothing much but monkeys on an eight-hour string.

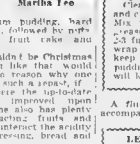
New Christmas Dishes

CHRISTMAS seems to have a stereotyped menu that has few variations. Tradition rules that we have fowl, preferably, or goose for piece de resistance. The fowl is stuffed with chestnut or oyster dressing, and oftentimes has a link of sausage around its neck to insure juicy meat.



Martha Lee

One must have potatoes, white and sweet, and vegetables, cranberry sauce, pickled peaches or cucumbers, relishes, rolls, plum pudding, hard sauce, mince pie, followed by nuts, cluster raisins, fruit cake and coffee.

Christmas wouldn't be Christmas without a menu like that would it? There is no reason why one should not have such a repast, if and here is where the up-to-date housewife has improved upon grandmother—one also has plenty of alkaline reacting fruits and vegetables to counteract the acidity of the meat, dressing, bread and sweets.

Now comes the homemakers opportunity to use her new and novel ideas and preserve the traditional Christmas menu, yet leave her family and guests with the feeling that the dinner was perfect, and will have no gastronomic ill effects.

Here are some suggestions for modernizing grandmother's menu.

Instead of mashing the white potatoes, cut them in [illegible] sized balls with a potato cutter, or dice them and [illegible] before serving [illegible] them this sauce.

6 tbsps. melted butter
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 tbsps. chopped parsley
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper

Add lemon juice, chopped parsley and seasonings to butter, stir well and pour over the potato balls. This amount will serve 6 to 8 persons.

Winter squash, steamed, mashed, seasoned and mixed with ½ tsp. grated orange rind to each quart of squash will surely find favor.

Plum pudding never has plums in its makeup, but that doesn't stop us from calling this excellent recipe by that name.

CHRISTMAS PLUM PUDDING

1 lb. raisins
1 lb. currants
1 lb. suet
½ lb. citron
1 cup chopped mixed nuts
1 lb. bread crumbs
1 tsp. each of cinnamon, cloves and allspice
½ tsp. nutmeg
5 eggs, well beaten
½ cup orange juice
1 lb. sugar
½ cup flour for dredging

Clean raisins and currants and chop suet, and combine dry ingredients. Fill empty cleaned baking powder tins ⅔ full. Steam 4 hours, cool, wrap as for fruit cake and keep in a cool place. This pudding, if stored properly, will keep almost indefinitely.

LEMON HARD SAUCE

(Serves 8)

½ egg yolk
½ cup butter
2 tbsps. lemon juice
1 tsp. vanilla
1 egg white
Green vegetable coloring
4 candied cherries

Cream butter and sugar to-gether, add egg yolk. Add lemon juice, vanilla and stiffly beaten egg white. Beat till smooth and fluffy. Add green coloring. When serving, place candied cherries in center of each heaping.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

On Making a Gift to the Steward

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

I live in a hotel and we take our meals there also. I want to know what would be the right thing for me to do at Christmas time regarding our steward of the dining room? We tip him during the year and of course we want to do the customary thing at Christmas. He gets a dollar from us during the year, that is, every now and then. As you know, around the holidays one always has quite an outlay, so give me a suggestion that will fit my purse, but at the same time be the right thing.

BLUE EYES.

I suggest that you give him a five-dollar gold piece for Christmas.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

1—Will you please write a note, accepting a wedding invitation written in the third person?

2—Also, will you please advise me if it is necessary for all guests at a wedding party to wear full evening dress when the bride and groom are so attired?

KIRSTY

If the invitation is to the wedding ceremony, it does not need an acknowledgement. But if it is to the reception also, this is the form of acceptance (to be written on the first page of a double sheet of letter paper):

Miss Edna Kirkland accepts with pleasure Mr. and Mrs. Bride's Parents' kind invitation for Wednesday, the first of March at five o'clock.

Nancy Page Quilt Club

BACK BLOCKS SUPPLIED

In the event you have missed any of the Alphabet Quilt blocks previously published in the Boston American, please send 5 cents for each block missing. Also enclose stamped, addressed envelope. Address Nancy Page, Boston American, P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass.

WHEN the lamp block was made the quilt club members had finished 12, or just half of the alphabet quilt blocks, since had omitted X and Z. This gave her exactly 24 blocks for the quilt. Joan thought that the quilt was a long time in the making, but Aunt Nancy explained that one block a week was all most mothers had time to make. Sometimes Nancy feared that Joan would wear out the finished blocks before they were finished. So often and patted them and told stories about them.

The lamp which Nancy had chosen was like the round and chunky lamp which Joan had in her own bedroom. It had a faultless look to the child. She associated the lamp with bed-time stories and Aunt Nancy had to suspend all work on the quilt until she had taken Joan into her arms and told her a story about a wonderful lamp owned by a man named Aladdin.

When the story was done Joan ran away contentedly and Aunt Nancy started on the block.

She cut the newspaper square and also a square of white cloth. This soft white gingham was exactly one-quarter inch larger on all sides than the paper square. By placing the cloth on the paper pattern and holding the two of them first against the window pane, Nancy was able to outline the paper and the lamp with a soft lightweight pencil. cardboard or tag board.

This was dried under pressure. Then when thoroughly dry, the shade and base were cut from the paper.

These were laid on fast color cloth. Nancy used a small flower print for the shade. The base was of plain material. She chose the same shade of green as she was using for her connecting strips.

In cutting the cloth she allowed one-quarter inch on all sides for turning under. After turning the edges under she basted and pressed them. Then she pinned them in place over the outlines on the square of white cloth. She basted them and then appliqued them with fine slanting, invisible hemming stitches. The base went on first. Then the shade was appliqued.

The chain was put in next. French knots made the chain and a small round in satin stitch the little ball at the end of the chain. She used yellow for this.

The letter "L" was next worked. Nancy had been using a fine outline stitch, although some of the members chose a close chain stitch. Whichever one is used must be close and heavy.

This completed the twelfth block. Now the members joined the L to A and E strip, the J to the B and F strip, the K to the C and G strip and the L to the D and H strip. They used the strip of color, 1½ by 6½ seamed between two white strips of equal size. This large strip was then seamed between two large white blocks with the appliqus figures on them.

No attempt was made to put in the long strips which extend in an unbroken line from top to bottom of pieced part of quilt. They were put in when the 24 blocks were completed.

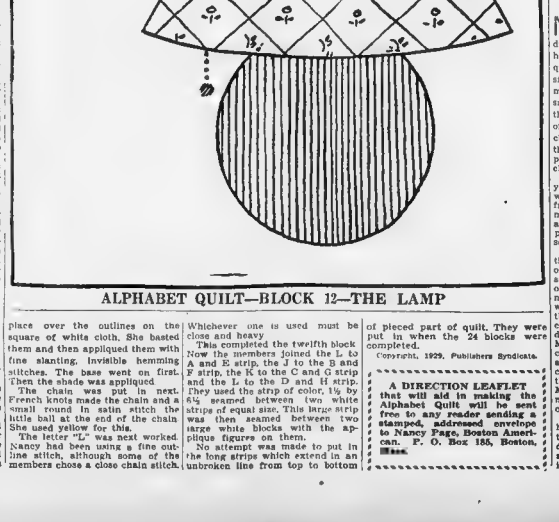
A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Alphabet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page, Boston American, P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass.



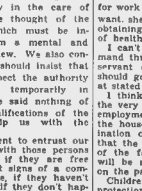
ALPHABET QUILT—BLOCK 12—THE LAMP

The Truth

ABOUT BEING A MODERN PERSON.

By ELINOR GLYN.

GRACIE, we will suppose you are a very modern person, as hard as nails on the outside, but beneath, the same tender heart your grandmother had.



Elinor Glyn

You have been teased into expressing views which you do not really hold.

You have read Freud and think you understand all biological problems. You may not be clever enough, or your reasoning powers may not be sufficiently trained to enable you to argue from the general to the particular with any success.

Your thought methods are likely to argue from the particular to the general, and so your opinions get out of focus, and your judgments faulty.

If you have a tender heart, and recently build that into a home and a baby, or even two, have the courage to be a gentle, sweet creature.

Your very rareness will attract not only one, but several would-be mates. For there are thousands of men who really long for homes and peace and security, and only suffer the cerebral hysteria because it is the fashion to do so.

The thing to be aimed at is happiness, is it not, girls?

To satisfy your real nature is more likely to bring you that than always to be acting against it.

Wonders if She's Lost Him

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

You have been so good with your advice to others, will you help me? I am 19 and was keeping steady company with a boy of 20 for a year. We broke off two months ago—his fault as much as mine. We loved each other very much and planned to marry. Now he is going with another girl. He met my chum and told her he always loved me and always will.

I still love him. I will never forget him—in fact, I can't. I have tried going out with others; but they just bore me to death. Tell me, is he going with this girl just to spite me? Shall I give up hope? Have I lost him?

GOOD LOSER.

A man does not change completely in so short a time. If your friend really loved you two months ago, it is quite possible he loves you still.

Go about with all your friends but only for companionship. If you were very partly in the wrong in the dispute, I believe it would be wise to write him a frank, friendly little note telling him so and expressing the hope that the old friendliness between you may continue. But avoid sentimentality. Wait and see. Even though he may not reply to your note even though he may for the moment be fascinated by the other girl—you will have done your part toward restoring harmony and preserving the friendship. After all, the next overture should come from him.

Servants and Your Child

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

NOT long ago we considered the matter of leaving children occasionally in the care of hired help. We thought of the qualifications which must be insisted upon from a mental and moral point of view. We also considered that we should insist that the children respect the authority of the person temporarily in charge. But we said nothing of the physical qualifications of the people who help us with the children.

We seem content to entrust our younger people with those persons working for us, if they are free from any blatant signs of a communicable disease, if they haven't a bad cough or if they don't happen to be all broken out with something or other.

I suppose we all feel a bit reticent about walking up to Martha or Jane and demanding that she see the family doctor every three or four months, as a preventive measure. But I don't know why we should feel that way. I feel that we have a right to protect the children from the fullest measure, don't you? You can get another Martha. But should your child contract a disease from Martha and—well, no matter how many children you have, in your heart there is but ONE Jimmie, or ONE Mary. Neither can be duplicated, neither can be replaced to fill that certain niche in your mother heart.

In Cuba President Machado has taken the responsibility off the shoulders of the mothers in a decree recently published. "Nurses and other domestic employes coming in contact with children must be provided with a certificate of health—" the announcement reads. And surely, if the maid applying for work is the kind of person you want, she will have no objection to obtaining a certificate, a clean bill of health, for your satisfaction.

I can't see why we hate to demand this, or to demand that the servant caring for our children should go to our family physician at stated intervals to be examined.

I think if it is understood from the very beginning of the term of employment that every member of the household goes for an examination once every so often, and that the maid is an integral part of the family organization, there will be no "insulted" packing up on the part of the new girl.

Children deserve every means of protection we can marshal for them. The monthly trip to the doctor with your youngest and his big brother are coming to be the rule rather than the exception.

Consider the children FIRST.

COUNTRY CLUB SCENE OF DEBUT

AT A DANCE AT THE COUNTRY CLUB this evening, given in her honor by her grandmother Mrs. Frederick H Tappan of Marlborough st., Miss Elizabeth Hamlin will make her formal bow to society. This charming daughter of the George Peabody Hamlins holds membership in both the Junior League and the Vincent Club She is to receive her guests in a modishly long dress of white and gold brocaded satin The dinner for the ushers is also to take place at the club

THE USHER SQUAD IS headed by Miss Hamlin's brother, George Peabody Hamlin, Jr., and he is to be assisted by Robert T. Hamlin and the following named young men: James Baldwin, John P Barnes, Prescott Bigelow, Jr.; Charles S Bound, Oliver S Coues, Henry Chalfonte, S S Colloredo-Mannsfeld, Gardner Cox, John L. Grandin, Jr.; Ransome Hodges, H Lea Hudson, Kenneth Jenkins, Robert J. Leonard, John G. Lewis, Charles W. Moore, Grayson Murphy, William G Nickerson, Robert S Ogden, Edward Orlandini, Carl E. Petrash, Nathaniel Saltonstall, Lamar Soutter, Marshall Stearns, Lentner Sewall, Paul Plummer Swett, Jr.; Howland S Warren, Eustis Walcott, Stowell P. Ware, Alexander W. Williams and Philip W. Wrenn, Jr.

MISS BARBARA LANG WAS presented by her mother at a luncheon at the Hotel Somerset this noon. For the occasion she was frocked in tan georgette, with which she carried chrysanthemums of autumn colors, and her mother was attired in gold crepe de chine and carried premier roses. Miss Katharine Brown and Miss Mary Elizabeth Lowe greeted the 50 or so guests with mother and daughter. Older people as well as debutantes were included in this affair.

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE IS closing on Friday for the Christmas holidays, not to reopen until January 2 The Scribblers Club, which met on Monday, with its usual enthusiasm and keen interest in Dr Taeusch and afterwards enjoyed a cup of tea, will not hold another meeting until January 13. Wearing their green smocks as is their custom, at such times, the members of the Junior League Glee Club gave a concert this afternoon at the Robert Bent Brigham Hospital, together with the hospital choir. Mrs. John E Thayer and Mrs. Malcolm Bradlee are the leaders of the League group, including Mrs Anthony Brackett, Miss Rose Bryant, Miss Rosamond Cutler, Miss Constance Harper and Mrs. Norman Dana. Mrs. William F. King, Miss Caroline Saltonstall, Miss Harriet Smith, Miss Allison Towle, Miss Elizabeth Townsend, Mrs. Bentley Warren, Jr., Miss Katherine Weeks, and Miss Lucy Williams Tomorrow they are to sing, for the Dorchester Home for Incurables

Marguerite Falk Taylor — Esther Rueter — Julia Coolidge Deane

It is just a nice walk from their homes to the Public Garden. Esther Rueter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Glover Rueter of Dartmouth st., was not skating when the photographer found the little group, but Marguerite Falk Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Taylor of Berkeley st., and Julia Coolidge Deane, who, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Deane, resides with the Charles A. Coolidges of Marlborough st., were enjoying the sport.

IT WAS A FASHIONABLE and appreciative audience at "Wings Over Europe," played by the Theater Guild at the Hollis St. Theater last night and once again the Free Hospital for Women benefited by a splendid and unusual performance. The cast of the play, explained by the aphorism "you cannot set the clock back" applied to science One of the boxes was flag draped as the guests in it included Admiral Sims and two of his daughters One of these, Mrs Robert Hopkins, was attired in dress of gold. Mrs. Hopkins was before her marriage in Newport on September 7, Miss Margaret H. Sims

IN THE OTHER LOWER BOX were Mr and Mrs Everett Morss, Jr., and their party, which included as honor guest Miss Elizabeth Boardman of New York. Most of the ones in this group were debutantes, very formally gowned and wearing the long white gloves which would later be such an essential part of their costume at the Brotherhood ball Miss Elizabeth Hovey was wearing a stunning dress with tight-fitting bodice of gold cloth and a full golden yellow tulle skirt; a frock of a somewhat lighter shade of yellow was the choice of Miss Kathleen Chase. Miss Edith Gray was becomingly attired in blue

AMONG THE POST DEBS who gathered for a chat during the intermission were Miss Evelyn Royce in vermilion velvet, Miss Rachel Jackson, costumed in black and gold brocade and Miss Harriet Morse in black Among the matrons in attendance, and they were in the majority, was Mrs. Dana Orcutt, in a stunning evening gown of bright green, and to her is due the credit of these successful theater benefits

MRS. JAMES MELVILLE HUNNEWELL wore a wrap of gold and black brocade while the one worn by Mrs. Arthur Beale was of burgundy red velvet brocaded in gold. A black velvet wrap trimmed with white fox was strikingly becoming to Miss Barbara Rice, Mrs Morrill Griswold, draped in cloak of red velvet, Mrs. Quincy Shaw, Jr., in frock of black satin combined with pink, Mrs. Franklin Hobbs in red, Mrs. Follen Cabot also in red and Mrs William F Graves and her daughter, Miss Alice Graves, both in black, were among those enjoying the show.

AT A QUIET WEDDING THIS evening with only members of their two families in attendance, Mrs. Thaddeus DePriez and Philip Wadsworth are to be united in marriage. Mrs. DePriez and her debutante daughter, Miss Pauline DePriez, have been making their home with the formers parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Isaac Croll of Beacon st. After returning from their wedding journey, Mr and Mrs. Wadsworth will reside in an apartment on Charles st.

PROGRAM BY COPELAND PLEASING

By MOSES SMITH

Last night I heard Irving H Copeland's first public recital consisting demonstration of his popularity in Boston at his piano recital in Jordan Hall to a full Engrossing Yuletide duties did not prevent an audience of good size from gathering to hear him in a typical "Copeland" program

Apparently Mr Copeland "knows what his audience likes" for his program generally followed the same model fairly closely But there was a group of classic or romantic pieces, almost, it seems, as a matter of duty. In this group there was an Adagio of Grazioli, which was beautifully played. There was, also, the Schumann "Etudes Symphoniques," which the pianist rendered with surprising gusto and feeling

The French group consisted of Debussy pieces and "Gnossienne" of Satie. All of these Debussy pieces were familiar, in fact they seemed to be old favorites of the audience The pianist was not in his best vein in playing them last night

Three pieces by the Spaniard Infante, for two piano, with William Heyl at the second, furnished a diverting interlude. Hearing them, we were inclined to the naive opinion that all Spanish music is alike—which is, of course, a gross injustice

A trio of Spanish pieces for piano solo and Copeland's difficult arrangement of Chabrier's "Espana," brilliantly played, completed the program The audience was very enthusiastic throughout

A Department Devoted to Fashions, Decoration and Social Customs

Gifts Plain and Fancy Get Festive Wrappings

JUST to add to the joys of the Christmas shopping season modern manners demand a smart wrapping for every large and little Christmas package! One more notation in the notebook and one more thing to think about

But if you are gifted with imagination you won't feel just that way about it. In fact, the turning out of neat and natty packages will be your greatest fun!

What have you in hiding? Let's see, an umbrella for Cousin Clementine, a drum for Nephew Bill, a toaster for a newlywed and a perfume bottle for some sweet young thing—these among a dozen other gifts.

IF you didn't care about bouquets for yourself, you might send everything off in a snowy white tissue and red ribbon wrapping. But you do like your roses. And an the umbrella will probably be encased in a perfect paper that has little ladies holding umbrellas high

The drum—for all he may not appreciate it, the impatient little rascal—will be boxed, and on the outside a strip of soldiers will parade stiffly, as if guarding the loot. The toaster may have its practicality denied by a wrapping that glitters with golden stars and by a frivolous ribbon rosette Or the wrapper may declare the household gift—being allover printed with quaint little rooftines and garden gates

FOR a frivolous gift, such as a delicate perfume bottle, you may select a flowered paper, a dotted paper or an austerely simple silver paper—according to how modern your gifter

The successful wrapping suits the gift, it satisfies the recipient —and it looks like you to some extent

Festive trappings that you should not overlook—they'll add so much to splendid gifts—are papers in subtle, unusual shadetying tapes in cotton, print and paper; tiny silver bells that produce a most musical tinkle, and gummed stars of a dozen different dimensions. There is transparent cellophane, too, which has its fascinating crispness and its delectable pinples, jade, jade, greens and reds to recommend it for all kinds of gifts.

And there may be inspiration for you in some of the wrapped packages sketched here!

TO make an ornament of a utilitarian object is the commendable purpose of clever inkstands that disguise the accompanying pens. For instance, there is the china soldier bearing a drum He is merely a shell filled with ink and the proud plume that waves from his Napoleonic shako is a pen Another inkstand takes the form of a sword swallower with a pen doubling for the sword

Whether you like your birds and beasts au naturel in forest and meadow or prefer them stuffed and harmlessly put away under glass cases, you will like the amusing birds and elephant and bears that adorn new bookends Surely the owner cannot quarrel with the fact that this guard the books with rather belligerent attitudes. Of bronze or cracked pottery they appear in white and colors.

THE modern decorator must of necessity be a matchmaker, for the modern scheme of decoration is one of symmetry. There are pairs of mirrors, pairs of candles, pairs of lamps. The dressing table carries a pair of small vases that match exactly and are meant to hold matching bouquets. There are twin pomade jars to carry out the paired idea, and twin candlesticks

All of these make fascinating and "different" gifts, and appropriately dressed, tied, and stairedtheir value and charm is enhanced

NEW IDEA FOR STOCK MARKET STUDENTS

By FRANK M. MELOON
Financial Editor

Gage P. Wright, who has leaped into special prominence during the current year, advances a new idea which is deserving of attention. The economist suggests we should study stock value rises and falls by percentages instead of points. This would of course present a much clearer picture of what happens to values.

A 50 - point drop in a stock selling at 500 looks startling, but is only a 10 per cent shrinkage, while a 10-point slump in a stock selling at 20 cuts the value right in half and is a 50 per cent shrinkage. There is a fine opening for one of the many services giving advice about the stock market to pioneer with "p. c." statistics.

William T. Yetman, Boston statistician, furnishes me with this table, showing how the decline in dollars and per cent compares for the space traversed between 1929 highs and lows in prominent issues:

The Bay State's compulsory auto insurance law is chiefly condemned in financial and insurance circles because it fails to provide for property damage indemnity. And, of course, the law is attacked also as misleading many car drivers into the belief that they are amply insured when they have only the insurance required by the statutes.

The Massachusetts law is also open to censure because of its interference with the use of automobiles in a respectfully inherent unmooted. At this "off season" for motoring automobilists in other states who wish to use their cars once a week, for example, are able to take out registration plates for 1930 and buy insurance good for the driving day only. This saves a lot of money. In Massachusetts you are compelled to pay insurance when you have the registration plates whether you use your car or not. Hence many automobilists in the Bay State will not register their cars until next spring, particularly the car owners who believe in going on the roads only when properly insured.

State Street and the many thousands who own securities recently bought therein, are naturally deeply interested in the proposal to tax issues not legally tax-exempt. I find few who believe these securities will eventually be taxed. One argument is that the property in which you hold stock is taxed and then it is proposed to inaugurate double taxation by taxing the income you receive from it. Well, the same is true of real estate, if one of the state. As for the proposal to tax town and city bond incomes, the tax would simply mean that towns and cities would pay more for their new financing. Peter would be robbed to pay Paul.

A State Street broker raises this interesting point that Massachusetts drivers will do well to remember that the Bay State law granting the right of way to the vehicle first at an intersection does not apply when we are driving in any other state. Another example of the need of uniform traffic regulations.

John M. Fitzgerald, assistant to the chairman of the committee on public relations of Eastern railroads, urges more railroad financing through sale of stock, pointing out that 60 per cent of capital structure of carriers is represented by funded debt. Mr. Fitzgerald shows the railways do not get 6% per cent return prescribed by transportation act.

Visitor Calls N. Y. Delirious, U. S. Dangerous

Found Us Riding for Fall; Our Mad Prosperity Is Not Real

By R. C. Forbes

NEW YORK Dec 18—To see ourselves as others see us is sometimes refreshing. An observant British visitor, early trained in America, came to the United States in September. He told me then that New York appeared to be living in a delirium. Wall Street, he declared, had gone stark mad he called its form of lunacy Optimania.

While here he made this observation:

"All my European friends say that whatever it has been built as large and as quickly cannot be well built. It is all a Tower of Babel that must end in confusion. Such checques on the Bank of the Future will not be cashed. It is imagination and human energy and joy of life. It is the most extraordinary development of optimism plus self faith that the world has ever seen. But it is built on the sand."

B. C. Forbes

Returning home, this visitor, Herbert N. Casson, wrote on October 13 for his Efficiency Magazine an article predicting a terrific smash up in stocks and answering the question, "Is America Prosperous?" Here are some of his spirited comments:

"New York today does not represent business. It represents the most gigantic bubble of speculation that has ever been blown by gamblers who have gone mad by their success. In New York I saw men borrowing money at 10 per cent to buy shares that pay 2 per cent. This is not investment. It is not even ordinary gambling. It is a mania that has seized upon New York like a plague.

"The so-called business of Wall Street is the selling of guesses on the future. There is a futures mania. Mention a fact and you stop any conversation in New York.

"There is a struggle on between the hopes and the fears. As yet, the hopes have it. The hopes have made hundred of millions. Soon before have the hopes been so wild and so successful. But when the fears have it, the strike of one man race will be staggered by the crash.

"Everyone is borrowing. Everyone from the big speculator to the wage-worker is borrowing. Borrowing by means of the instalment system.

"There is no more reason in the situation than there is in the dance of whirling Dervishes. New Yorkers are unteachable. They can learn only by losses. They are the fanatics of a new religion of futurism.

"There is a vast difference between the situation today and the situation of fifteen years ago. Then, the big bankers were in control. They told the truth when to stop. Today, the big gamblers are in control. They defy the bankers. They think themselves at the Federal Reserve Board. They are not content with millions. They want billions. Their profits are paper millions. When they try to sell, the spell will be broken. Soon after, soon be a vast mob of sellers.

"New York has the wildest and most irrational optimism that the world has ever seen. It has optimania.

"The American policy of progress is to have booms and crashes. Every seven or eight years there is a crash. During the last seven years there has been a great net gain in spite of the crashes. But Europeans prefer a policy of slower and safer development. We don't like smashes.

"As to the question—Is America prosperous? I would say that 15 per cent of it is. Most of the manufacturers and merchants are making expenses and nothing more. There are 150 great companies that are swallowing up the industries. The average man is in debt. The farmers are in trouble. There are at the moment, I dare say, at least 3,000,000 of unemployed. There were 19,000 bankruptcies last year.

"America is a land of contrasts. Black and white. Between the magnificent and wretched poverty. Philanthropy and crime. Science and superstition. Progressiveness and the most primitive reactions. A civil war is on between the best and the worst elements in human nature. The fight is so terrific and so prolonged that I doubt if evil can win the whole world that I must confess that if I were 20 years younger I would plunge into it again.

"Those children of liberty! Free from discipline and culture and traditions and leadership! What miracles have they done by sheer energy and exuberance!

"The peasantry of 80 nations, all set free to do their worst or their best! They have made New York a carnival of luxury and crime and finance and illanic industry—this wonder and the danger of the world. I wish I could see it again in 1950."

If I were to add my own guess it would that despite its mania for flying to extremes this land will have made far faster progress than Britain by 1950.

CURB MARKET TURNS HEAVY IN AFTERNOON

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Dec 18 (AP)—The curb market turned visibly heavy in the early afternoon today after drifting in uncertain manner during the morning. Inactivity of operations for the advance evidently prompted speculators for the fall to resume operations in a cautious way, despite the market's dullness.

Losses of 1 to more than 3 points in the more popular shares were common, while some of the high priced issues broke 5 to 20 points. News regarding curb stocks remained meagre, and the activity in the market appeared to be governed by professional traders.

Great Atlantic and Pacific dropped 20 points to 240 for a few odd sales, and Deere lost nearly 10. Fajardo Sugar sagged a few points to a new low, reflecting cuts in refined sugar prices.

In the utility group, such issues as Electric Bond & Share, Allied Power & Light, and Middle West eased slightly. Brazilian traction dropped more than 3 points.

American Cities Power & Light issues showed on the surface a movement disclosing a sharp depreciation of the market value of holdings, despite the total close to the level of the beginning of the year. Insull Utility Investment encountered profit taking on yesterday's upturn, attributable to the stock dividend.

Fox Theatres A was again under pressure, reflecting indications that the Fox Film trustees will be opposed by the Class A shareholders' in reorganization plans. The stock dropped to 8¾, within a fraction of its low.

Cities Service was a soft spot, breaking several points in its widest movement in several sessions. Oils were generally heavy, despite the Standard Oil of Indiana dividend last week. Gulf and Vacuum both sagged, but Humble was firm for a time.

Third National Investors was old up about a point.

Textile Workers Gather Saturday

New York, Dec. 18 (INS)—Officials of the National Textile Workers' Union, representing 30,000 workers in the county's silk, rayon and textile mills, were continuing today to lay plans for the big convention which will be held Saturday and Sunday in Paterson, N. J.

The convention, which is to be attended by 30 delegates, many of them from Gastonia, New England and other mill districts, will have as its chief object the laying of plans for a huge strike to be "called at some future date." No vote will be taken on a strike during the convention, however, the union officials preferring to wait until they are better prepared before setting a date or making definite arrangements for the walkout.

Blame Steel Drop for Market Crash

Iron Age will say tomorrow that steel producers are now satisfied that the sharp decline in output that began late in October was a psychological effect of the stock market crash and greatly exceeded the actual contraction in steel consumption. While some of the automobile builders are making extended commitments in steel, improvement in order and releases is making itself felt. Ingot production generally is declining. The average for the steel corporation and Bethlehem plants is down to 72 per cent of capacity, compared with 68 per cent a week ago.

The Iron Age composite price for pig iron has dropped from $1.28 a week ago to $1.21 a gross ton, but finished steel remains at 2.362 cents a pound.

Bondholders Are Against Exchange

A group of holders of Syracuse Rapid Transit Railway Co., second mortgage 5 per cent bonds, due Jan. 1, 1930, in a statement recommend to holders "that under no circumstances should this offer" for the exchange of the bonds into securities of the Syracuse Gas & Electric Co. "be accepted." The group composed of Joseph B. White of Hale, Waters & Co., New York city; Gresham H. Poe of Jenkins, Whedbee & Poe, Baltimore, Md.; and Francis P. Sears, Boston, Mass., state that "offer of exchange is not an opinion of good or fairly represent the value behind these bonds. We believe it imperative for bondholders to co-operate in order to protect their interests."

Will Seek Lower Insurance Rates

Amesbury, Dec. 18—The subject of insurance and taxation will be discussed at meetings arranged by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce next month. One of the purposes of the meeting will be to see if a lower insurance rate for property in this town can be obtained.

Steps will also be taken to find a suitable place in which to install the old town clock that has been stored for several months since the old No. 8 mill was torn down.

STOCK MARKET GOVERNOR OF BUSINESS

By Universal Service

New York, Dec 18—Business conditions for early 1930 will be influenced numerically by stock market developments of the next few weeks. The campaign of President Hoover to restore confidence in the trade situation has been successful in action through the country but unless it is backed up by the continued evidence of a firm stock market it will lose much of its force.

Organized bear raiding has shaken the market and influenced some liquidation. If short sellers continue they do not doubt will be giving the best possible aid to the President's campaign. By their timing the weak spots resulting from the market catastrophe would have been well in hand and attention taken to arrest in better shape to cope with bear raiding.

With the questionnaire in effect there would be less likelihood of the organized smashing at prices such as witnessed during the past week.

Those reputedly leading the bear raids are in good position to know the actual conditions of groups interested in certain stocks. As a result they pick their favorites and by their constant pounding have been successful in forcing some further liquidation.

Everyone recognizes the necessity for caution in the exchange to disregard trading rules during the catastrism of November their could be no assurance taken in the curb shortly selling while the Hoover program is in motion.

It will take real banking support and aggressive bull activity to inspire belief that "normalcy has returned."

STEEL ORDERS ARE PLACED

New York, Dec 18 (AP)—The Standard Corporation has placed orders for 2000 50-ton steel box cars, 400 each of which would be built by the Standard Car Co, Pullman Car & Standard Steel Car Co. and 600 each of the Bethlehem Car & Foundry Co. and the Bethlehem Steel Co.

The 1930 expansion program of the Associated Oil Co. calls for the expenditure of about $20,000,000, William F. Humphrey, president, said today.

Stanley M. Lazarus, counsel for the Fox Film Corp. Class A stockholders' committee, says that definite action will be taken on behalf of that group in connection with transfer of the assets of the controlled by the holding company, which, it has been reported, the trustees of the Class B stock are about to form.

Twenty-one steamers will dock at west coast ports with cargoes of lumber to the holding company, according to a schedule prepared by the Silk Association of America.

New Britain to Gain Two Plants

New Britain, Ct., Dec. 18 (AP)—Purchase of the Unisheet Company, Inc., Bridgeport, and the Stanley Crowe Safety Saw Company, Inc., of Cincinnati, O., by the Stanley Electric Tool Company, a subsidiary of the Stanley Works, was announced today. The business of the two companies will be brought to this city. The Stanley Electric Tool Company recently acquired the Ajax Hammer Company of New York City and the L. R. Carter Company of Syracuse, N. Y.

Clarke President of Central Trust

Chicago, Dec. 18 (AP)—Retirement of Charles G. Dawes, United States Ambassador to Great Britain as chairman of the board of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, became effective today and Dawes was announced by the bank's board of directors. Ambassador Dawes was named honorary chairman. Joseph E. Otis, who

UTILITIES AND RAILS LEAD BOND MART

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, Dec. 18 (AP).—Firmer price tendencies appeared in the bond market today. Investment buying in the first grade rails and prime utilities was felt in other sections of the list and, although the volume of trading was still thin, a majority of the changes were on the upside.

Suspension of the conversion privilege at the Buenos Aires gold exchange had a depressing effect on Argentine listings, several of which dropped to new lows for the year on declines of 1 to 2 points, as yesterday's liquidation in this group was resumed.

Most of the day's activity in domestic corporation mortgages centered in the rails and renewed inquiry brought gains of major fractional proportions to a long list of loans, including Central Pacific first, Kansas City Southern 5s, Chicago & Northwestern 4½s, Delaware & Hudson 5½s, Erie 5s and general 4s, Missouri Kansas Texas 4½s and New Orleans Texas & Mexico 5s. A few prime mortgage issues were able to move up more than a point.

Demand for the utilities continued to be concentrated on the best bonds. Western Union 6½s, Western New York & Pennsylvania and Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania, among others, rose 1 to 1 point. The sluggish industrials which have not fared so well during the two months of the market's general upward movement, displayed considerable resistance and some of the speculative listings recovered part of their recent losses.

United States Government liberties and treasuries traded lightly at not much change in price.

New bond financing of the day included two large issues in the municipal group. The city and county of San Francisco $41,000,000 issue of 4½ per cent serial bonds was marketed at par, while Montreal's $20,000,000 4½s last was sold at 92½ and 51, respectively, for the 10 and 20-year maturities.

BETTER ROADS DEMANDED

Washington, Dec. 18.—Leaders in the automotive industry appeared before the House roads committee in support of bills greatly increasing the government's contribution for road building.

Frederick J. Haynes of Detroit declared that the best transportation facilities in the world had been responsible for this country's prosperity. "Their expansion must contribute to the drive for sustained prosperity, he said, adding:

"A man who has lost the use of his legs is helpless, and likewise a country without transportation must spend aside and liberally what is concerned while others forge ahead.

Two measures are before the committee. One would increase the federal appropriations from $75,000,000 to $125,000,000, and another by Representative Clancy, Republican, of Detroit, would fix the total at $150,000,000 annually.

Roy D. Chapin of Detroit, representing the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and a member of President Hoover's business conference, sent a letter to the committee saying the federal government had lagged in the construction of highways. He said:

"Interstate travel by motor and commerce over our roads is growing in volume. This expansion has brought with it new requirements. Stronger and wider roads are needed.

AUCTION BRIDGE
by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

JUSTIFIABLE OVER-BIDDING

I have frequently stated that over-bidding is the secret of winning Bridge. In making this statement it should be definitely understood that I refer to justifiable and not to unjustifiable over-bidding, as the latter risks possible losses entirely out of proportion to the possible gains.

Sound over-bidding where, for example, an adverse game can be stopped by taking a set on a trick, or in some situations, a set of two tricks, will win more points in the long run than it will lose. This deal presents an example of what is clearly a justifiable overbid.

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction: South bids one Spade originally. West passing, North makes a pre-emptive assist to three Spades. Though lacking the full supporting values for such bid, North's precedure is a sound attempt to shut out if possible an adverse bid by East, which, unless his partner hold "all the cards in the deck" would a bid must surely follow a pass on his part.

East, with a powerful two-suiter, is apt to be shut out and both Four Hearts and subsequently five diamonds following South's rebid of Spades and West failure to help the Hearts.

South, with three Aces, doubles five Diamonds. Now, West's contributional values only (trump length and ability to ruff), refuses to let the double stand as he fears that South's double may be count upon finding him with at least one high card defensive trick.

East, with no such defense against five Spades and a partner who is marked with practically a blank hand, bids six diamonds, despite South's double of five. South again doubles and all pass, as North is under no obligation to deny South's second positive double.

Contract: South's original bid at Contract is two Spades, showing a powerful hand with values in at least three suits and the probability of at least seven tricks in all.

North carries the bid to four, his values ample for the game contract following South's two bid. East over-calls with five Hearts and in the same way and for the same reason as given above at Auction the final declaration becomes six Diamonds by East, doubled.

The Play

There are no particular points of interest in the play of this hand as East can lose only one Club and Ace of Clubs and the Ace of Diamonds regardless of the initial lead or subsequent defense.

It will be noted that East's loss of one trick, doubled, is offset by his honors, but even if Making such honors the loss would be entirely justified as North-South have an easy five odd at Spades.

Mr. Whitehead will answer one question at a time concerning bridge problems. Write to him, care this paper, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope.

To Call Strikes in Textile Mills

New York, Dec. 18. An intensive organization campaign with a view to calling strikes of textile workers in the South and in Eastern Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, was announced by the National Textile Workers' Union, a left-wing organization not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

A statement issued by the union said more than 200 delegates from "every textile center of the land, from New Bedford to Gastonia," would attend a convention to be called.

Man Badly Burned in Vapor Bath

Portland, Me., Dec. 18—David Tibbetts, 45, recently retired with the rank of sergeant after long service in the United States army, was the victim of a peculiar accident when a series of electric bulbs used in an improvised vapor bath exploded and burned his body from top to toe. He was taken to the Fort Williams Hospital for treatment.

Beacon Oil Co. to Move Offices

The management of the Beacon Oil Co., plans to remove office executives and employes out of the danger zone of its huge plant at Everett where numerous fires and explosions have occurred during the past two years.

Temporary offices will be established at the Statler building and the company plans to build an office building of its own in the near future.

20,000 DINNERS TO BE PROVIDED

Nearly 20,000 men, women and children will be given a happy Christmas in Greater Boston through the services of The Salvation Army, according to a statement issued today by Colonel Joseph Atkinson, officer in command.

Ever since Thanksgiving, applications for assistance have been pouring into The Army and the month of activity on the part of the officers is now reaching its peak.

The climax of the army's Christmas work of all descriptions comes the morning of Dec. 24, with the distribution of 3500 Christmas baskets in Greater Boston. Each of these baskets contains bountiful holiday provision for a family of five persons.

Also, in Greater Boston, the inmates of homes and hospitals will be served with a Christmas dinner and no will be forgotten in the accompanying festivities. The program Wednesday noon.

In accordance with the custom, the Christmas work each year is paid for by friends of humanity who send in gifts, the funds with which to carry on the work. Last year, the funds provided were more than $5,000 short of the total cost. To date this year, the deficit is even larger and Col. Atkinson requests any person who wishes to help the Army at Christmas time to send their subscription in to him personally at East Brookline st., Boston.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Judge Adlow

Can He Have Left the Political Stage at 33?

ELIJAH ADLOW, who this week assumed a place on the bench of the Municipal Court, must be about the youngest judge in New England.

Born in East Boston in 1896, the new justice is but 33 years of age.

But making these "youngest" records appears to be a habit with him. Completing his course in English High School before he was 16, at 19 he was graduated from Harvard with highest honors and at 21 finished at the Law School. He was admitted to the Bar in the uniform of a sailor, having that day completed a term of enlistment in the Navy.

As a rule, the donning of judicial robes may be taken to mean that the jurist had adopted a new course and is to be active no longer in the public life of the community.

Six years' service in the House of Representatives—six fighting years—established his reputation throughout the State as an able and aggressive Republican.

Adlow's vigilance and Adlow's courage, more than any other factor, preserved to the Attorney-General's department a supervisory authority over the District Attorneys.

Every leader of his party, of any consequence, wanted him elected the Commonwealth's chief lawyer. Strong in the larger communities, he was unable to overcome the prejudice of the villages—although the leaders worked with might and main—and we got Mr. Reading.

The Commonwealth's loss, in 1926, is Boston's gain, in 1929.

But we find it difficult to believe that a man of Elijah Adlow's attainments is politically on the shelf at 33 and that his eloquence, his quick wit and his mastery of the art of the public speaker are to be known no more in Senate-House and town-hall.

Over Here

Remember!

FOR the American with a good heart, and a dollar "to spare," it will be enough if we merely mention the work of the Disabled Veterans' Christmas Remembrance Committee.

Do you know how many Massachusetts veterans are in Federal hospitals?

More than THREE THOUSAND, several hundred of them out of the State and far from friends and relatives, many of them alone in the world.

"The Government takes care of them?"

Yes, but as we read in the letter which has gone out over the signatures of Mrs. Robert Lincoln O'Brien and Mr. Eben S. Draper, "you and I know that on Christmas morning something besides breakfast, a dose of medicine and fresh bandages are needed to keep away the lump that gathers in the throat, the tears that come to the eyes, because of lonesomeness and homesickness."

Shut your eyes. Picture them as they left for France. . . . Picture them NOW, boys no longer except on Christmas morning.

Open your heart. Send a check or a money-order, for any amount, large or small, to James J. Phelan, treasurer, 60 Congress Street, Boston.

To fill one stocking will cost $2.50.

Three-Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

EVERY large city in the world has its own individual institutions. They are just waiting to be discovered by the traveler. Paris has its Latin Quarter (pretty well exploited, I admit), Buenos Aires its fascinating waterfront, and New York its teeming ever-changing East Side. The list can be carried on indefinitely. London has many interesting odd corners and one of them is Caledonia Market.

Caledonia Market is situated in the north of London in a rather grubby, crowded district. But there one may see scions of the best families in England, nobility, wealth and importance. For Caledonia Market holds treasure-trove. It is the market place for past glories, a second-hand market which cannot be duplicated anywhere in the world.

All week long the junkmen of London make their rounds. Through every section of the city go their carts, picking up bric-a-brac and works of art, discarded clothing and heirlooms which have lost their charm. And on Friday morning they turn toward Caledonia Market to which they know customers will come in hordes.

The market is really nothing but a street. It is wide and on either side the vendors erect their flimsy stalls or "barrows" as they call them. The junk is arranged in some semblance of order and the junk dealers, turned clever, persuasive merchants are ready for a day of bickering.

The dealers in Caledonia Market are Cockneys in the extreme. Their clothes are shapeless and seedy, mayhap, but they have ready wit and persuasive arguments. The women in their bonnets and shawls look particularly like characters out of a Dickens novel.

Naturally enough, most of the stuff which finds its way to the market is nothing but junk. The furs will be badly worn, the crockery chipped, the paintings in terrible works of unknown artists.

But—and here is the lure—every once in a while some avid collector will uncover no famous work of art. Many fine prints have been found amidst its junk and grime, and every once in a while some authentic antique furniture will find its way to this clearing house. And that is the reason why wealth and culture will be found at Caledonia Market.

For the traveler, this picture of Cockney life is worth the trip to the market. You may not be a collector, but you cannot fail to enjoy this picture of London life on a Friday morning.

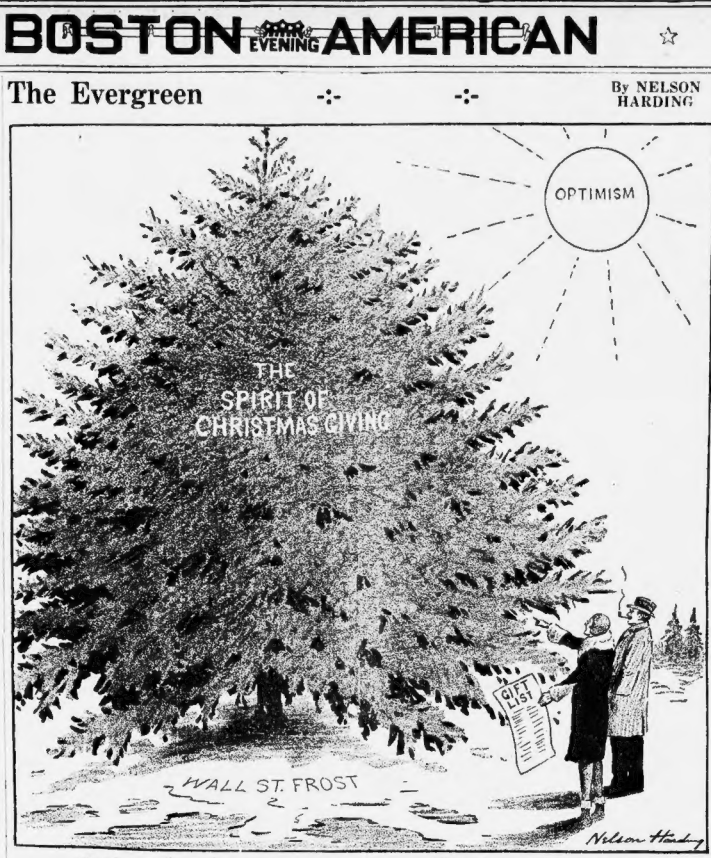
The Evergreen

By NELSON HARDING



The living tree that verdant grows
Through autumn frosts and winter snows,
The strong and never-changing tree,
Surviving all adversity.

The hardy tree with branches wide,
The changing seasons has defied.
The tree whose verdure still is seen,
The Christmas spirit, ever green.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THE Orient seems indignant because the war blew up in peace.

The Manchurian crisis was postponed over the week-end and the big business men of Manchuria agree that Gen. Sherman knew his alphabetical building blocks.

The Soviet is very morose at Secretary Stimson's premature note as the Soviet was trying out some new self-filling fountain pens that could drop a blot 30 miles away.

This incident proves the League of Nations has long wave lengths of influence if the combatants are tired of scrapping.

At the time that Secretary Stimson's scented ultimatum reached Moscow, the Soviet was in the driver's seat with the motor humming sweetly.

This was a war of independent producers. It was not a feature picture but would have made a neat weekly news reel.

Another peace treaty has been added to the battle flags of the world.

The League takes in a lot of territory, and has trouble adjusting itself to the accommodations. It is in the same fix as the old lady who lived in a shoe and leased larger apartments in a rubber boot.

It bags so many children that it doesn't know what to do and does it.

As Guardians of the universe, we naturally feel slighted at the Sino-Soviets for starting a war that is not within easy commuting distance.

But we can stuff ourself with taxidermist pride over the clicking fact that an American note resulted in the Mukden peace treaty and that Russia and China are again putting a fresh coat of shellac on their international spite fence.

In a month we will know whether this is an everlasting peace pact or just another one of those thirty-day notes.

H. G. Wells Writes on

"The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

HE has a heart in a position corresponding to our hearts, but as he has no lungs he has no double circulation; the dogfish heart, like the heart of a human embryo, is a single pump and drives all the blood forward via the gills to the rest of the body.

H. G. Wells

He has a stomach lying rather to the left of his abdominal cavity and kidneys at the back; he has a liver and portal veins, a spleen, thyroid, pineal and pituitary glands, cerebrum and cerebellum, testes or ovaries. The homology of his organs can be traced even in minute details in the courses and branching of his nerves and arteries.

Upon point after point the differences between a dogfish and ourselves are modifications of a plan common to both. And in many cases where the homologies of the two adults are not apparent, a study of the human embryo shows how the two correspond.

The position might be summarized by saying that if we had a model dogfish made of plasticine we could twist and stretch and bend it bit by bit, increasing the quantity at this point, perhaps, and diminishing it at that, but adding nothing essentially new, until we had a very passable model mammal—a modifying process that is crudely reproduced in the stages of our own embryonic development.

If we examined any other vertebrate—a frog, say, or a tortoise, or a sparrow—we should find a similar agreement of plan. They all possess more or less the same set of organs, put together in the same way.

On the other hand this does not apply to a great multitude of other living animals. A lobster, for example, has organs that do not correspond at all to ours, and the whole architecture of his body is distinct; the same is true of a starfish, or a tapeworm, or an oyster.

A plasticine model of any of these creatures would have to be broken down to nearly nothing before you could begin to worry it into the form of a vertebrate.

Such then is the import of "phylum."

In reply to the question, what are the characteristic features of vertebrates, as distinct from other animals? A trained zoologist could reel off a string of anatomical points, particularly if he was a teacher or a student about to undergo examination.

Nevertheless, there is a simple definition; the vertebrates are the athletes of the Animal Kingdom. They have better-developed muscles, and better devices for supplying those muscles with oxygen than any other creatures.

The mammals on land, the birds in the air, the fish in the water—these include in their ranks the largest, strongest, and swiftest of creatures, and those with the greatest powers of endurance.

That is why their one phylum thrusts itself upon our attention in front of all the other phyla of the Animal Kingdom.

Theirs is the best pattern; they include all the high-grade makes in the world of life.

THE CLASSES OF VERTEBRATE PHYLA

AT the head of any survey of vertebrate forms must come the mammals and birds.

They have dominated this earth for many millions, perhaps for scores of millions of years, and are manifestly the best adapted creatures to the present climatic variety and uncertainties of our planet.

But they have not always ruled the terrestrial scene. In the past, stupendous ages passed in which neither bird flew nor mammal ran, and beings less adapted to an active life in a fluctuating temperature prevailed.

There was an age when the reptiles ruled, before Nature, it would seem, had invented the hair or feathers, the double circulation and the blood at a constant temperature which accounted for the active presence of the bird and the mammal all over the globe and all around the year.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

VERILY, my Daughter, a prima donna is capricious and a motor car is full of surprises; but what is so astonishing as the way of a man with women?

For, lo, there be seven times seven varieties of LOVE—and every man shall give thee a different definition and offer thee a different brand.

Go to. There be men who vow that love is naught but sex-attraction—and those who believe that sex-attraction is NO part of love.

Those who play with love and pursue all women—and those who dodge love and run from all women.

Those who joke about love and have never felt it—and those who dream about love and have never found it.

Those who regard love as a divine fire—and those who regard it as a cafeteria.

Those who believe that every damsel expecteth to be petted—and those who think that NO woman requireth to be courted.

Those who use every woman's love to feed their own ego—and those who court every woman in order to appease her vanity.

Those who regard all women as their enemies, and those who regard all women as their playthings, which Heaven hath bestowed upon man for his amusement and diversion.

Verily, a man feareth love, as a sleeping sickness and a deadly drug which shall reduce him to a state of hopeless inertia and helpless dementia. Therefore doth he mock it and trifle with it and flee from it.

But a woman welcometh love as a sweet draught of wine, which glorifieth all the world, produceth glamourous dreams and bringeth her heart's desire! For, in many things, man may be wiser than woman; but in love, all the wisdom is woman's and all the folly is man's!

Words of The Wise Men

It is easier to know mankind in general than man individually.

—La Rochefoucauld.

True it is that covetousness is rich, modesty starves.

—Phaedrus.

I'll news madam.
Ars swallow-winged, but what's good
Walks on crutches.

—Messinger.

Striving to better, oft we mar what's well.

To Get Money's Worth

Predatory Interests for First Time in Our Political History Openly Buy Seat in the Senate for Their Representative

THE appointment of Joseph R. Grundy as United States Senator seemed to settle the question as to who—for the time being—is going to run the United States Government.

For the first time in our political history the privileged and predatory interests have openly bought a seat in the Senate for their representative.

Joseph R. Grundy is the greatest collector of political funds on record. From Pennsylvania manufacturers, intent upon a higher tariff, he gathered and delivered $1,000,000 for the election of Hoover in 1928, and $400,000 towards the $1,800,000 fund which put Fisher in the Govornor's chair in 1926.

NOW FISHER SELECTS GRUNDY FOR THE SENATE, WHERE HE CAN SEE TO IT THAT THE PRIVILEGED INTERESTS GET THEIR MONEY'S WORTH.

As chief tariff lobbyist in Washington, Grundy helped frame the Senate Tariff bill, which, when passed, will add twelve hundred million dollars to profits of Pennsylvania manufacturers—all of this, of course, taken out of the pockets of the people of the country. Of the sixty-five Pennsylvania industries interested in tariff, forty-two get raises.

Grundy himself will likewise profit. The woolen yarn industry, in which he admits he has invested "a couple of million dollars," is given a generous raise of tariff protection, Grundy's ADD VALOREM rates running up to sixty-five per cent.

We shall now witness the spectacle of a United States tariff being made and voted on by one of the millionaire manufacturers who will benefit largely from it in his personal fortune.

The Governor of Pennsylvania sends to represent his state in the highest law-making body in the land a Senator offensive to all but a few of his colleagues, a lobbyist denounced by a Senate investigating committee within the last two weeks.

The great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will be represented in the United States Senate by a man who has publicly stated THAT ORGANIZED WEALTH SHOULD RULE THE COUNTRY; THAT SENATORS OF "BACKWARD STATES" SHOULD HOLD THEIR TONGUES WHEN PENNSYLVANIA ASKS FOR TARIFF FAVORS;

THAT THE REPRESENTATIVES OF OTHER COMMONWEALTHS CAN BE DIVIDED INTO "COMMON AND PREFERRED" SENATORS IN PROPORTION TO THEIR SUBMISSION TO THE PRIVILEGED INTERESTS;

THAT THERE WAS NO IMPROPRIETY WHEN SENATOR BINGHAM SMUGGLED C. N. EYANSON, EMPLOYE OF THE CONNECTICUT MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION, INTO THE SECRET MEETINGS OF THE SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE; THAT EYANSON IS "A VERY CAPABLE YOUNG MAN OF THE VERY TYPE THAT SHOULD BE DEVELOPED TO ADVISE CONGRESS IN THE MAKING OF TARIFF BILLS IN THE FUTURE."

It is important to note that there is no record of President Hoover, head of the Republican administration, using his great influence to stop the appointment of Grundy by Fisher.

Senator Grundy is a slap in the face of those who believe in free government of the country.

They needed the slap. Perhaps they will wake up now and do something about it.

The protected and predatory interests have served formal notice on the people that they intend to run the government of the United States.

Next year at the polls in November the people will have THEIR say.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—Loud hoots for Grover Whalen's regulation of theater district traffic has simmered to a mere hum. The idea has definitely clicked, and those who looked upon Mayor Walker's police commissioner as a sort of civic fop are chanting his praise. He is now the white-haired boy.

Whalen took a big gambling chance in his quixotic effort to cut the noose that was slowly strangling theatrical life in America's amusement capital. Had he failed he would have been swept out of office on a gale of laughter. Older heads wagged dubiously. Whalen practically went it alone.

Before his plans were set in motion, theater goers, in some instances, had to start for the theater an hour before certain time and even then often arrived late. The nightly chaos was indescribable and growing worse. The situation was more serious than the public realized.

Had a great fire broken out in the theatrical zone between 7:30 and 8:30 the probable loss of life and property, due to clogged and impassable streets, could not be calculated. Although Whalen knew this, he did not stress the danger in forcing his plan.

In making such startling changes, there was needed, or course, a period for adjustment. In six weeks things began to run smoothly. Today it has been proven by actual timing that a trip requiring usually an hour in other days can be made in 16 minutes.

The hardest blow fell on restaurants in the theatrical district. Due to strict no parking orders, they have suffered severe losses. Some were forced to quit. But the innovation has been for the greatest good of the greatest number.

One of the big howls came from the operators of cruising taxis, who were completely shunted out of the area during restricted periods. In a few weeks, however, these chatterers discovered that instead of business slumping it was better than ever.

So it is the dandified Mr. Whalen, with his white spats, lapel rose and silken mustache, who has completely confounded his critics, like the top-booted city chap in the play. The fact that Whalen also quitted a commercial post, which, with bonuses, totaled $100,000 a year, to accept the most unstable of civic jobs for $10,000 a year, has added to his popularity.

Two lady magazine writers are making faces. One accuses the other of piracy because one of her phrases appeared under the name of her contemporary in another magazine several months after the first appearance. A checkup will likely show this is frequent in the writing world and is the product of coincidence. With so many thousands writing, the wonder is it happens so infrequently.

George Bernard Shaw recently said a person writing for a livelihood is bound to have moments of "unconscious plagiarism." He points out that a writer is usually an omnivorous reader and is influenced by the phrasing of others, even though he may not employ the exact words.

George Ade was once sent by a New York editor a colored paragraph from a book by Theodore Dreiser. It was almost word for word a paragraph from one of Ade's earlier books, "Pink Marsh." The editor expected to inspire a stinging retort from the gentleman at Brook Inn. He parallelized the paragraphs and inquired: "What do you think of this?"

Ade replied: "I am flattered pink."

When Eugene Field was running his masterly column in Chicago, a small town daily in a nearby state used to reproduce it, signed by another name. Field's only answer was to write a paragraph now and then to praise the author as the best paragrapher in America.
